BY OSCAR HEWITT.

County Treasurer McDonough announced definitely yesterday that he would distribute approximately $7,073,000 of tax collections to the 416 local governments of Cook county. He estimated the allotment in accordance with the table presented above. The distribution will be made as soon as the audit, which he started Aug. 5, is completed. He anticipates this will be Monday.

The $7,073,688.67 is the total of all 1930 tax payments to Aug. 1, the date of which the audit is being made. This is subject to correction for payments on wrong legal description, duplicate payments, excess payments, and other errors of property owners and collector, but the auditors said yesterday afternoon it is an approximate figure. The auditors will recommend that the treasurer distribute all the tax payments audited, which he had previously announced he would do.

Pay $65,000 a Day.

Since Aug. 1 property owners have been handing in an average of about $65,000 a day, or a total of $1,450,000. Perhaps a fraction of this will also be distributed in order to hand out payments to the larger governments in round figures.

Practically none of the $7,073,000, when it reaches the tax expending units, will be available for salaries. Nearly all of the governments have tax anticipation warrants outstanding, which must be paid from the tax receipts. Even if the money could be utilized for salaries and wages it would represent only a week's pay roll for the larger governments.

Week's Operation Costs.

The school board's share of the $7,073,000 is estimated at $1,351,518.38. For the teachers and other employés of the educational fund there is available in that sum about enough to pay a week's cost of operation. If the $1,351,518 is distributed, according to the tax rates, the school board will divide its tax money next Monday as follows:

Schools—	Amount.
Educational	$ 910,499.43
Building	337,222.02
Playgrounds	10,116.66
Textbooks	26,077.76
Teachers' pension	19,251.85
Bonds and interest	56,450.96
Total	$1,351,518.38

A two weeks' pay roll for the board of education when the schools are in operation is about $2,245,000. It is apparent from the table that taxes for the payment of bonds and interest, teachers' pensions, and for textbooks could not be used for salaries even if no tax anticipation warrants were outstanding.

$17,545,900 in Warrants.

The tax revenue received for the educational and building funds must be used to pay tax warrants, of which those two funds now have $17,545,900 outstanding. By the tax payments these warrants will be reduced to $16,298,000 and the credit of the school board improved to that extent.

The city's share of the $7,073,000 will be larger than that of the schools. It will amount to $1,647,506.39 and will be distributed as follows:

City—	Balance.
Judgment tax	$ 29,256.22
Cash fund tax	67,520.75
Corporate purposes	925,034.35
Bonds and interest on bonds	432,132.82
Public library maintenance	47,264.53
Public library buildings	89,640.56
Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium	54,016.60
Policemen's pension	30,384.34
Firemen's pension	20,256.22
Total	$1,647,506.39

The city's corporate fund has $13,648,000 of tax anticipation warrants outstanding, according to Controller Szymczak's last statement. The city's bond and interest fund has $350,000 of

Routed Miners Retreat from War Zone

TROOPERS SEND THEM ON AFTER HALT IN VILLAGE

5 Are Left Behind in Hospital.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Coulterville, Ill., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Prodded by the pistols of state troopers, a demoralized mob of 15,000 miners streaked north towards their homes in central Illinois tonight, utterly cowed by the reception which Franklin county deputies accorded them at the county line last night.

With five of their comrades lying wounded in a Duquoin hospital and three others nursing sorely bruised skulls at the homes of sympathizers here, the men who drove into Egypt 25,000 strong to close the shafts of the greatest coal producing county in the state were not disposed to provoke another display of force.

Hold Village Five Hours.

Before troopers arrived to speed them homeward at 11 a. m. the miners held possession of their village for five hours, exhausting provisions at the restaurant, swamping the telephone exchange with calls and choking roads and fields for a mile around. They were in the midst of a final, defiant massmeeting when the state police arrived. Fifty-eight troopers were sufficient to send them on their way.

In a brief resumption of the bravado spirit which characterized their arrival, the miners threatened to lynch a hapless photographer and heard their speakers condemn Gov. Emmerson as "the craven tool of capitalists." They verbally lashed the troopers as 'cossacks" and, while conceding the "disgrace" of their repulse from Franklin county, excused themselves as the unarmed victims of a crew of "murderous gangsters."

Yell for "Another March."

"How many men want to make another march on Franklin county now?" yelled one of their speakers, Pat Ansbury of West Frankfort. A mighty roar of stout determination rose from the men, squatting in the field. "That's the easy, popular answer," Ansbury shrewdly observed, "but if we go back it must be with weapons. We can't face the machine guns of those Franklin county jail birds with our naked hands. Not a man in our midst had even a jackknife. When we go back we must have arms, organization, and cooperation from the other side."

Except for "blundering leadership" the objective of closing the Franklin county mines by "peaceful" picketing would have been won, Ansbury asserted. If the men had followed the strategy which he laid down, the big mines at Zeigler, Frankfort, and Benton, instead of producing coal under the new scale of $5 a day, would be closed, the speaker went on.

Taylorville Events Cited.

"Look what happened at Taylorville," Ansbury boasted. "I was in the first car. When the machine gunners approached I toppled into the road, pretending I was shot. The men jumped from their machines, swarming around the deputies. Believe me, they lowered their guns and became mighty good natured when that happened."

The same strategy should have been followed at Mulkeytown, the Franklin county hamlet, below which last night's clash occurred, Ansbury pointed out. Instead, as he described it, the march turned into a "disgraceful" rout, with deputies cutting off the first sixty cars, some of them delaying the marchers with leaden pipes while others sprayed the pavement with ricocheting machine gun slugs.

Governor Is Assailed.

"This policy of peaceful picketing is out from now on," Ansbury concluded. "They talked of having Gov Emmerson or the chief of the state police lead us into Franklin. We know now that Emmerson is only the slave of the greedy capitalists who hired the Franklin county thugs. We know that at the capitalists' order the state troopers steered us into a trap."

Some one spied a photographer perched atop a car. He set up a yell that the cameraman was one of those whom Sheriff Browning Robinson of Franklin county had deputized the night before. He said the cameraman had turned a gun on them and raised a shout that they ought now to turn on him.

"Get a rope, string him up, lynch

PINCHOT INSISTS DAVIS QUIT RACE FOR RE-ELECTION

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Gov. Gifford Pinchot called upon the Republican state committee tonight to request that Senator James J. Davis resign as a candidate for reelection.

He cited as his grounds the recent indictment of Senator Davis on the charge of participating in the operation of a national lottery conducted by the Loyal Order of Moose, of which the senator is the head.

"Ever since he first became a candidate for the senate, and even before that time, James J. Davis, junior senator from Pennsylvania, has been under suspicion," Gov. Pinchot asserted in his letter to the chairman of the Republican state committee.

"It is not enough to say that Davis has not been proved guilty. At the present moment he is a candidate of the Republican party in Pennsylvania for the United States senate. The Republican party cannot afford to run a candidate who is under suspicion. If Davis should be convicted, his conviction would leave Pennsylvania Republicans with no one of their party to vote for."

Senator Davis in Cleveland last night declined to comment on the Pinchot statement.

"Jobs for 21," City Drama by Pay Roll Gang

A drama in municipal paving was staged yesterday in an alley in the block bounded by Michigan and Wabash avenues, Adams street and Jackson boulevard. Its main motif was the placing of a new brick pavement. The production was paid for by Chicago auto owners.

The players were 21 laborers from the city bureau of streets. The properties were a wagon bearing the sign, "Vehicle Tax Department," which informed motorists that their wheel tax fees were being spent there. When the curtain rose after the lunch hour the laborers, straw bosses, etc., were found in these positions:

Near the Adams street entrance to the alley two men filled a wheelbarrow with sand while a third engaged them in conversation. When the barrow was filled a fourth pushed it ten feet and dumped its contents on another pile. While he was thus engaged his two aids rested on their shovels. This was repeated many times.

Placing Bricks.

Farther south in the alley three men placed the new bricks in position. In front of them a laborer gently pushed sand over the newly laid bricks. At his right five laborers leaned against the wall of a building. To his left two other laborers leaned against a wall.

A few paces beyond were scattered the men who take up the old bricks. At that moment they were idle. Out on Adams street a laborer gravely regarded a wheelbarrow filled with gravel. On a wooden sawhorse that blocked entrance to the alley sat two men. They may have been a timekeeper and a cost analyst, a number of which were provided for in the 1932 budget.

Draws Many Spectators.

This activity, for which the principals are paid from $5 to $12 a day, drew knots of pedestrian spectators. Their comments were as follows:

First taxpayer—Look, Bill, there aren't enough men on that job. (Then counting) One, two, three—there are only 21 men."

Second taxpayer—Yeah, that's where our taxes go.

First taxpayer—It's a damn shame.

They pass on and other groups stop to watch. Their comments are virtually the same.

Today, if yesterday's job is finished, these actors will be on another stage.

SALOON 'CURFEW' ORDER RESULTS IN CHAOS; NO KEYS

TIA JUANA, Mexico, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Gov. Arturo Elias' edict that all bars must be closed at 11:30 p. m. caused plenty of trouble here last night. The owners were willing enough to comply, but many difficulties were encountered, since most of the saloons had not been closed, even temporarily, for years.

One proprietor ordered the janitor to lock up. The janitor explained, "I'll have to go home after the door. I've been using it for years on my chicken coop." Several saloons had no keys.

Cletus Clouse, 22 years old, an employé at the Glenview Golf club, Glenview, was electrocuted late last night when he picked up an electric floor lamp from the porch of the club during a rainstorm. Clouse was about to remove the lamp to indoors because of the rain. First reports were that he had been struck by lightning, but an investigation revealed that he had touched an open socket of the lamp.

Mr. Wisner was chief engineer for the sanitary district for many years.

Ocean Airmen Due in Ireland; Weather Bad

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

OSLO, Norway, Aug. 26 (Friday).—The weather is against Clyde Lee and John Bochkon, trans-Atlantic flyers. Air experts, reviewing meteorological reports, consider they have a slim chance of getting across. Atmospheric conditions are so bad that the local radio station has been unable to communicate with Greenland.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., Aug. 25.—With the plane which was to have made an unofficial race with them to Europe crippled at Darby's Harbor, Newfoundland, Clyde Allen Lee and John Bochkon left Harbor Grace today at 5:02 a.m. (Chicago daylight saving time) in their monoplane, Green Mountain Boy, bound for Oslo, Norway. They have gas for thirty-seven hours' flying and hope to cover the 2,150 miles from Harbor Grace to Oslo in about thirty hours.

CLYDE A. LEE.
[Acme Photo.]

Although numerous trans-Atlantic liners were in the path of the air adventurers, no reports of the flyers having been sighted had been received here up to midnight [Chicago time]. At that hour, aviation experts reckoned, the plane should have been approaching the Irish coast.

Weather Reports Favorable.

Disconsolate after the wreck of their big sesquiplane in Placentia bay on Tuesday night, Thor Solberg and Carl Petersen, the latter formerly of Chicago, were still at Darby's Harbor, preparing to dismantle their wrecked craft. They said they had no idea as to their future plans.

Weather reports for the first few hundred miles favored Lee and Bochkon on their dash across the Atlantic. They planned to fly by way of Dublin, Ireland; Boston, England, and Cuxhaven, Germany.

Lee, who comes from Oshkosh, Wis., is piloting the ship, with Bochkon, a native Norwegian now living in Brooklyn, acting as co-pilot. Hubert Huntington, navigation adviser of the flight, remained in Barre, Vt., from which point the flight started Tuesday morning.

Carry Concentrated Food.

The two men are carrying concentrated food tablets for use in an emergency. Before starting the doors in the cabin of the plane were sealed and emergency gasoline tanks installed.

A hole was cut through the roof of the cabin as a means of entrance and exit. In case they are forced down over the ocean, Lee hopes the empty gasoline cans will give the ship buoyancy.

Lee and Bochkon flew into Harbor Grace yesterday after spending the night on the sands of Burgeo beach.

Solberg and Petersen, who flew from New York on Tuesday, saw their hopes of any immediate flight to Norway disappear during the heavy fog of Tuesday night, when their plane plunged into the waters of the harbor.

The flying family of the Hutchinsons, who are en route from New York to London via Greenland, tonight were guests of lonely islanders at Port Menier, Anticosti island, Quebec. George Hutchinson, head of the family, and his crew of four men, said unfavorable weather reports prevented him from taking off for Labrador.

FAMILY AT HER BEDSIDE WHEN THE END COMES

Wages Vain Battle Against Cancer.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick succumbed at 4:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon to the malady she had battled for many weeks. The end came peacefully after hours of anxiety to the members of her immediate family, grouped about her bedside at the last. Edwin Krenn, her friend and business associate of the last decade, also was present in her apartment at the Drake hotel where she died.

Since before dawn yesterday, all hope for any improvement had been abandoned. The relapse she suffered then, the third crisis in a week, was too much for her overtaxed strength, and her physicians found themselves helpless to revive her.

One Final Struggle.

Except for one final, desperate struggle to live, which brought a slight gain in Mrs. McCormick's condition between 7 and 8 a. m. yesterday, she had been in a coma until her death. Her flashes of consciousness were intermittent from 3 o'clock until some time after 8 o'clock. After that she was unconscious to the last. Cancer of the liver was the cause of her death and it was known for weeks the outcome would be fatal.

Mrs. McCormick died as serenely as she had lived. No commotion of any kind was perceptible to the reporters who had gathered in the corridor leading into the northwest wing on the fourth floor of the Drake for the customary bulletin at 4:30 o'clock. They had no suspicion that the end, so long awaited, had come, until the chief physician appeared bearing a written statement instead of his usual oral report.

Ex-Husband at Bedside.

In the group at the bedside was her divorced husband, Harold F. McCormick, whose devotion and constant visits to her during the last ten days were in line with the friendliness and respect he had always shown her since their marriage was dissolved by the courts in 1921. Others were her only son, Fowler, who alone had never broken the family ties that bound him to his mother; her older daughter, Muriel, from whom she had been estranged for years until her fatal illness; and her third and youngest child, Mathilde. The latter also incurred her mother's displeasure at her marriage, but was reconciled to her more than a year ago.

Races from Switzerland.

Mrs. Max Oser [Mathilde McCormick] had raced to Chicago from her home in Switzerland to be with her mother. She arrived a week ago. Mrs. McCormick was unconscious when her daughter arrived in the city and only a strenuous special treatment restored her at that time, so that she gave her daughter an affectionate greeting.

Muriel, now Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard of Middletown, Conn., had arrived here, in response to a summons that her mother's condition was critical, several days before Mathilde. It was Muriel who wrote out the statement announcing her mother's death, which the chief physician distributed.

Ten minutes after the announcement was made Mathilde was assisted from the suite by a nurse and led to her room near by, weeping bitterly.

Others of the relatives who emerged later were Mrs. Fowler McCormick, the former Fifi Stillman, and her son, Alexander Stillman, and Maj. Hubbard, Muriel's husband.

Nursing Specialist on Staff.

On the medical staff of three physicians and three nurses that had been in charge of the case for the last several weeks was Mrs. Florence Everitt of East Hampton, L. I., a nursing specialist to whom credit was given for having sustained life when the doctors had declared themselves helpless. It was Mrs. Everitt who resuscitated the unconscious woman when Mrs. Oser's arrival last week found her seemingly at the end.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Everitt made a last attempt to restore the dying patient, but her ministrations, so effectual in previous emergencies, proved futile. Mrs. McCormick's rosistance was gone, and the treatment proved useless.

A telephone call from a member of the family was put in for John D. Rockefeller Jr. only a short time after his sister's death. Mr. Rockefeller Jr., who with his wife and son, John Rockefeller III., came to Chicago last week, is with his family at Pocantico Hills, N. Y., near the summer estate of his father, John D. Rockefeller Sr.

It was considered extremely unlikely that the elder Rockefeller would be able to attend the funeral of his favorite daughter because of his advanced age. He is 93, and was too weak to make the trip to Chicago before Mrs. McCormick died, although she had expressed a wish to see him again.

Through his granddaughter, Mrs. Hubbard, the elder Rockefeller had been kept in constant touch with Mrs. McCormick's condition, and had expressed his gratitude to her for the service.

Expect Son to Return.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. informed reporters as he departed from Chicago a few days ago that he would hold himself in readiness to return if her condition took a turn for the worse. It is expected he will come west again immediately.

No funeral arrangements will be announced until later, according to the first reports from the relatives.

Mrs. McCormick had suffered from cancer for the last few years, undergoing an operation at Passavant hospital two years ago. It was revealed at that time that the surgery had not been early enough to check the progress of the disease.

Moves to Drake Hotel.

Her residence in the Drake hotel began about two months ago, when she closed the mansion at 1000 Lake Shore drive she had occupied for many years, partly because of financial losses and partly because she felt it devolved upon her to live more simply when so many families were in need.

As one of the best known women in the world, one of the greatest civic contributors this city has ever known, and indisputably a leader of the social activities of Chicago, her apartment was besieged by callers and inquiries when her illness became public. She continued to receive visits from her closer friends until about three weeks ago and to read all the daily newspapers she had followed for years.

Because she herself was not informed of the nature of her ailment, a request had been made of Chicago newspapers that it not be designated as long as she was able to read the daily accounts of her condition.

Edith McCormick's Death Reveals Huge Shrinkage in Her $40,000,000 Fortune

The shrinkage of another great fortune, at one time estimated to exceed $40,000,000, was brought to light with the death of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick. The gift of her father, John D. Rockefeller, that fortune is now but a fraction of its former worth and, moreover, is largely tied up in real estate instead of the Standard Oil securities that originally formed it.

The origin of Mrs. Rockefeller's fortune goes back to the dissolution of the great Standard Oil trust in 1911 by government decree. John D. Rockefeller Sr., founder of the vast combination, received stocks in the various companies into which the trust was divided and cash from other companies sold. He gave large blocks of stock and considerable cash to his son, John D. Rockefeller Jr., his daughters and other relatives.

Received Stock and Cash.

According to the story told in La Salle street, Mrs. Edith R. McCormick, then the wife of Harold F. McCormick, received shares in the various Standard Oil companies, in addition to cash and other securities. In addition, in 1917 her father arranged a trust fund for her consisting of Standard Oil of Indiana company stock, which produced large additional income.

What the worth of Mrs. McCormick's fortune was at that time is a matter of conjecture. It is known that the value of her securities increased greatly during the war and postwar booms. However, with the Chicago real estate boom that followed the 1921-1922 depression Mrs. McCormick became interested in plans for real estate developments and projects on a grand scale in the Chicago district. The financing of office and apartment buildings, housing developments, and a beach subdivision on Lake Michigan near Kenosha figured in these plans.

In furtherance of these plans Mrs. McCormick formed the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust in 1923. Her associates were Edwin D. Krenn and Edward A. Dato, who had organized the real estate firm of Krenn & Dato. It was through the financing of this trust subsequently that the extent of Mrs. McCormick's fortune and her real estate holdings was revealed.

Investment of $18,000,000.

The real estate boom was waning in 1923 and the trust had large obligations outstanding. In July, 1929, Mrs. McCormick arranged for the sale of $11,000,000 of notes, the proceeds to be used toward payment of bank loans and obligations incurred by the trust. These notes were marketed through the Foreman Securities company, affiliate of the Foreman National bank, and were unconditionally guaranteed by Mrs. McCormick.

Statements in connection with this financing showed that Mrs. McCormick's real estate trust had invested more than $18,000,000 and that its net worth, after obligations, exceeded $10,000,000. As additional security for the trust's note issue, Mrs. McCormick pledged securities that had a total market value exceeding $18,000,000. More than half of this amount was represented by 175,400 shares of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, but there also were stocks and bonds of the Standard Oil companies of New York, Indiana, Ohio and California and of Ohio Oil, Vacuum Oil, South Penn Oil, Continental Oil, Tide Water Associated Oil, Southern Pipe Line, Illinois Pipe Line, Union Tank Car, Atlantic Refining, and Columbia Gas and Electric companies.

At the same time Mrs. McCormick represented that she also had other assets than these holdings and her real estate trusts, largely in excess of $10,000,000.

Real Estate Boom Collapses.

The end of the Chicago real estate boom and then the collapse of the stock market boom precipitated Mrs. McCormick into financial difficulties. When she floated the real estate trust notes in July, 1929, she agreed that she would maintain as security for them stocks and bonds with a market value equal to $13,000,000.

With the collapse of the stock market in the autumn of 1929, Mrs. McCormick's pledged securities dropped sharply in value. As the long decline continued she was obliged to pledge still other securities. According to the La Salle street version, Mrs. McCormick practically reached the end of even her great resources early in 1931.

Bulk in Real Estate.

It is said that the Foreman bank, as trustee, was forced to throw large blocks of Mrs. McCormick's securities on the market despite ruinous prices. In this way Mrs. McCormick was able to pay off the notes of the trust that she had guaranteed. The last of the notes were retired early in June, 1931, at the same time that the Foreman banks were absorbed by the First National bank group.

It is the belief of Chicago bankers that Mrs. McCormick was able to save only a moderate part of her fortune in securities. Therefore, the bulk of her estate would be represented by the real estate holdings of the Edith Rockefeller McCormick Trust. In addition, she had her Lake Shore drive mansion and an estate in Lake Forest, although these were mortgaged. She also had the income from the trust fund established by her father, although that also had shrunk with the lower dividends paid by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

END OF A DYNASTY

In the death of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick Chicago marks the end of a social dynasty and the passing of an unique personality.

Her position in the society world of this metropolis was as definite as that of the first Mrs. Potter Palmer in her day. It remained unchallenged throughout her lifetime, partly because of the plethora of her wealth, which none could equal; partly due to an innate attitude born of her position as the richest woman in Chicago and the daughter of the richest man in the world.

"Complex" Colors Her Life.

That "imperial complex" of her Rockefeller ancestry was the governing influence of her life. It colored her childhood, spent on her father's estate in Cleveland, as she learned the responsibilities as well as the advantages of a great fortune. It characterized her married life, begun so happily in 1895 at her home in Council Bluffs with her devoted young husband, Harold F. McCormick. It dictated her actions in later, sorrier years when, bereft of those she had held dearest, she turned to the world a serene countenance and a superb poise.

Had she lived until next Wednesday she would have been sixty years old. This daughter of John Davidson and Laura Spelman Rockefeller was born Aug. 31, 1872, at their home in Cleveland. She never attended public institutions or finishing schools, her education being received under private tutelage designed by her parents to guide her in the problems she would encounter in maturity when she came into possession of her share of the mammoth fortune her father's oil interests were developing.

Becomes Bride in 1895.

It was on Nov. 26, 1895, that she became the bride of Harold F. McCormick of Chicago, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick, in the Fifth Avenue Baptist church in New York City. The union seemed ideal. A member of the International Harvester family, the bridegroom possessed a background of impeccable social position and a wealth comparable to even if not equaling her own. He had, in addition, a charm and gallantry of manner and similar cultural and mental interests.

They departed at once for Council Bluffs, where Harold McCormick was at that time the western agent for the Harvester interests. With the enthusiasm of youth they entered into the social life of the town, enjoying it to the full. Reminiscence of these early years was one of Mrs. McCormick's pleasures in after life.

About this period an illness she contracted was found to be tuberculosis. The best medical attention was secured and evidently the disease was conquered. She recovered completely.

Move to Chicago in 1897.

In 1897 the young couple moved to Chicago to establish their residence as Mr. McCormick's duties were changed. They occupied the home at 1000 Lake Shore drive jointly from then on until Mrs. McCormick went to Switzerland in 1913. Four children were born. Muriel, Mathilde and Fowler survive.

Muriel is now Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard of Middletown, Conn. Since her marriage Mathilde has lived in Switzerland with her two children and her husband, Max Oser. Fowler, who married Mrs. Fifi Stillman a year ago, maintains a home at Barrington and an apartment in Chicago.

Harold F. McCormick, who married a second time and later was divorced, has traveled extensively during the last few years and has been in Chicago only occasionally, though he retains his residence at 675 Rush street. Of late he has lived for the most part in California.

Democracy Only a Word.

Patrician to the tips of her fingers, this daughter of the Rockefellers knew democracy only as a word in the dictionary. No crowned and sceptered ruler ever possessed a more prodigious pride. She met queens and princes on terms of equality and was accepted by them for the unusual and accomplished personage that she was. Yet the austere manner the public knew was only one side of a nature that was warmly, deeply human.

Grief and trouble among her friends inevitably found Mrs. McCormick extending not only sympathy but assistance in person. No service she could render was neglected. As for her private philanthropies, the extent of the help she dispensed both in cash and in personal encouragement to scores of men and women who were merely acquaintances can be estimated only as the recipients reveal these incidents. She never discussed them.

Refuses Explanations.

One of the characteristics of her "imperial complex" was her refusal to be drawn into either defense or explanation of any action, regardless of public opinion. For a whim, she could and did cancel a luncheon planned for 200 persons, almost at the last moment, without a word of explanation. Her guests waited for reasons that were not forthcoming.

"Were you taken ill?" some one asked.

"No," was the terse answer.

"Then perhaps some member of the family was indisposed?"

"No." That was all, and there the matter ended.

This was an infinitely minor episode, however, compared to the maelstrom she faced when the world decided she must be planning marriage with Edwin Krenn, the young Swiss architect she met during her long residence abroad. For months the barrage of inquiry beat at her doors, swirled around her goings and comings, blew upon her in public and in private. Columns of predictions and of purported accurate information were printed.

Curiosity Wanes Unsatisfied.

Disdainfully she refused to yield a syllable about her intentions. Triumphantly she saw the storm of gossip spend itself at last in whisperings, in fluttering recurrences of the rumor that endured until her death. Neither persuasion nor guile prevailed against her resolution, though both were practiced assiduously by friend and foe.

Of this close companionship with the blond young Swiss that featured her later years, so much had been conjectured and so little known that a frank comment was made yesterday by one of Chicago's most prominent men, whose sincerity and information are beyond doubt.

"People have speculated for years," he declared, "on the friendship of those two people. Frequent insinuations heard were absolutely, entirely false. It is difficult to explain to any one who did not know Mrs. McCormick. But just as surely as there was a meeting of minds there, a responsive companionship that became as necessary to her as food and drink, so surely would her background and personality have discarded the young architect had she even considered a second marriage, which I am positive she never did.

"In the final phase of her life, I believe that friendship, tested and found true, was her only consolation, for her last days were tragic—tragic!"

From sources close to Mrs. McCormick, evidence has been received lately of the enduring quality of Edwin Krenn's friendship for his benefactress. When her financial difficulties were at their worst a few months ago, it was learned, he tossed into the market his entire personal fortune, approximately $1,250,000 in gilt edge securities, in an attempt to bolster her toppling investments. It was a futile gesture, for the amount was negligible compared to the funds needed and procured later from other sources. Yet he made it as a matter of course.

All the ten years he had been in Chicago, Krenn's leisure had been Mrs. McCormick's to command. During the opera season he escorted her five nights a week, for music was her passion and her talent. At other times he was on hand six nights out of seven, to squire her to one of the neighborhood cinemas she patronized so consistently. Because of an obsession against trains, she refused to travel, so his farthest journey in that decade was a motor trip to a nearby town.

Train Journey an Ordeal.

It was this deeply rooted fear of trains that was one of the major reasons for her long residence abroad. When finally her marital and financial affairs demanded her presence in Chicago, a physician made the trip with her. She found it a terrific ordeal.

As for the moving picture excursions, she scorned to make them incognito. No little amusement was registered by the populace on numerous occasions as the imported limousine known to all Chicago arrived at one of the tiny film houses, often for a ten cent show. Mrs. McCormick and Krenn, impervious to the ogling and giggling, left the chauffeur and footman outside, rigid and silent in their plum colored livery, ignoring witty sallies from the sidelines as their employer enjoyed the performance within.

Reserves Humor for Friends.

A casual acquaintance could encounter her many times without suspecting that behind her grave exterior was a keen capacity for humor. That was reserved for her inner circle. But when she was in the mood to unbend no one could be gayer, more informal. She had a gift of mimicry that more than once amused a group of intimates, and she could tell a story wittily and well.

There were many things she disliked, but one she loathed—lapse from good manners. No quicker, surer way existed to lose her favor. Always punctilious herself, she demanded the same from her guests. It was another phase of the social supremacy she maintained — the prime element that lifted her every entertainment to the status of a function.

This same dominating sense of form took her smoothly, conqueringly through the most trying episodes of her life. It served her when her world hung breathless on every action, avid for the slightest ripple of emotion to disturb the surface smile that deceived only a few, and when another woman had the name she had worn so proudly and scintillated before her eyes with the husband who was her one great romance.

Room Awaits Master's Return.

Ever since the divorce court broke her matrimonial ties with Harold F. McCormick in 1921, even though she charged desertion in filing the plea she had made, his room in the mansion at 1000 Lake Shore drive was kept in momentary readiness for his return. Every year on her birthday morning there was delivered to her a florist's box containing a single perfect rose, with his card inclosed.

Their separation had taken place in Zurich in 1918, said to have been precipitated by Mrs. McCormick's absorption in the psychological theories and teachings of Dr. Carl Jung. She had spent several years in Zurich as his patient and student. Dr. Jung had been an associate of Dr. Sigmund Freud and had drawn around him quite a colony in the Swiss city. Another of his students was Edwin Krenn, at that time struggling to gain a foothold in his profession of architecture.

Pride Survives Blow.

In September of 1921 Mrs. McCormick arrived in this country. In December she entered her petition for divorce. It was granted the same day. Less than a year later her former husband confirmed rumors of his interest in the Polish singer, Ganna Walska, by marrying her abroad before the year stipulated by Illinois law had expired. Those who knew said of the former Edith Rockefeller that it broke her heart, but did not bend her pride.

There was the incident when she first encountered Harold McCormick, after he had brought his bride back to his home city and remarried her under the laws of this country. It happened at a meeting of the board of directors of the John McCormick Institute for Infectious Diseases, which they had founded jointly in memory of a son who died of typhoid. As her motor drew up before the hotel where the gathering was scheduled a panicky acquaintance rushed forward breathlessly to report that "it might be awkward," as Mr. McCormick was there.

Bridge Chasm of Divorce.

Without reply Mrs. McCormick left her car and went in, to extend her hand cordially to her one time husband. Her dignity and his courtliness bridged the chasm of divorce with an easy friendliness.

"How do you do, Harold?" she greeted him. "I'm glad to see you."

"I'm glad to see you too, Edith," he replied. They were the only unruffled persons in the room.

This semi-private encounter was one thing. Quite another was the brilliant ball held at a downtown hotel where the atmosphere was electric with the appearance of Ganna Walska McCormick on her husband's arm in one central box above the dance floor, and Edith Rockefeller McCormick in the one opposite. It marked the first public participation of the recently married pair in Chicago society.

Neither by word or sign did Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick betray the slightest variation from her normal attitude. All evening long she chatted and smiled with her party under the scrutiny of hundreds of eyes, perfectly aware of the furore but ignoring it completely.

Opposes Mathilde's Marriage.

Her departure from Switzerland cut her off at one fell swoop from both her daughters, Muriel and Mathilde, as well as from her husband. Mathilde, then only 16, had fallen in love with Max Oser, Swiss riding master, and was married despite her mother's determined efforts to prevent it. Muriel's alienation from her mother dated from the same time, it was reported, based on her objection to Edwin Krann's presence. Since their father had aided the Oser romance, both Mathilde and Muriel arrayed themselves on the paternal side of the breach and remained there until recent weeks, when a reconciliation was effected.

Of late months, as her illness developed, Mrs. McCormick had lost interest in everything. Reading had been her chief recreation. She abandoned it entirely. Music had absorbed her. She forgot it. Bedridden, she was denied the films she had enjoyed. Languages she discarded last of all. For years she had conversed fluently in French and German. Spanish, acquired of late months, was her pride and joy. One of the biggest thrills she experienced of late years, she told callers, was in turning on a radio to a broadcast from South America, and discovering she could understand the songs and speeches.

Believes in Reincarnation.

Until the end, the tenets she had studied in Switzerland exerted a tremendous influence on her. To her friends they were weird and more than a little disconcerting. It was well known that she considered herself a reincarnation from some former existence, but at one memorable dinner party she gave they created a sensation. The time was some years back, when the tomb of King Tut-Ankhamen was opened in Egypt.

The man at her right, fascinated with the topic, was holding forth to her about the beauties of the relics discovered. Flashing an odd look at him, his hostess asked whether he had noticed the detail of one chamber in particular. He had and remarked on the beauty of a couch and a small stool before it. Mrs. McCormick's eyes sparkled.

"That was it," she said quickly and earnestly. "That little chair. As soon as I saw it I knew. I had known for a long time that I had lived on earth before, but when I saw that chair I remembered. That was my chair and I was Seti I, the child wife of Tut-Ankhamen. It was a lock of my successor's hair that was found in the tomb."

Sees Happy Era for World.

Similarly, her strange mental processes convinced her that on Jan. 1 of 1933 the world was to enter another cycle than that it had followed for thousands of years. This new cycle, she predicted, would be far more happy and tranquil than the former. It was a creed to which she held tenaciously.

Odd as these ideas appeared to the rest of the world, they were part and parcel of the major portion of her life. Otherwise her mentality was conceded to be tremendously keen, her capacity for business transactions extensive, though [as events proved] faulty. Her early training in handling her wealth directed her judgment again and again, justifying her in numerous instances.

The same training had acquainted her with the best the world had to offer and, though she did not squander money, she demonstrated repeatedly an appreciation of achievement in art by paying generous, sometimes staggering sums for masterpieces. A list of her purchases over a period of years would dazzle monarchs as well as ordinary men.

Pearls World's Finest.

There were her jewels. She herself placed the valuation of her pearl necklace at two million dollars. It was a lengthy rope of perfectly matched gems, reputed to be the finest in the world today. There were the Catherine of Russia emeralds, great green stones for which she paid a famous New York establishment more than a million and a half. The Russian empress had worn them in a setting of rhinestones, a beautiful example of native art, but Mrs. McCormick, eternally individual, declared she was no Catherine and that the setting would have to be changed. It was. Thereafter they glowed upon the neck and dangled from the ears of Edith McCormick on gala opera nights.

Another million was represented in her diamond set—a dog collar and a matching tiara, both outmoded as to setting but unrivaled as to the quality of the stones. Various and sundry pendants, brooches, bracelets, and watches, each worth a small fortune in itself, brought up the value of her gems to an estimated $5,000,000.

Donates Art Treasures.

The Art Institute of Chicago is indebted to this generous patron for some of its major treasures. Numerous art objects from her collections were also loaned for exhibit, as in the case of "The Emperor's Carpet," a famed 600 year old Persian rug once the property of Peter the Great of Russia. The purchase price of this huge and exquisite piece was reliably reported as $120,000.

In the library of her Lake Shore drive residence was a priceless collection of books, the most important of which was a complete set of first editions of the works of Ruskin, which it had taken eighteen years of painstaking workmanship to rebind. For another book, "Helyas, Knight of Swanne," from Robert Hoe's library, printed on vellum, she had parted gladly with $21,000.

No monetary value ever was quoted for the famous gold dinner service she purchased, which was created for the Emperor Napoleon and bore his imperial crest and initial "N." This service, used on such state occasions as Mrs. McCormick's dinners for the crown prince and princess of Sweden and the queen of Rumania, was complete and extensive, including massive urns and bowls, platters and tureens, plates and incidental dishes. Its authenticity was well established.

Visions Roman Palace.

As to the huge house in which she extended this princely hospitality, it was widely reported to have been a wedding gift to her from her father, John D. Rockefeller, but this was not true. The town house, together with the Lake Forest estate known as Villa Turicum, was purchased by Mrs. McCormick from her husband at the time of their divorce for a total exceeding $3,000,000. She repeatedly had expressed her intention to raze the home on the drive and to erect a Roman palace in its stead, but apparently abandoned the notion in the last years of her life.

She always cherished an affection for the city that was her home. Her benefactions in a civic way were extensive and Chicago owes her much. The ambitious plans for the zoological gardens that will eclipse every other was born of her interest in the behavior of animals, and made possible through her gift of the land that provided the site.

Civic Opera Promoter.

She and her former husband, Harold McCormick, were by far the most lavish donors to the Chicago Civic Opera, as well as its earliest promoters. Only Samuel Insull approached them in the munificence of their bequests. Up to their legal separation in 1921 they had given a total of $5,000,000, and arranged at that time to turn over $2,000,000 more in scenes and settings owned by them.

In the opera list, as elsewhere, Mrs. McCormick exercised her "imperial complex" by demanding and securing the recognized choice of boxes. Her famous "Box 5" in the old Auditorium and its successor, "Box 1" in the new Civic Opera house, she regarded as hers by right of her conceded social sway and financial support of the enterprise, and it is doubtful whether she would have stepped inside either theater had she failed to secure this priority.

It is said Mrs. McCormick accepted publicity about every phase of her life as inevitable, the front page as her due. She never sought it, often denied requests for material about herself. But no reporter or photographer ever received a discourtesy at her hands. Except when she considered the subject too intimate, she answered a question or posed for a picture repeatedly, promptly, patiently.

Which is as good an index as any, perhaps, as to why her biography runs into columns.

British Scientists Here to Make Study.

Dr. F. W. Aston, fellow of the Royal society and winner of the Nobel prize in chemistry in 1922 for his research into the structure of the atom, arrived in Chicago last night with a party of seventeen members of the Royal Astronomical Society of London for a three day visit. The party is enroute to eastern North American points to study the eclipse of the sun on Aug. 31.

Dr. Aston will join a group of professors from Cambridge university, England, at Magog, Que., to study the polarization of the corona through instruments that have been set up for that purpose. He is a professor at Trinity college, Cambridge. Through a study of the corona, which is the gaseous flames that surrounds the sun, during the eclipse, Dr. Aston hopes to learn something more of the nature of atoms.

'Unfortunately, the Einstein theory will not be touched upon in the observation of this eclipse," Dr. Aston said. 'We plan to center our attention upon the corona. The green coronium line [in the spectrum] previously has been considered an element. We hope to determine during this eclipse what atom composes that line, and thus add to our knowledge of the structure of the atom. The observations will also help us to calculate how fast the universe is dying."

The party is staying at the La Salle hotel. They plan to visit the Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., today, returning to the city for dinner, and to visit the Adler plantarium before departing tomorrow. The planetarium is sending an expedition to Island Point, Vt., which will be assisted by officials of the Elgin National Watch company in making observations during the eclipse.

HOOVER SOFTENS ARMY SENTENCE OF LIEUT. CLARK

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—(AP)—President Hoover has modified the court martial sentence imposed upon First Lieut. Francis J. Clark of the infantry through an order eliminating the six years of imprisonment, but confirming the dismissal of Clark from the army.

The war department issued a statement on the case today. Lieut. Clark was tried at Fitzsimons General hospital in Denver, March 8, 1932, on a charge of criminal assault and being drunk and disorderly, and convicted on both counts.

The President held there had been improper admission of hearsay evidence in connection with the assault charge, and that because of Clark's intoxicated condition there was a reasonable doubt as to whether he was capable of the criminal intent charged in the specifications.

Clark is 32 and a native of Oregon. He served as a private during the war and entered West Point in 1920, graduating in 1924.

RULE BY PEOPLE KICKED AGAIN BY GERMAN REGIME

by SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—Another blast against the parliamentary system in Germany was touched off today by Franz Bracht, Chancellor Franz von Papen's appointee as deputy federal commissioner in the state of Prussia. He informed the National Socialist president of the Prussian diet, Hans Kerri, that he did not consider himself responsible to the Prussian parliament.

Bracht stated that since he was appointed by order of President Paul von Hindenburg he is responsible to him and nobody else. The Prussian diet will discuss the matter when it meets Aug. 30, the same day the new reichstag convenes.

Warns Against Von Papen.

The Centrist newspaper Germania today warned the nation to frustrate Von Papen's plans to cling to power and govern against or without the reichstag.

"We call upon the whole nation to be on guard to protect the constitution," it pleaded.

Von Papen is now considering the possibility of authorizing a referendum to give him power to alter the constitution without damaging too much his promise to respect it.

Krupp von Bohlen and other big industrialists conferred with Von Papen today on the government's economic program, which Von Papen will reveal in a speech to an association of Westphalian farmers Sunday.

Row Looms in Reichstag.

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Some commentators declared today that the federal government is proceeding in the hope that when the new reichstag convenes Aug. 30 there will be such a row it will be possible for the cabinet to decree dissolution and govern the nation under a practical dictatorship.

In obedience to custom Clara Zetkin, a communist, is to preside at the opening meeting as she is the oldest member. Newspapers of the right have expressed indignation, saying that for her to act as speaker even for one day would be an "insult to Nationalist Germany."

The police president today suspended the communist paper, Rote Fahne, for eight days because of violent attacks on the emergency speed courts.

SPAIN SNATCHES GENERAL FROM A FIRING SQUAD

Spares Rebel Chief's Life; Riots Break Out.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Aug. 25.—The Spanish republic tonight showed its mercy to Gen. José Sanjurjo, the military prima donna it inherited from former King Alfonso and to whom it paid its highest salary, only to have him rise in revolt in Seville.

ALCALA ZAMORA.

At 8:45 o'clock tonight Premier Manuel Azana, after a stormy cabinet session, carried to President Niceto Alcala Zamora a decree commuting the death sentence handed down this morning by the military section of the Supreme court to life imprisonment. The president gladly signed it.

Thus the florid warrior, hero of many campaigns in Morocco and Madrid night clubs, escaped inspecting, as his last job, a firing squad which, according to law, would have functioned by 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Want Him in Parliament.

Already the town of La Guardia, in the reactionary province of Navarra, wants to elect Sanjurjo to parliament at the next election, which would get him out of prison. In the meantime he will go to El Dueso penitentiary in an obscure spot in the province of Santander "until death"—Spanish for life imprisonment.

The government is not as happy as the convicted general. Of two perilous alternatives, it chose the one in line with its conscience. The cabinet opposes capital punishment in principle, although three ministers argued fiercely that the blood of many many worthy citizens should be shed before this business is finished.

By extending mercy it set for itself the double task of holding down monarchist partisans in the army, who no longer have the firing squad to fear, and keeping in hand the masses which feel that they have been cheated. They wanted to see that general, symbol of the old tyranny that raised its head again, full of bullet holes.

Riots Break Out.

The government's decision to spare Sanjurjo's life led to riots tonight. The leniency to the general resulted in an outbreak by communists at Gallarta. Civil guards were rushed from nearby Bilbao. One communist was slain and several were wounded.

At Corunna, which is located in the general's home province, the news of the commutation of sentence was received with enthusiasm. Extra guards were posted to prevent antagonistic demonstrations.

Monarchists and republicans clashed in San Sebastian and civil guards stepped in to save the monarchists from being strung to the nearest lamp-post. Several persons were injured. Troops are patrolling the streets.

Strikes are threatened. There is even a rumor of a new monarchist rebellion. Angriest of all are the minority republican elements among the army officers, who insist that they are not protected against ambitious generals, or, for that matter, against any communistic corporals. In parliament the feeling that the army must be dissolved, now that discipline has been destroyed, is growing.

Sanjurjo Unruffled.

The defendants, who were found guilty of conspiring to place Don Juan, third son of former King Alfonso, on the vacated throne, went to bed last night without an intimation of their fate. This morning news of the death sentence reached them. Of all the generals and high officers confined to cells Sanjurjo was the only one to eat breakfast and maintain his calm. The general's son, Capt. Justo Sanjurjo, with tears in his eyes, came to his cell.

"Let's play cards," the father said, which they did with peas for counters.

It was revealed today that the general's son, who was liberated by the court, was secretly married in prison before the trial to the daughter of one of the Supreme court judges, who did not act. Republicans, who have little confidence in the judiciary they inherited from former King Alfonso's régime, are convinced that Capt. Sanjurjo would not have been freed if it had not been for the cause of solidarity among the judges.

Although the sentence was officially announced at noon, it was not generally known until the first papers appeared at 7 o'clock tonight. Petitions for clemency began to pour in.

The first was from Senora Galan, mother of Capt. Fermyn Galan, whose execution by the monarchists régime after the republican revolt at Jaca helped to speed the advent of the republic. She appealed personally to President Zamora in the former royal palace. The widow of Capt. Hernandez, Galan's companion in arms, also pleaded mercy. Then came the Madrid Bar association and the Madrid Medical association.

News of the death sentence cast a gloom in the so-called model Madrid prison, which is packed with nobles and gentlemen who contributed as high as $100 to the rebellion. They have been enjoying themselves with the food and drink, and even champagne, brought in by relatives. Nobody begrudges them that because they are soon to go into exile in the Villa Cisneros stockade on a windswept cape of the African coast between the Sahara and the Atlantic.

Two of Sanjurjo's accomplices were sentenced to prison. Gen. Herranz, Sanjurjo's lifelong companion in arms, received 30 years, and Lieut. Col. Infantes, 12 years. Their sentences were not altered.

Iowa Farm Strikers Released; Prevents an Assault on Jail

BULLETIN.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Eight passenger buses and three large motor vehicles were in readiness in Camp Dodge tonight to carry 250 troops and equipment to the Council Bluffs farm holiday picketing sector or any other Iowa point should they be ordered by Gov. Turner. The guardsmen are in their annual encampment at Camp Dodge. The buses were ordered by Maj. R. A. Lancaster as a precautionary measure.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—More than 1,000 farmers marched on the county jail here late today and demanded that 61 men jailed for picketing in the farmers' strike be liberated. Sheriff P. A. Lainson released 55 pickets on bond after the advancing farmers declared they were prepared to assault the courthouse building to free their comrades.

The prompt release of most of the imprisoned picketers averted trouble temporarily. In the excitement of preparing to resist the advancing farmers, Claud Dail, newly sworn in as a deputy sheriff, was killed while receiving instructions in the use of a sawed-off shotgun, Joseph Ludwig, another deputy, was wounded when the gun was accidentally discharged.

Twelve Under Sentence.

Twelve of the men had been sentenced to 30 days in jail or to pay $100 fines, but they also were released on $100 property bonds.

The 55 farmers had been arrested after clashes in which Pottawatamie county highways, tied up by farmer pickets, were cleared by deputy sheriffs who hurled tear gas bombs and displayed revolvers. Despite the growing tension, Gov. Dan Turner of Iowa declared the strike situation did not warrant the calling of Iowa National Guardsmen to duty.

As the imprisoned farmers left the jail, a crowd of sympathizers outside looked on. A heavy cordon of policemen, armed with shotguns and machine guns, were on guard about the courthouse and jail.

Picketing on the roads leading into Council Bluffs was renewed shortly after the imprisoned men were released. Sheriffs' deputies estimated 3,000 men were guarding the roads.

Free 88 at Sioux City.

At Sioux City, where the picketing started more than a week ago, the blockade was broken when Sheriff John A. Davenport ordered the pickets to disband and jailed 88 of them when they failed to obey. Later, the prisoners were released.

There was some jeering at the law enforcement officers but the crowd dispersed soon afterward. The released men were not made to give any promises concerning their future conduct, so they are free to return to picket duty, it was said.

Though no further clashes occurred at Sioux City tonight, the pickets maintained their positions along the roads.

In an address today to the "law abiding citizens of Woodbury county," Sheriff Davenport said, "Realizing that the farmers have been receiving far too little for everything upon which they depend for a living, I have been patient beyond measure with them in their effort to secure better prices.

Peace Promises Broken.

"I have been assured repeatedly by the representatives of the striking farmers that no violence would be used; that no person would be molested and that the peace would be preserved.

"These promises have been broken again and again.

"It is my duty as sheriff to see that the highways in Woodbury county are kept open and I will do all in my power to keep them open."

BREWER PABST HERE ON WAY TO HOOVER PARLEY

Fred Pabst, the Milwaukee brewer, attended a luncheon in his honor in the bungalow on the roof of the Sherman hotel yesterday between trains. He was en route to Washington for the White House business conference of leaders of commerce and industry to be opened by President Hoover today. Mr. Pabst said he considers himself a representative of the agricultural northwest.

FRED PABST.

Mr. Pabst is the only brewer invited to sit in the conference on business conditions. He said he does not believe the subject of the legalization of beer and the refreshing effect that would have upon industry at large will come up at the conference and that he, certainly, will not bring up the subject. The brewing of beer, which is dealcoholized and sold as near-beer, remains by far the largest enterprise of the Pabst interests.

"Don't you think the value the return of beer would have as an industrial stimulator warrants its being discussed at the business conference?" he was asked.

"I certainly do," Mr. Pabst said.

Catch 650 Pound Shark with Cuban Bomb Inside

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 25.—Pedro Perez and Felix Fernandez, two fishermen, caught a 650 pound shark this afternoon half a mile off Morro Castle at the entrance to Havana harbor. Opening the abdominal cavity they discovered an eight pound package of dynamite. Police recently confiscated the bomb in a raid on communists. This morning the bomb was thrown overboard from the garbage barge which invariably is followed by sharks.

Wilmette Couple, 70 and 71, Married in Waukegan

Walter G. Luscombe, 70 years old, 1330 Central avenue, Wilmette, and Martha E. Suplee, 71 years old, also of Wilmette, obtained a license and were married yesterday in Waukegan. "We're both old and want to take care of each other," Mr. Luscombe explained later. He formerly was in the brokerage business.

3 HUSBANDS FACE ALIMONY COURTS; ALL GO TO JAIL

Motor Association Official Joins Prison "Club."

Three husbands stood before Circuit and Superior court judges yesterday and pleaded that financial difficulties had caused them to fall behind in their alimony to ex-wives. Not one was able to convince the judge before whom he appeared and at evening they had increased by three the "club" along Alimony row at the county jail.

First among the trio was Ray S. Ashby, vice president of the Motorists' Association of Illinois. He told Superior Judge Joseph B. David that he had married four times, that he was seized upon an attachment obtained by his third wife, Ethel, 6200 Kenmore avenue, who charged he owed her $697 in alimony he has been paying at the rate of $175 a month.

Lack of Money No Excuse.

Mrs. Ashby said that her husbands salary was $650 a month and charged that the alimony order had been reduced by $75 a month upon his petition last April. Ashby asserted that he has not been paid recently and said that the motorists' association owes him $20,000 in salary but the judge ordered his commitment.

When William Ruben, head of the Ruben Metal and Iron company, followed Ashby before the court, both his first and second wives appeared.

Second Wife Offers Aid.

Wife No. 1, Mrs. Fanny Ruben, 1644 South Central Park avenue, told the judge that her husband was $145 behind in his payments of $15 a week for support of their three children. Mrs. Ruben No. 2 stepped forward.

"I'm a trained nurse, your honor," said she. "I'll get a job and help my husband pay up this debt."

"O, no, you won't," replied Judge David. "The law does not contemplate the spectacle of a man's second wife paying alimony to his first spouse. Anyway, your husband has been in jail from this cause before. I think he'll soon get the money and get out."

Normoyle Spoils Record.

Herman Horwitz, 3341 Wilson avenue, had the doubtful pleasure of being the first husband Circuit Judge Denis J. Normoyle ever sent to jail. Horwitz stepped before the judge attended by an attorney and a court stenogrupher. Then he said that he had no funds to give his former wife, Esther, 3604 West 13th street, for the support of a daughter.

"You are thirteen weeks behind in payments of $10 a week to your first wife, but you can pay for a lawyer and a transcript of the court hearing," Judge Normoyle indignantly told him. "I think you can get the necessary money within a few hours. If you can my record will still be clear."

Horwitz, however, was taken to the jail by deputy sheriffs.

FEDERAL SCIENTIST URGES ANESTHETIC IN OPENING OYSTERS

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 25.—(AP)—A mild anesthetic for oysters, to spare them the pain of prying open their shells, was suggested at the convention of the National Shell Fisheries association today.

"For the sake of humanity as well as of economy," said Dr. Vera Koehring of Washington, who is a doctor of science in the United States bureau of fisheries, "the proper way to open oysters is to give an anesthetic. Opening the oyster by roughly prying the tightly closed shell is equivalent to a major operation."

By the use of an anesthetic made of a solution of dioxide, lactic acid and boric acid, the oyster is brought to complete relaxation and automatically opens its shell so that the meat can be painlessly removed, Dr. Koehring said.

STORM STRIKES LAKE CO.; RAIN, COOLER TODAY

A severe electrical storm in Lake county late last night littered the highways with branches of trees and highway police were kept busy clearing the roads for traffic. The storm was accompanied by a heavy rain which fell for half an hour. Light rain fell in Chicago last night.

The storm followed the issuance of last night's forecast by C. A. Donnel, meteorologist of the weather bureau, predicting showers and cooler weather for Chicago and the rest of the middle west today. Mr. Donnel said the wind would shift from the southwest to the northwest.

The official maximum temperature in Chicago yesterday was 90 degrees, equaling the record for Aug. 25, established in 1912. It was the second consecutive day on which the temperature had reached 90, within one degree of the highest temperature for this month, recorded on Aug. 16.

EMPLOYERS SEND UNION PRINTERS PAY CUT NOTICE

Closed shop book and job employers yesterday determined to reduce arbitrarily the basic wage scale for printers from $1.29½ to $1.10 an hour, beginning Sept. 1. Notices to this effect were mailed out yesterday by Harry G. Cantrell, secretary of the Franklin association, 332 South Wells street, to be posted in 500 union shops.

The action was taken, according to the notice, "after exhausting every possible means of obtaining relief from either the local or the international typographical unions." The action, according to Cantrell, has virtually the unanimous support of closed shop employers.

The new scale provides for a five day week of 40 hours, six day operation to be optional, and makes the night scale $1.20.

R. Arthur Wood's Stolen Car Is Found Shot Up

An automobile stolen from R. Arthur Wood, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, 181 Belle avenue, Highland Park, was found late last night in a small woods near the Old Elm Country club. There was a hole, apparently made by a bullet, in the rear of the car and bloodstains upon the rear seat. Police found no record of persons who had been injured and taken to hospitals in the vicinity.

Oak Park Store Bandits Rob 16 Persons of $200

Sixteen persons were robbed by two armed men who entered the drug store of E. J. Ruzicka, 549 Madison street, Oak Park, late last night. They took $150 from fourteen customers and $50 from a safe which they forced Ruzicka to open. They then locked Ruzicka, a clerk, and the customers in the basement.

OFFICE FITTINGS TO BE ASSESSED ON RENTAL BASIS

Loop Buildings Classified by Jacobs.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

County Assessor J. L. Jacobs made public yesterday the basis upon which his staff is now estimating the taxing valuation of office furniture and fittings, in the cases of those owners who have neglected to file a personal property schedule. The basis for estimating is roughly the office rent paid by the owner of the equipment. It is an adaptation of the system of valuing household furniture.

The office buildings have been classified according to what the assessor deems should be a fair rental per square foot. The area occupied by the tenant will determine the value of his furniture for taxing purposes, less depreciation for age, use and obsolescence. The ratios applied are the result of actual appraisals of furniture and fixtures in various offices of a number of buildings by the staff of the assessor.

Divided Into Five Classes.

The office buildings have been divided into five classes ranging from $3 down to 80 cents a square foot. Mr. Jacobs said that character of building, location, and other factors have been taken into consideration.

"This approach assures uniform treatment in estimating the value of tangible personal property," said Mr. Jacobs. "It is a procedure never before attempted."

Only one building, the board of trade, has been placed in the class AA. Its tenants will pay, in personal property taxes, 3¾ times as much as tenants in the Pontiac building, which is in Class D, occupying the same number of square feet.

MISSING BANKER PHONES HIS WIFE; AMNESIA VICTIM

Recovers Memory in Chelsea, Mich.

William A. Ernsting, missing vice president of the First State Bank of Bensenville, who disappeared last Saturday, telephoned his wife from Chelsea, Mich., at 6:30 o'clock last night. He asserted he had been a victim of amnesia. Chelsea is about midway between Jackson and Ann Arbor.

"I've just awakened," Mr. Ernsting told his wife, Edna. "I'm in Chelsea, Mich., and I don't know how I got here."

Sobs Over Telephone.

Ernsting was sobbing as he talked to his wife. He inquired about his children.

Mrs. Ernsting left immediately for the Michigan town by automobile. She was accompanied by a nephew, Eugene Franzen; her brother, Charles Franzen, and Chief of Police Jack Frost of Bensenville. They expected to reach Chelsea by midnight.

Ernsting last night amplified the brief statement he made to his wife when he was reached on the telephone. He is staying at the home of a police official in Chelsea.

"I remember going to the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company last Saturday afternoon," he said. "Then I called on Fischer [Attorney William H. Fischer Jr., 134 North La Salle street]. Later I took a ride out to Washington park. I remember being in the park and then my memory fades.

Awakes on Railroad Tracks.

"I recovered my memory this afternoon while walking along the railroad tracks, about two miles from Chelsea. I had about $18 or $20 when I lost my memory. I have about $4 left now. I must have traveled afoot a long distance because my feet are sore and my clothes are dusty. I do not remember the slightest thing between last Saturday and today."

Ernsting said his physical condition was fair, but that he was suffering from a severe headache. He recalled that he was overcome by the heat in 1908 and that for a long time thereafter he was afflicted with a poor memory.

"Tell every one that I'm awfully sorry my disappearance caused so much trouble," Ernsting continued. "I'll be happy to see my family again."

The banker said that he had no financial troubles involving his bank and said he believed he had not been kidnaped nor attacked.

Mrs. August Wolf, wife of Constable August Wolf of Bensenville, had given the authorities information which led them to believe Ernsting might have been a victim of kidnapers. Two months ago, she said, three rough looking men had come to her home by mistake and had inquired for Ernsting.

Alexander Jamie, head of the "Secret Six," who investigated the case, repeatedly expressed the opinion that Ernsting was a victim of amnesia. There were no indications of kidnaping, he said.

ROUTED MINERS SPEEDING HOME FROM WAR ZONE

him," came the cry. The photographer, knocked from his perch, raced up the road with fifty miners in pursuit. They captured him, smashed his camera, and were tugging him to the speakers' truck when he finally convinced them he had never been in Coulterville before that morning.

The miners let him go, their attention being diverted by the speakers, who turned to roasting their international president, John L. Lewis, and their state president, John H. Walker, as a pair of "traitors." The two officers, they said, had betrayed the men into the operators' hands when they signed the $5 wage scale replacing the old $6.10 scale at Springfield a few weeks ago.

New Unions Urged.

Ansbury urged the formation of a new union on the spot. Chairmen of various locals were instructed to call their men in meeting under various trees, in the village school and the church yard. They were at their meetings when the state police arrived.

There were sullen looks and curses as the troopers ordered a dispersal under pain of arrest for blockading the state highway. The few balky ones began to step lively when the troopers reached for their holsters. Within twenty minutes the motorcade of an estimated 2,500 cars went winding over the concrete roads of this denuded country towards home.

Individual miners charged that special deputies had thwacked their womenfolk with rods, chased their children across the fields and fired on their aged men in the Mulkeyville ambuscade. Debris at the scene indicated that the invaders had gone through a hair raising experience.

FRANKLIN COUNTY QUIET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Benton, Ill., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Franklin county defenders rested on their arms today and congratulated one another upon the ease with which a horde of 15,000 striking coal miners were repulsed last night when they attempted to enter the county to picket the Zeigler mines.

Scores of special deputies still congregated in the vicinity of the jail where Sheriff Browing Robinson was receiving congratulations upon the way in which he turned the tide of the protest marchers without the loss of one life.

The home guards kept their weapons handy and a detachment remained on guard eleven miles west at Little Muddy river bridge, where the skirmish occurred last night, but no pickets attempted to enter the county. Reports from Coulterville, where the marchers held a last meeting in southern Illinois and decided to turn back to their homes, were cheered when they reached Benton.

7,000 Men at Work.

"Those men are licked," said States Attorney Marion Hart. "We don't anticipate that they will return. Everyone here is happy and more than 7,000 miners are hoisting coal in the county today."

All manner of reports streamed into the section of potential violence. There were some that Indiana miners were on their way to avenge the rout last night, but no such word reached Sheriff Robinson. Another rumor was that Williamson county ["bloody Williamson," scene of the Herrin mine riots] was prepared to repel boarders with mined bridges.

From Marion Sheriff Gottlieb Frick "spiked" this report.

"We have no bridges mined," he said, "but we do have guards on every highway leading into the county and we won't allow any one in who doesn't have legitimate business with us. I have arranged to have fifty guards at each outpost all night long."

Tension at Dawn.

Tension here was at its highest point about dawn today. The strikers had been routed, but they had fled in diverse directions and were reported gathering at several points for a reassault.

The scene at Little Muddy river bridge at that hour was reminiscent of pages from history. For a mile or more on the Franklin county side the highway was strewn with automobiles left by the strikers in their precipitous retreat before the rattle of rifle fire and the boom of shotguns. Machine guns had not been used. Rifle butts were served as spankers and the short, nickel baseball bats with which a majority of the vigilantes were armed smashed windshields of cars whose drivers were slow in turning about at Mulkeytown and heading northward again.

Zeigler Mines Open.

E. L. Berger, manager of the Two Bell and Zoller mines at Zeigler—goal of the marchers—found his 1,700 miners at work today, apparently serene in the belief that their right to work would be protected. Even yesterday, when the nerves of the entire community were jittery with the prospect of the invasion, there were 1,661 miners below in those mines.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUBS MEET.

EMMERSON TO CALL SPECIAL SESSION SEPT. 6

Will Consider Unemployment and N. S. F. Law.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Responding to the request made last night by legislative leaders and civic groups, Gov. Emmerson today agreed to summon a special session of the legislature for Sept. 6 for unemployment relief.

The session probably will also consider legislation aimed to correct the N. S. F. law which stands in the way of the sale of tax anticipation warrants by various administrative units—especially the city of Chicago, the school board, and Cook county.

Call Out in a Few Days.

While no call for the session has been issued as yet, Gov. Emmerson has assured the leaders one would be forthcoming within a few days.

Though the special session is considered necessary for unemployment relief measures, no definite program has been adopted and leaders of both chambers are questioning whether the call now in the process of formulation will not be the "wide open" type that left recent special sessions fruitless.

Names Relief Session Committee.

While lacking in statutory authority for the creation of such a body, Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, during the disability of Gov. Emmerson, appointed a joint committee of the two houses to coöperate with Dewitt Billman, director of the legislative reference bureau, in the preparation of bills for the consideration of the extraordinary session.

Those he named were five senators—Richard J. Barr, Joliet; Martin R. Carlson, Rock Island; Simon E. Lantz, Congerville, and Thomas J. Courtney and Joseph E. Mendel of Chicago, and Speaker David E. Shanahan, and Representatives Elmer J. Schnackenberg and Michael L. Igoe of Chicago, Roger F. Little of Champaign and Michael Fahy of Toluca.

COUNTY TO PAY OUT $7,073,688 ON NEXT MONDAY

tax warrants in the hands of the public, the library has $333,500 in tax warrants out, the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium has $703,000, and the firemen's pension fund $339,000.

McDonough's tax payment will permit the city to retire all of its bonds and interest tax warrants, but the other funds will still have millions in warrants unpaid. The city's corporate fund will have about $12,723,000 in tax warrants still drawing interest after Monday, with little hope of paying off more than one-third of them during the remainder of 1932.

The major difficulty is that the taxes assessed have not been paid, while the local governments have gone on the assumption that they would be, and have spent accordingly. The 1930 county tax bill aggregates $290,000,000 and only 52.7 per cent has been paid. But that 52 per cent is an enormous sum. It represents more than $151,000,000.

With the distribution next Monday of $7,073,000 the local governments of the county will have received the following approximate income from taxes this year:

Governments.	Receipts.
State	$ 9,164,224
County	13,146,737
City	46,683,896
Schools	38,437,966
Total C. and S.	85,121,863
Forest preserve	1,919,584
Sanitary district	10,702,764
South park	7,463,603
West park	2,305,596
Lincoln park	1,315,182
Lake View town	81,358
North Town	67,786
Lincoln park bond	804,865
Jefferson small parks	366,558
Rogers Park small parks	76,844
Country towns	13,452,780
Total	$151,279,190

Practically all the money has been spent, and it does not look as if the property owners are going to pay much more this year.

Gee, how my wool hose have shrunk

That's the pity of trying to wash with a cheap soap! Most large puffed-up bars are lacking in real soap value. They don't make real soapy suds . . . just a stingy froth that necessitates hard rubbing to get things clean. And rubbing shrinks woolens to pigmy sizes. Then, too, cheap soaps often contain free lye which fades and weakens ALL fabrics . . . and works havoc with your hands.

It's Cheaper to Buy Good Soap Than New Clothes

Kirk's American Family is pure soap. It was created especially for the hard water of this Great Lakes region. It makes double the suds of ordinary soaps, and these rich, creamy double-suds safeguard silks and woolens . . . linens and cottons. Colors stay bright and true. No wonder this pure mild soap is used in 4 out of 5 Gold Coast homes! Start using American Family today—and get double the wear from your washables. That's real economy! And no matter how arduous your household cleaning tasks, American Family keeps your hands smooth and soft.

ACT TO PUT BAINS ON TRIAL ON NEW BANK CHARGES

Prosecutors Reveal Plans After 4 Are Sentenced.

Prosecutors moved yesterday to bring John Bain and members of his family to trial on a felony charge—receiving deposits while insolvent—as soon as formal sentence had been passed upon Bain, his two sons and his son-in-law by Judge John M. O'Connor. He found them guilty on Wednesday, of a conspiracy which wrecked the Bain bank chain. Their trial had lasted for 10 weeks.

The defendants immediately took appeals from the sentences, which were imprisonment for from one to five years for Bain, and fines of $1,000 each for his sons, John H. and Robert A. Bain, and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher. It was learned that, pending state Supreme court action on his appeal, Bain does not intend voluntarily to quit his job as a south park commissioner.

Raber Is Disappointed.

Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber expressed disappointment that the younger Bains and Fisher did not receive prison sentences on the conspiracy charge, which is a misdemeanor. He will recommend prosecution of the felony charge, on which all four already have been indicted, principally in the hope of sending the younger men to prison with the politician-banker who headed the chain of 12 banks, he said.

State's Attorney Swanson declared himself in sympathy with Prosecutor Raber's determination "to push the case to the end." He will return to his office today after having taken a short vacation, to discuss the matter with the special prosecutor.

"The only obstacle which I can see to such action," said Mr. Swanson, "is in the matter of funds to pay accountants and auditors to assist the prosecutors. I am going to have to dismiss all the auditors who worked on the conspiracy case immediately because of lack of funds."

In finding the defendants guilty of conspiracy on Wednesday, Judge O'Connor said that while he believed that the banks were insolvent before the crash, he did not believe that the prosecution had made legal proof of the fact. Prosecutor Raber replied then that it had not been his intention to submit complete proof of insolvency but only enough to justify conviction for conspiracy.

Appraisal of Assets Needed.

"Proof that the Bain banks were insolvent before they closed, and that the defendants knew they were insolvent, will not be so difficult as it will be a long and tedious process, involving appraisal of every asset of the closed banks," Prosecutor Raber said. "I shall recommend to State's Attorney Swanson that these charges be pressed.

"If he consents it is my intention to withdraw from that prosecution so that the county may be spared the expense of my salary as a special prosecutor. Harold M. Keele and Henry E. Seyfarth, regular members of the state's attorney's staff, who assisted me in the conspiracy trial, are familiar with all the details of the evidence and fully capable of prosecuting the felony charges."

Resignation Already Written.

Bain's resignation from the south park board was written some months ago and placed in the hands of former Senator Charles S. Deneen, who was his political sponsor in the job. At that time, however, Bain's friends advised that if the resignation were presented before the criminal charges were judged the action would prejudice Bain's case, and Mr. Deneen has not given the resignation to the judges of the Circuit court, who appoint the south park commissioners.

Mr. Deneen is on a motor tour in Canada, from which he will not return until after Labor day. Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude, one of the leaders of the Deneen faction of the Republican party, said, however, that it was his understanding that Mr. Deneen, governed by the same factors which have caused him to withhold the resignation to date, will not present it until the Supreme court has acted.

Other Removal Methods Open.

Bain may be removed from his park job without his resignation, however. It was pointed out on Wednesday after Judge O'Connor had found him guilty, that there are two other procedures by which, under the law, the judges of the Circuit court may declare his position vacant and appoint his successor.

They may call Bain before them and question him as to his fitness to continue as a commissioner. In that connection, it was said, a conviction of crime would not be necessary for removal.

The judges may also receive petitions from citizens for the removal of Bain. They received a number of such requests after the closing of the banks, but at a meeting four months ago laid them on the table for future consideration.

Courtroom Is Crowded.

Judge O'Connor's courtroom was crowded yesterday at 10 a. m., the hour at which he had announced on Wednesday that he would pronounce sentence, but the judge did not take the bench until 11:20.

Bain sat waiting with his sons and Fisher. He showed no evidence of the bronchial illness which supposedly prevented his attendance at the final days of the trial. His complexion was ruddy as ever and his eyes were bright. In the courtroom behind him the depositors in the banks who have been constant spectators at the trial milled and whispered. The courtroom grew hot, and Bain, who began to feel the closeness of the air, was taken to Judge O'Connor's chambers and given a drink of water.

The delay in opening of the hearing was caused by the inability of Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber and Defense Attorney Francis X. Busch to agree upon the terms of the formal finding in the case. Judge O'Connor finally dictated it himself before taking the bench. Bailiffs cleared the crowded aisles of spectators before the judge made a brief announcement.

Judge Makes Announcement.

"Let the record show that the order was entered in chambers in the presence of attorneys," said the judge. "Mr. Clerk, you will accept the receipts of both the state and the defense when they get their exhibits back."

That was all. The spectators milled about again, whispering questions, until the terms of the order became known in the room. Judge O'Connor had denied defense motions to arrest the judgment, but granted a seventy-five day stay of mittimus pending appeal to the Appellate court for a writ of error, the first step in seeking a review of his findings.

CERMAK 'GOES GUNNING' BEFORE LEAVING BERLIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—Mayor Cermak of Chicago purchased a 17th century blunderbuss and two old horse pistols today before leaving at noon with his party for Lucerne, Switzerland, whence he will continue to Paris, Dublin and London.

Earlier in the day German police experts displayed their newest inventions for his benefit. Most interesting of these were trick handcuffs which can be snapped on with a single movement. The mayor took samples along to try out in Chicago.

Matthias "Paddy" Bauler and County Commissioner Charles H. Weber left the party to go to Paris and then to Cherbourg. They will sail on the Europa to be back in Chicago on Sept. 8. The mayor and his party will sail on the Bremen Sept. 7. Weber and Bauler included a study of the nudist movement in Berlin before leaving. One of the physical culture schools gave a special demonstration, first performing with bathing suits, then without them.

JUDGE FREES TWO DETECTIVES IN DIVORCE TANGLE

William and Charles Dannenberg, brothers and heads of a private detective agency bearing their name at 111 West Monroe street, were dismissed by Judge Francis Borrelli yesterday in the Wabash Avenue court on a charge of disorderly conduct. The charge arose from their search for evidence in a divorce suit.

The detectives had been retained by Mrs. Ruth De Lugach, 41 years old, 9838 South Damen avenue, who has a divorce action pending against her husband, Frank, wealthy real estate man. The husband caused their arrest several nights ago while they were in the hall outside his apartment in the Southmoor hotel at 6646 Stony Island avenue.

"We had just climbed a tree across the street from De Lugach's apartment," William Dannenberg explained. "We climbed so high we could see plainly into his place. He was in the room with a woman, so we hurried down and went into the hotel. When we tried to get into his apartment we were arrested."

Mr. De Lugach said that the woman was a maid that he took with him when he separated from his wife. He added that he did not wish to prosecute and Judge Borrelli discharged the defendants.

SUIT BY COUNTY ASKS RECEIVER FOR LOOP BLDG.

Special County Attorney Edward M. Winston yesterday filed suit in the Superior court asking that a receiver be appointed to conserve units from a building which was owned by Henry M. Friend, pioneer State street merchant, who died on the steamer Bremen while accompanying Mayor Cermak to Europe. The building involved is at 32 South State street, on which, the suit charges, there is a total of $22,183 in delinquent real estate taxes unpaid for the years 1929 and 1930.

Ten other suits were filed against owners of other loop income bearing property, among which is the Planters' Hotel, 9 North Clark street. The suit against the hotel charges the taxes for the years 1928, 1929 and 1930, amounting to $140,567, are unpaid.

OPENING DATES FOR SCHOOLS IN SUBURBS DECIDED

Opening dates for Park Ridge and Des Plaines grade schools, and the Maine Township high school, were announced yesterday.

The situation in the suburbs is similar to that in Chicago, some of the teachers having been paid in tax warrants at the close of the last term.

The four Park Ridge schools, which employ 47 teachers and have 1,550 pupils, are to open Wednesday, Sept. 7. Maine Township high school, which has 1,400 pupils and employs 50 teachers, will open on the same date. Des Plaines grade schools, employing 39 teachers and having an enrollment of 1,250, will not open until Sept. 12.

D. R. ETTINGER, MISSING 4 DAYS, IS FOUND DYING

Poison Causes Death in New Orleans Hotel.

Four days after he had been reported kidnaped, David R. Ettinger, 37 years old, president of the Riggs Optical company, 8 South Michigan avenue, was found yesterday in the Roosevelt hotel in New Orleans. He died as New Orleans police notified Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker here that he had been found.

A coroner's autopsy revealed Ettinger had died of poison. Two glasses of liquor were found beside his bed. New Orleans police are seeking a man who shared Ettinger's room. Ettinger arrived at the hotel Wednesday from Cleveland by plane and registered with his companion as A. N. Sanderson of St. Louis and A. J. Blair of Cleveland.

Find Name in Clothing.

Employes of the hotel were unable to determine which of the men registered as Blair. Identity was established through personal belongings, all marked with his name.

The management of the hotel reported the death to Ettinger's attorney, Charles J. McFadden, a member of the law firm of Winston, Strawn & Shaw, who notified Mrs. Ettinger. She was said to be in a state of collapse in her apartment in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Ettinger came from New York to take charge of the optical company. He was planning to return to the east when he disappeared Monday. Mrs. Ettinger asked Chief of Detectives Shoemaker to conduct a secret investigation, declaring she believed her husband had been kidnaped.

Receives Mystery Call.

She made the request after receiving a mysterious telephone call asking for her husband. When she said he was not in she was told: "He's safe. He's all right," she told police.

Attorney McFadden said Ettinger had been nervous from overwork. His accounts with the company are in excellent condition, the attorney said.

New Orleans police reported finding a bank book which showed Ettinger had withdrawn $1,000 from the Bowery bank in New York three days ago, leaving a considerable balance. An analysis is being made to determine the nature of the poison which caused his death.

Lawyers Oppose Teachers' Offer to Collect Taxes

County Attorney Hayden N. Bell and Thomas D. Nash, personal counsel for County Treasurer McDonough, yesterday warned the treasurer against accepting the offer of 10,000 school teachers who have offered to begin a campaign to collect delinquent 1930 taxes. The warning was contained in an opinion given yesterday, in which the lawyers said that the plan would be cumbersome and would involve too many legal technicalities to be feasible.

ROB NEW YORK BRANCH BANK; BEGIN FIRING AS THEY ENTER DOOR

New York, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Five robbers walked into the Irving Trust company branch this afternoon in Brooklyn and started firing, and almost before six astounded employes could understand what was happening had made off with a quantity of money. Officials were checking up the amount. It was between $15,000 and $16,000.

George Moos, special policeman, whom one of the robbers held at bay, a revolver against his chest, chased the robbers' car for a few blocks without success.

Business was quiet when the five men entered. The shooting began immediately. The shots apparently were directed at the ceiling.

While two of the robbers kept their eyes on employes in the bank besides the guard, two others scooped up what cash they could.

In the vault they snatched up a few bundles of bills. "We might as well take this," the leader said, and scooped up and dumped into his pockets some loose cash lying on the ledge behind the tellers' window.

The five stood for a moment, their revolvers covering the employes. Then they made a dash for the street and their car. In a moment they had piled in and the machine was tearing down the street.

AMELIA EARHART CROSSES NATION IN 19 HOUR HOP

Sets Distance, Nonstop Records for Women.

New York, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Amelia Earhart, sitting behind the powerful little Wasp motor that carried her over the Atlantic, put her crimson and gold plane down at the Newark airport at 11:30 o'clock today, thus adding to her aeronautical distinctions that of being the first woman to make a nonstop flight across the continent.

Her flight not only set a record for women but broke that held by Ruth Nichols for distance, which Miss Earhart's Atlantic flight failed to better. Miss Nichols' distance was 2,000 miles. Miss Earhart flew about 3,000 miles from Los Angeles to Newark.

Official Time 19 Hours.

Her official time was 19 hours 4 minutes, only 1 hour 25 minutes more than the nonstop record held for a coast to coast flight by Frank Hawks. The speed record for the same flight is held by Maj. James Doolittle. It is 11 hours 11 minutes. Maj. Doolittle flew a high speed plane which carried only enough gas to take him from fueling station to fueling station.

When she left Los Angeles yesterday at 12:26 p. m. Pacific coast time [5:26 Chicago daylight time] Miss Earhart said that she was not attempting to break any speed records. She merely wanted to prove that women are just as competent as men to make such a long and grueling passage.

Her high winged Lockheed ship was sighted over the Newark airport at 11:20. She circled the field once and brought her plane to rest on the runway. A crowd of about 150 persons assembled at the field closed in on her, but she just sat there smiling wearily at them for a moment.

Didn't Eat on Trip.

Then she bestirred herself, climbed down from her plane and shook hands with Lieut. Richard Ailsworth, manager of the field.

As the crowd surged in toward her she held up her hand.

"I'll tell you all about it," she said with a broad smile. Then she settled her tall, slim figure against the ship's body and continued.

"I figured on making the trip in 19 hours and 9 minutes, and I made note of that estimate on my map," she said. "I drank quite a bit of water and some tomato juice, but I did not open the thermos bottles of cocoa or eat sandwiches.

"Another element was the weather. If it had been the same as I had on my first trip I would have broken a record, but the winds of yesterday and today were adverse. Not really headwinds but side winds, just enough to hold me back. There were a few thunderstorms, but they didn't amount to much."

Phones Her Husband.

She called up her husband, George Palmer Putnam, at his office in the Paramount building and told him, so he reported, that it was a fine trip, but that adverse winds had prevented her from breaking Capt. Hawks' record.

She had flown most of the trip at an altitude of 10,000 feet, following the regular air mail routes. She said she was very hungry. Mr. Putnam ordered lunch to be ready for her when she arrived at their home in Rye.

Her speed across country has been bettered by only one other woman, Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, who as copilot with her husband crossed the country in 14 hours 25 minutes.

G. O. P. CAUCUSES ASSURE BINGHAM OF RENOMINATION

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Early returns from the Republican state caucuses held tonight in Connecticut's 169 town showed overwhelming victories for the state organization and assures the renomination of Senator Hiram Bingham whose repeated cry for "good wholesome beer" aroused some small town Republican drys to oppose him. The state convention in New Haven next month will be easily controlled by State Chairman J. H. Roraback and his wishes for the renomination of Bingham and the selection of a state ticket will be followed.

Tribune Trophy for Air Race

Placed on Display

The trophy offered by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to the pilot who attains the highest speed at the American Legion charity air meet was placed on display at the Tribune's Public Service office at Madison and Dearborn streets yesterday afternoon, and will remain there until the day before the races, which will be held at Sky Harbor, in Northbrook, on Sept. 11.

Five thousand employes of the Western Electric company's plant in Hawthorne responded to a description of the air meet given by Capt. B. B. Lipsner, executive chairman of the air meet committee, with an initial order for 1,000 tickets yesterday noon.

HUNTS 5 MONTHS FOR SLAYERS OF SISTER; ARRESTS 2

Mrs. Laura Bubbert,, 38 years old, sister of William Lute, a police detective of Hammond, was struck and killed by a "vampire" car on March 5 of this year. Lute was assigned to the case, and yesterday he lodged two youths in the Hammond jail in connection with the death.

One of the prisoners, John Kulik, 21 years old, 1130 Conkey street, Hammond, confessed he was riding in the car that struck the woman, police said. He named Tony Allek, 20 years old, of Calumet City, the other youth held, as the "hit and run" driver.

HUNT AND LENOX MAINTAIN LEADS IN AIR DERBIES

East St. Louis, Ill., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Roy Hunt of Norman, Okla., still led the Los Angeles to Cleveland air Derby tonight, though he lost the lap from Jefferson City, Mo., by a fraction of a second to Eldon Cessna of Wichita, Kas.

Chappy Lenox, leader of the Washington to Cleveland race, set his ship down fifth on the same lap, but maintained his advantage in point total with 976.3. S. C. Huffman, Cincinnati, O., was first in the lap and Doug Davis, Atlanta, Ga., second. C. L. Clabaugh, Glenview, Ill., was sixth.

In the western division John B. Vickers, Pomona, Cal., was third, and Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach, Cal., fourth.

Point totals of the western division were: Hunt, 1,456; Cessna, 1,172.76; Art Carnahan, Bloomington, Ill., 708; Mrs. O'Donnell, 590.4; J. S. McDonnell, Cleveland, 285.95; J. L. O'Donnell, 264.75, Long Beach.

Next to Lenox for the eastern flight were: Huffman, 831.15; Fred Dorset, Augusta, Ga., 601.56; Helen McCloskey, Pittsburgh, 556.15; J. D. Hayes, Ponca City, Okla., 450.44; Melville Robinson, Mount Clements, Mich., 404.7.

BRITISH LEADER SAILS TO HALT SON'S WEDDING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 25.—Col. L. C. M. S. Amery, British political leader and former secretary of state for dominions, sailed for England this afternoon from Quebec aboard the S. S. Empress of Australia. He passed through Montreal this morning en route to Quebec, and was obviously worried over the latest exploits of his son.

The 30 year old Amery heir has been attempting to marry Una Evelyn Wing, motion picture actress, but he is under age and has not his father's consent. According to dispatches, John Amery and the actress are preparing to dash for Russia in the hope of obtaining a legal marriage certificate without paternal consent.

"Have you actually forbidden the marriage?" Col. Amery was asked.

"I don't want to take any stand on the question until I have seen my son and Miss Wing," he said. "I have never met Miss Wing."

Col. Amery has been acting in an advisory capacity at the British imperial economic conference and cut short his visit in order to try and patch up his son's love affair.

SETS PRECEDENT IN APPROVING CANAL BRIDGE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—The war department today approved plans for construction of a fixed bridge across the sanitary canal at Justice, Ill.

The department stipulated that the bridge must have a 38 foot clearance above Chicago city datum, or about 35 feet above extreme high water. The decision in this case is understood to have set a precedent for bridge construction over the sanitary canal section of the Illinois waterway.

The Chicago real estate board opposed the granting of a permit for a fixed bridge at Justice, Ill., when public hearings were held on the project some months ago.

At that time the board took the position that lake vessels would be prevented from reaching points on the canal below the bridge unless movable bridges were erected in that section.

ASKS HIGH COURT TO ANNUL KELLY WRIT FREEING TWO

Gem Robbers, Sentenced to Life, Still at Large.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller announced yesterday that his office had appealed to the State Supreme court for an order to compel Judge James J. Kelly to expunge the writ by which Judge Kelly freed Oliver A. Berg and Hymie Dickholtz from Joliet penitentiary. The pair were sentenced to life imprisonment after they pleaded guilty in Champaign county to a $500,000 jewel robbery.

The bandits, who robbed three jewelry salesmen on an Illinois Central train, are still at large, due, it was said yesterday, to the fact that the Chicago detective bureau was not notified that Judge Kelly had sent them forth from his courtroom, free men. The state's attorney's office said information had been received that one of the robbers was recently involved in another jewel holdup in Los Angeles.

Mueller Explains Action.

Mr. Mueller said his office took the initiative in going to the Supreme court because of the circumstances of the release of the prisoners. State's Attorney Roy R. Cline of Champaign county was not notified that Judge Kelly was entertaining a motion to discharge the two from the penitentiary, and as a Cook county judge released them, Mueller said he felt his office should do whatever was necessary to rearrest the bandits if they are found.

Although the move for the release of the two convicts was pending in Chicago courts for five months, Cline said he did not receive official notification. When informed by a jewelry concern representative that the prisoners had been taken to Chicago, he said, he requested information at the penitentiary and it was denied him. The next thing he knew, he declared, the pair had been freed by Judge Kelly.

Records showed that the petition for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Berg and Dickholtz was filed in the Cook County Criminal court on Nov. 4, 1931, and the prisoners were ordered transferred from Joliet to the county jail here. Subsequent hearings were held before Judge Rudolph Desort on Nov. 6, 1931, and Jan. 7, Jan. 22 and Feb. 15 of this year. On the last date Judge Desort indicated that he would deny the petition and Attorney W. W. Smith then withdrew it.

Freed on March 4.

Four days later the same petition was filed with Judge Kelly. A hearing was held on Feb. 25 and on March 4 Judge Kelly freed the convicts.

Owing to the workings of the Criminal court's "official reporter" system, a transcript of the proceedings in Judge Kelly's court at the hearing on March 4 was not obtainable. Mr. Mueller said he would try to get it. He was still trying yesterday to obtain the verbatim record of the proceedings in Judge Kelly's court on Aug. 3 with reference to the granting of probation to three shotgun bandits.

GOVERNOR'S DAY AT STATE FAIR MINUS GOVERNOR

Emmerson Is Ill; G. O. P. Rally a Tame Affair.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Governor's day without the governor. According to the oldest of the old timers it's the first time in eight decades that this has happened.

LOUIS L. EMMERSON.

But Gov. Louis L. Emmerson was still seriously sick today when the hour arrived for the motorcade to move from the executive mansion toward the fair grounds. There had been scarcely hidden thoughts that his absence would have an important significance, but reports from his bedside are that there is no politics in it—that he's a mighty sick man and that, typically, he intends to be regular in the campaign from now to November.

Nevertheless his absence contributed to the general impression that Governor's day isn't what it used to be. The closing of the statehouse—the taxpayers paying the bill—and delightful weather turned out one more of those record breaking crowds, but the theoretical mending of political fences, the sort of deals that supposedly are made in the boxes between harness races, possible fictitious at best, are said to have been lacking today.

A former mayor of Chicago and a former governor of the state who is the Republican nominee this time, Len Small, brought in their troops, but they brought them in the face of extremely adverse reports from the straw votes taken on the national and state races taken by the Springfield papers, one morning and one afternoon publication. Both show that Illinois is going Democratic this year and indicate that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, presidential nominee, might carry the state by as many as 1,000,000 votes and that Judge Henry Horner of Chicago, Democrat, is a sure winner.

State Pay Rollers on Hand.

Despite this discouraging atmosphere there were the usual number of state pay rollers on the job waiting for another Republican administration, regardless of its character, and there were the same faces "at the trough," which is a dirty way they have here of describing the grandstand on this annual celebration.

United States Senator Otis F. Glenn, who has a reputation for taking his punishment whatever it is, was in the front row with Small as the parade started toward the fair grounds, but it is known that there is no love lost between him and the old Chicago city hall crowd and that he would willingly sacrifice his return to Washington if his knuckling down to that outfit were involved.

TAKES POISON; DIES.

Mrs. Louise Draper, 65 years old, 7208 Vernon avenue, died in the Jackson Park hospital yesterday after swallowing poison at 76th street and South Park avenue.

FIRE DOES $8,000 DAMAGE IN COAL COMPANY YARDS

A fire believed to have started from spontaneous combustion caused damage of $8,000 in the loading building of the Consumers Coal company yards, adjoining the Chicago and North Western railway tracks at 2915 North California avenue, yesterday. Two extra calls for apparatus were sent by Marshal Charles Heaney of the 5th division and the blaze was extinguished without interruption of train service on the road.

ROOSEVELT ASKS CAMPAIGN FUND CONTRIBUTIONS

Especially Appeals for Small Donations.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Gov. Roosevelt tonight made an appeal via radio for contributions to aid in financing the Democratic national campaign. His talk was delivered at 9 o'clock during a ten minute recess of the Mayor Walker hearing. In the course of the appeal he mentioned that a follower had suggested to him that no funds were needed since all that was necessary was to use the radio.

"This person did not realize," Gov. Roosevelt said, "that the largest single item in our budget is to buy time over the air. A single nation-wide hookup costs a large sum. But this is justified because we want and are entitled to have the chance to present our views fairly and fully to the people of this country in their own homes."

Gov. Roosevelt, in mentioning that the radio broadcast would be the largest single item in the campaign expense, did not refer to the contrasting fact that the other and greater medium for broadcasting the campaign arguments throughout the nation—via the newspapers—did not cost the campaign committees one cent. This dispatch, for example, brings the Roosevelt appeal to readers without cost to the Democratic campaign though it cost heavily to carry it "over the air."

His Appeal for Funds.

Gov. Roosevelt said in the course of his talk:

"We are appealing to you tonight in behalf of what is much more than a political campaign. It is a coöperative effort participated in by Democrats and Republicans alike to provide for this country new leadership, new policies and a new spirit in government. Under our system the only way to do this is through a presidential election. That chance comes only once every four years. In order that those who take part in this election may make this choice, the issues must be presented to the country. To do this requires money—not great sums, but a substantial amount, given by those who believe in the purposes and policies which we are presenting to the voters this year.

Asks for Contributions.

"To the end that we may have the absolutely necessary funds for this campaign I am asking frankly for contributions tonight. I feel neither embarrassment nor reluctance in doing so, because I am asking you to join in a great cause—a cause that goes deeply into the things that make life worth living. Times are hard. Those fortunate enough to retain any considerable means are affected by the uncertainty of the period and are careful of their expenditures. Many others have met with such losses as to make it impossible for them to give what they ordinarily would give even toward a movement which they feel is for the public good.

"The Democratic party fortunately has no favored group upon which it can call for large sums under the promise of privilege or immunity expressed or implied. The Democratic party is not for sale.

Wants Small Sums.

"We have no Grundys to collect donations which are to be returned manyfold through tariff increases. Moreover, it is my opinion, and I think it must be the opinion of my hearers, that a Democratic fund ought to be raised in a representative way; that an aggregate of small contributions is immensely more valuable than a similar sum given by great financial interests. Our battle is essentially on behalf of the plain citizen—the average citizen—and I would like to feel that every one of these citizens, regardless of his or her political affiliation, should assume the position of a shareholder in a common enterprise, and that his or her contributions should represent an investment that is to return dividends of good government.

"In what I have seen of the management of campaigns of both parties it has been made apparent that in the haste of the campaign there has been much waste of money and much useless ballyhoo.

He Pledges Economy.

"This year it is my firm belief that by careful and economical management, much of this can be eliminated, and we can get satisfactory results with less money. Therefore, I believe that a campaign fund on the basis of former campaigns is not necessary, and, if it were necessary, we could not get it anyhow.

"There are, however, certain necessary expenditures, many of which are not understood."

Gov. Roosevelt here referred to the cost of getting the message to the voters by way of the air. Then he added:

"We are avoiding costly machinery to appeal to small givers. You, my radio friends, will receive no other notice than is now coming to you over the air. But we want every one of you who is interested in our purpose to send along a bill of as large a denomination as you can spare, or a money order or a check, together with your name and address. You will, of course, receive a receipt with our real thanks.

Suggestions Are Invited.

"I hope, moreover, that we may get from you more than a contribution of money. We want you to feel that this is your cause and your campaign. Those who are directing this campaign have no idea that they have all the wisdom that the campaign requires. We want you to write to us, telling us about the situation in your part of the country, what you think we ought to do, and how you think we are conducting the campaign.

"Just as we need contributions of money so we need contributions of wisdom and knowledge. We need the benefit of your thoughts and your constructive advice.

"At this time, ten weeks before election, all feel at general headquarters and at Albany that the advantage is on our side; that the nation is pretty well set to change administration. If the political situation favors us we must see to it that it is not upset by anything our resourceful adversaries may do.

"This is going to require constant vigilance, constant organization, constant circulation of our principles and our arguments, for we must not because of our present confidence make the mistake of leaving a single outpost unguarded."

Gov. Roosevelt then asked that contributions be sent to the Democratic campaign committee, Biltmore hotel, New York.

FEDERATION OF LABOR OF NEW YORK STATE INDORSES ROOSEVELT

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—By an overwhelming vote the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt for President was indorsed today by the New York State Federation of Labor in convention here. The vote was 188 to 12.

The resolution was read by John J. Hullaney, Elmhurst, L. I., chairman of the resolutions committee.

The resolution of indorsement recites that Gov. Roosevelt has given ample proofs of his sincere and consistent devotion to the well being of the wage earning hosts of his native state, sponsoring and actively supporting as legislator and as governor remedial labor and social legislation, opposing with legislative vote and executive veto all proposals and acts hostile to their industrial and civic rights and liberties, and advancing at every offered opportunity the cause of human welfare.

A message from Gov. Roosevelt in which the governor praised the federation for indorsing the movement for shorter hours of labor and a shorter work week was read to the convention.

BANKER O. K.'S ROOSEVELT

New York, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Speaking as a banker and "a conservative business man," Evans Woolen, chairman of the finance committee of the Democratic national campaign told listeners over a nation-wide radio hookup tonight that they could not afford to "risk" returning the Hoover administration to power for another four years. He urged the election of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt a "man whose record and whose personality entitle him to the confidence of all of us."

Mr. Woolen's remarks in full follow:

"I may as well begin this little talk with a confession. I am a banker. I realize that a good many people in this country do not at present consider that a recommendation. I do not know if I seriously blame them for being in that frame of mind.

"We are looking forward to the hope of a better day and the genesis of that hope is the expectation that a man of decision, experience in government and resourcefulness will succeed President Hoover. These are grave times. Mr. Hoover's supporters keep advising us not to change horses in the middle of the stream, but I wonder how many of you are content with the thought that if we take this advice we are risking four years more of the sort of government the present administration has given us?

"The Republican leaders are aware that they cannot defend their administration, so they are driven to the expedient of attacking our policies and our candidate. In the west they are picturing Franklin D. Roosevelt as a Tammany ally and a creature of Wall street. In the east they are presenting him as a dangerous radical whose advent in the White House would make every great industry shudder. Obviously he could not be both. Actually he is neither.

His Record as Governor.

"For four years he has been governor of the Empire state and during his two terms in that high office no legitimate business that I ever heard of has made any claim that he made things difficult for it, or showed any symptom of the radicalism that his assailants charge him with. During that same period I have yet to learn that labor suffered under his administration; that he was bossed or controlled by either or both Tammany and big business.

"In short he has been a normal, able, conscientious, just, and intelligent executive. He has fought corruption at every turn and has been his own man every day of his long public service. He is, I understand, a man of substantial property but of no great wealth, but his own circumstances have never dulled his sympathy with and his understanding of those less fortunately placed. His political opinions are liberal, but their liberalism has never moved him to be disregardful of the rights of business and of business men.

"If there is a better balanced man in public life today than the governor of New York I have never met such a one."

SEN. DICKINSON URGES CITIZENS TO LEAD ECONOMY

Asserts Government Can Only Follow.

Senator Lester J. Dickinson of Iowa, keynoter of the Republican national convention, pointed to individual budgeting as the basis of financial recovery yesterday in an address before the Chicago Bar association.

SEN. DICKINSON.

"The responsibility should not be placed solely upon the government," he said. "The changes of the economic relations of individuals in the period of inflation made the situation more acute. We lived too fast and too strenuously.

"To reach recovery individuals must legislate within themselves to live within their incomes. Congress is doing its task well. In the last session it rode the storm and came through with no more embarrassing situations than it had to face."

Applauds Lending Board.

Senator Dickinson said congress was to be complimented for not having passed a dole, the soldiers' bonus, and measures which would inflate currency. He held creation of the Reconstruction Finance corporation as the "bravest step ever taken by a country."

"Congress was justified in making every effort to bridge business to a point where, with the return of a normal state of affairs, the country can proceed upgrade immediately. We are not like other countries, which have abandoned money standards, and which will be faced with a period of adjustment of many years when the upturn comes.

Defends Public Men.

"I want to defend the men in public life, particularly those in congress. If they had not done as they did we would be faced with the most serious economic collapse in the history of the country. As it is we are ready for the upturn when it comes.

"In the crisis I voted for legislation which I never expected to vote for to prevent a more far reaching and serious collapse. Congress has done its part and will continue to do so, but individuals must make adjustments for themselves in addition to meet the situation."

VOTE PROPAGANDA BARRED FROM SCREEN BY MOVIE OWNERS

Allied independent theater owners will not permit their screens to be used for political propaganda purposes in the fall campaign, according to a resolution adopted by the board of the Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors in Chicago.

The resolution, released yesterday by Abram F. Myers, chairman of the board, stated in part:

"The efforts of Will Hayes of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, and Louis B. Mayer of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company, in behalf of the Republican ticket; and the prominence of Jack Warner of Warner Brothers, and Frank Walker of the Publix-Comerford circuit, on the Democratic side, have given rise to harmful speculation as to the probable use of the screen for political propaganda during the presidential campaign.

"The allied independent theater owners, controlling a majority of the neighborhood and small town motion picture theaters, as well as some downtown first run houses, do hereby declare that they will not, under any circumstances, allow politically minded producers to use their screens for propaganda purposes."

DETROIT POLICE TAKE ROBBER.

William Kahn, 26 years old, who confessed to robbing a Detroit automobile demonstrator with a gun, waived extradition yesterday and was turned over to Sergt. Richard Downey of the Detroit police force.

CLAIMS HOOVER STRONGER THAN FOUR YEARS AGO

New York, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Claims that President Hoover is stronger politically now than he was four years ago, when he polled more than 21,000,000 votes, were made by two Republican leaders tonight.

Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, director of the women's division of the Republican national committee, said the women of the nation are "even more strongly in favor of President Herbert Hoover than they were in 1928."

Charles S. Whitman, former New York governor, declared:

"The President is far stronger now than he was four years ago, the odds are heavily in favor of his reelection.

"New York state is practically certain to go for Hoover and Curtis. Why shouldn't it? The Democratic party had a far more popular candidate for President in 1928 in Al Smith than it has now in Gov. Roosevelt. And President Hoover carried the state without a struggle, even though the Democrats won in the state elections.

"I find in my travels that President Hoover is gaining strength throughout the country and that he should have little trouble winning by a greater majority than he did four years ago."

2 MIDWEST MEN BRING CHEERFUL NEWS TO HOOVER

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Two White House callers from the middle west brought cheering political reports to President Hoover today.

Representative James G. Strong [Rep., Kas.], advised the President that Kansas would go Republican this fall. Otto H. Falk of Milwaukee, chairman of the board of the Allis Chalmers company, reported that the political situation, so far as the Republicans were concerned, was improving.

"I told the President," said Representative Strong, "that his acceptance speech won a great reception in Kansas. The people of the state liked it. It was a great speech." Mr. Falk advised the President that business conditions were improving and that the people generally were more cheerful.

COUSINS (FIRST AND FIFTH) LIVEN WALKER HEARING

Mayor's Women Allies Cheer Clash.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—The Walker hearing, apparently headed toward a longer run than "Abie's Irish Rose," took on some of the farcical characteristics of that heart thumping drama tonight in its largest continuous session.

JUSTICE CHARLES C. LOCKWOOD. [Acme Photo.]

A drippingly humid day had been devoted to such literary pursuits as dramatic readings from thick transit reports. There had been only one ripple to disturb an audience lulled by the soporific words of John J. Curtin, the Walker lawyer. That came late in the day when Samuel Seabury asked Arthur Hilly, New York corporation counsel and a witness, how "many more years he expected to take" to answer a question concerning the ethics of fee splitting by Dr. Walker, the mayor's brother.

Mr. Hilly made a cutting remark about the time wasting ability of Mr. Seabury and his committee and was roundly cheered by a feminine group of Walker followers who have been camped under a life size oil painting of Grover Cleveland since the hearing began eleven days ago.

Peeves Gov. Roosevelt.

The demonstration angered Gov. Roosevelt and he was a bit severe with Mr. Hilly and his hedging on medical ethics after that.

It was after the governor had called a twelve minute recess to broadcast an appeal for Democratic campaign funds, however, that the hearing began to take on life. Just before the recess Mr. Curtin had sought to prove that Phillip W. Haberman, one of Mr. Seabury's young lawyers, was related to a "Mr. Haberman" in the employ of Sailing W. Baruch Brokerage company. It was from the Baruch firm that a Walker check bearing the name of "the mysterious woman" who has been named only off the record vanished about the time Mr. Seabury began to hunt for it. Mr. Curtin intimated that "a Mr. Haberman had sold it to a newspaper."

When the governor returned from his session with the microphone he found Mr. Seabury steaming mad. Young Haberman took the stand and testified he never had heard of the other Haberman until today and that he was not related to him.

First [or Fifth] Cousins.

Then the following illuminating bit of testimony was written into the records:

"Now, how many cousins have you got?" asked Mr. Curtin.

"What do you mean by cousins?" interrupted the governor.

"O, in the broader sense," replied Mr. Curtin.

"Well," said the governor, "we are all cousins."

"Under the skin," snickered Mr. Curtin.

"No," said the governor, "some people call themselves cousins who are first cousins, other people call themselves cousins who are fifth cousins—as I do."

"I'm wondering if we all call fifth cousins cousins?" reflected Mr. Curtin loud enough for the record.

Young Mr. Haberman had convinced every one that he did not know his namesake, but Mr. Curtin seemed interested in relationships and continued his questioning. Mr. Haberman tried to be helpful.

"And whose name do these cousins bear, speaking now of only your first cousins?" asked the lawyer.

"They bear the names of the men whom my mother's sisters married," replied the witness.

A Relief to Stop.

"That is too deep for me," said Mr. Curtin.

"They bear their fathers' names," explained Martin Conboy, trying to be of assistance. "His mother's sisters married men and their children bear their mother's names."

"Mother's sister's children," said Mr. Curtin as he scratched his head. "You mean your aunt's children bear the names of the husbands who were married to the women."

Just about here Mr. Curtin decided to drop the entire matter for the time being and every one sighed with regret.

John J. Mulholland, a banker, was the last witness of the session. He was called to help Mayor Walker explain how he participated in the Mulholland fund after he gave stocks in federal banks to Robert Sherwood, his financial aid. His testimony was less complex than that concerning "cousins," but of considerably less interest, and the audience resumed its nodding.

Gov. Roosevelt said he expected to adjourn early tomorrow afternoon and go to his home in Hyde Park. From there he will go to Seagirt, N. J., to speak Saturday afternoon. There will be no session after tomorrow until 8 o'clock Monday night, the attorneys having other business during the day.

Call Character Witness.

The first character witness for Mayor Walker testified this afternoon. He was Supreme Court Justice Charles C. Lockwood, and, if Gov. Roosevelt permits, will be followed by a long string of loyal friends eager to give the New York City executive a good name.

Justice Lockwood testified:

"I have great faith in Mayor Walker's integrity, and that is based upon a personal and intimate friendship of twenty-odd years and I think a very active interest in city affairs."

Most of the day was taken up by the complex testimony of John J. Delaney, chairman of the transportation board, who endeavored to defend the granting of a franchise to the Equitable Bus company which was later turned down by the state as a "financial cripple."

WED BY CARDINAL

Dr. Louis D. Moorhead and bride after wedding ceremony. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Cardinal Mundelein performed the marriage ceremony yesterday for his personal physician, Dr. Louis D. Moorhead, dean of Loyola university school of medicine, who was wed to Ann Patricia Dorsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Dorsey, 7064 Sheridan road. The ceremony took place in the private chapel of Cardinal Mundelein's home on North State parkway and was attended only by members of the families.

Dr. Moorhead only last year was honored by Pope Pius XI., when he was made a knight of St. Gregory. He had been awarded the cross of the chevalier of the Order of the Crown of Italy by the king of Italy. He is chief of staff of Mercy hospital and head of Lewis Maternity hospital.

The bride carried a crystal rosary, the gift of Cardinal Mundelein, in place of the prayer book. Her four older sisters are nuns of the Sacred Heart Catholic sisterhood. She was attended by her fifth sister, Bernadette Dorsey. Joseph Eppig, a nephew of Cardinal Mundelein, was Dr. Moorhead's best man.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.
For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.
If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste, and your breath is foul; skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.
It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.
But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Regret a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1933 I. M. Co.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

MANCHUKUO.

The speech of Count Uchida, minister of foreign affairs, at the beginning of the extraordinary session of the Japanese imperial diet, is one of the most suggestive of recent diplomatic utterances. His excellency, noting that "there are those in other countries who do not fully comprehend the attitude of Japan toward China," has taken this opportunity to clarify Japan's position and expound the reasons why the government considers recognition of Manchukuo to be the only means of solving the Manchurian problem.

In this exposition Count Uchida asserts that "the establishment of Manchukuo was the outcome of a separatist movement having for its background geographic and historical peculiarities of Manchuria as well as psychological characteristics of the Manchurian people." He disclaims for Japan any responsibility for the Manchurian revolution and remarks that "those who fancy they detect secret connection of some sort on the part of Japan with the foundation of the new state, basing their suspicions on the fact that there are a number of Japanese in the employ of the Manchukuo government," are forgetting many precedents for the enlistment by a young government of the services of foreigners.

In short, without quoting at length from this exposition, we learn that the Japanese government would have the world accept Manchukuo as a spontaneous example of the separatist movements within China, a consequence of a "fissiparous movement in China," and recognition by Japan cannot be a breach of the nine power treaty, which, Count Uchida argues reasonably, cannot be interpreted to forbid the Chinese from setting up independent governments if they choose.

With all due respect to Count Uchida we doubt that his diagnosis of Manchukuo will very seriously impress what our ardent devotees of international altruism call world opinion. He has stated his formula with as much skill as a rather weak case permits. We think it a pity that he felt it advisable to make the attempt, for Japan has in fact a rather strong case for direct intervention in Manchuria to which Count Uchida devoted, we think, too little of his statement. He will gain a more sympathetic hearing for his assertion that "the chaotic condition of China and the so-called revolutionary policy carried on by China under the enthralling influence of extravagant political dogma have been principally responsible for the unfortunate turn that international affairs have taken of recent years in the far east." He is on rather solid ground when he cites the provocations and injuries suffered by Japan through the irresponsibility of Chinese activities in Manchuria. No reasonable people can deny that Japan is profoundly and legitimately concerned in conditions in Manchuria, which is at her door, and in which she has hundreds of millions of dollars lawfully invested, to say nothing of thousands of her nationals dwelling within Manchuria's borders. In fact, Count Uchida could find ample precedent in the policies and conduct of other nations for intervention in Manchuria without in any sense conceding the theory, pretty generally held, that Japan's course of action is fundamentally an expansion by conquest. It would be very difficult for France with her mandate in Syria and her "protectorate" of Morocco, or the United States with the Philippines and Panama in her records, or Great Britain with a long history of imperial expansion occupying India, Egypt, and Iraq by force, to draw distinctions injurious to the Japanese case.

The façade of spontaneous separatism offered us by Count Uchida is a tribute to the diplomatic fashions popular with statesmen since the war. It, too, has plenty of precedent, as the hocus pocus about mandates reminds us, but for our part we believe that international intercourse would be the better for getting rid of such devices and for frankly relying upon the realities which they cover but do not conceal, much less abolish.

In the instant case it would be better for China if it were to give up any reliance upon the international experiments to which Count Uchida's fable of Manchukuo is a concession, and concentrate upon the tremendous task of unification and nation building. So long as this task is unperformed China cannot expect an immunity from the consequences of international irresponsibility purchased at the expense of the peace and legitimate interests of other nations.

TAX RELIEF IN CONSOLIDATION.

Prof. Hatton of the department of political science at Northwestern university is entirely safe in asserting that the difficulties in the way of our much needed consolidation of local government agencies are more largery political than constitutional. He has arrived at this conclusion after three or four years' study of the laws, and he is of the very plausible opinion that "the deliberately developed notion that the constitution is in the way of consolidation fits in with the desires of politicians who wish no consolidation."

We may start safely with his assumptions. What is the way out, if in our democratic situation there is any way out? First, there is need for such a survey of the possibilities of consolidation without constitutional change as Prof. Hatton seems to have made and is ready to present. It should be possible, in short, for our legal experts to present a scheme for legislative and administrative action which if acted upon will bring about a great deal of simplification and economy, and with them improved efficiency. Second, there should be citizen organization to bring decisive pressure to bear upon the legislative and administrative agencies which must effectuate the changes. The latter is by far the more difficult task. Resistance is already organized in the official and political interests to be affected by consolidation. Politics is an enormous vested interest which will protect itself as long and as far as possible from any reduction of its resources through the reduction of jobs, perquisites, and powers. Politics is a means of livelihood and it will not sacrifice its profits except in so far as it is compelled to do so by the superior if usually latent force of organized citizen demand.

One factor is exceptionally favorable at this time. The cost of government is felt more than usually and public opinion is more ready of organization and action. We need definite exposure of government wastes to demonstrate the direction from which relief may and must come. This and a plan for practicable consolidations, eliminations and economies ought under present conditions, so painful to every one except job holders and other beneficiaries, to receive enough public support to produce substantial results. There is time for the organization of demand, since the burden of excessive taxation and its attendant ills is not going to be raised soon. But the task is a long one and every community in the state should get about it.

DOLTS AND THEIR PROGENY.

The children's bureau in the department of labor celebrated its twentieth birthday the other day. The celebration took the form of a radio program in which Katherine Lenroot, assistant to the chief of the bureau, told the world how useful the bureau has become. By way of illustration she cited the increase in the daily budget of mail. She mentioned a letter recently received from a mother who inquired whether she should give her baby gunpowder to cure sties.

The pundits of the bureau were of the opinion that gunpowder is not a remedy for sties and so advised the mother. But twenty years ago, said Miss Lenroot, that mother would have had no one to turn to for advice.

The children's bureau was started because some good people were dissatisfied with the slow progress of child welfare work and wanted to hasten it. It was an experiment noble in purpose. Devoted men and women were employed. Possibly the bureau did succeed in accelerating the child welfare movement. But in view of Miss Lenroot's remarks there is no room to doubt that decay has set in. The importance which the bureaucrats place upon the size of their mail is significant. They are using that as a measuring rod of their usefulness to the nation and the justification for their continuing in business at the expense of the taxpayers.

The receipt of a million letters a day from mothers who want to know if Paris green, taken internally, is a remedy for chicken pox would indicate nothing more than that there are a great many congenitally stupid people in the country. It is a curious perversion of government which leads it to foster incompetents and the mentally deficient. A government which raids the incomes of the intelligent and successful [and thereby prevents these people from giving their children all the educational advantages they might otherwise enjoy] in order to safeguard the progeny of dolts is doing the nation a great disservice. The undoubted fact that the bureaucrats think they are doing a noble work can be set aside as of no importance.

Editorial of the Day

[Cedar Rapids Gazette.]

Daily the "trial" of James J. Walker becomes more interesting to the scandal enthusiasts. And daily it becomes more disgusting to the people of the so-called rural sections where political corruption, if not nonexistent, is prevalent only on a comparatively small scale. Regardless of what may be the outcome of the proceedings, rural people and residents of the small towns of the middle west will congratulate themselves anew that they do not live in the "effete" and sophisticated east. Out here we have only a hazy idea of what goes on behind the scenes of our governmental institutions, it is true, but at least it's an idea. Government in New York City appears to be an enterprise from which the people are wholly excluded except on election day. If the Walker case shows nothing else, it shows that the people on the sidewalks of New York don't know what it's all about. Always under suspicion, they now are revealed once and for all as the true yokelry.

As the Walker hearings continue they slowly but surely are easing Governor Roosevelt, the presidential candidate, out of a dilemma. A month ago, the horns of that dilemma were dangerously sharp. To remove Walker as mayor of New York meant that Mr. Roosevelt would lose many votes in his home state next November. Not to remove Walker meant that the governor would lose many votes in the south and west. And, campaign bulletins to the contrary notwithstanding, Mr. Roosevelt needs all the votes he can get in all three places.

Events of the last week have tended to remove all the perplexing features of the political problem involved. Unless some very startling evidence puts a new aspect on the case, the only safe political course for Governor Roosevelt now is to remove Walker. Many Democrats of the west and south have been convinced by the evidence that there is something rotten in the municipal affairs of New York and they will be even less inclined than formerly to form an alliance with the political outfit responsible for that condition. Their opinions would not be altered appreciably by Mayor Walker's escape from legal responsibility, if he succeeds in escaping. On the contrary, such a denouement of the Walker scandal probably would react strongly against Governor Roosevelt. From the New York angle, the Albany hearings probably have lessened the political risk of ousting Walker. Clearly, then, if the Walker decision is to be purely political, the dapper New York mayor will go out on the seat of his carefully pressed trousers.

To the credit of Governor Roosevelt it should be said that he apparently is trying scrupulously to handle the Walker case in a fair and open manner. There is no indication that he intends to let political expediency have the slightest effect on his decision. It would be ironically unfortunate if his conscientiousness should frustrate his personal ambitions and those of his friends.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. —H. T. W.

CHICAGO CUBS PRIMER.

CHICAGO'S CUBS are not, in fact, immature offspring of large plantigrade ursoid carnivora. They are really bears. For proof, look at their record of sixteen victories and five defeats since Aug. 2.

They are denominated Cubs because nicknames are customary for baseball teams. Many, many years ago Chicago players of the National league family to which these present representatives belong were known as White Stockings. They do not like to be reminded of that, for there are modern White Stockings, or White Sox, to which they bear no resemblance.

Later the White Stockings became Orphans. This playful appellation was because they "lost their papa." Their "papa" was Adrian Constantine Anson, for many years their manager and leading batsman. Finally the Orphans grew to manhood and a change in ownership brought the sobriquet of Spuds. Their owner's name was Murphy. But Spuds were too often skinned. So, although not strictly a youthful outfit at the time, they were so frisky and strong they became Cubs.

That record previously mentioned commonly leads to what is known as a pennant, symbolic of a title or championship. On the south side of Chicago, the word is obsolete unless used in a city series sense. A pennant, for variety of expression, may be called flag, rag, gonfalon, bunting, or several other names of similar import. In the year after it is earned it is supposed to fly from a flagpole in the ball park or ball yard.

Chicago's Cubs are not generally residents of this city, as might be supposed. They come from many and distant parts of the country. Upon agreeing to play with Chicago they sign first papers. The Chicago emblem on their shirt fronts and caps constitutes naturalization. Thus another point for environment over heredity in the time honored sophomore debate. After this naturalization residents of Chicago fan, root, pull, cheer, and applaud for them against other groups of young men, some of whom actually live in Chicago but wear emblems of other cities on their shirt fronts. Such fanning, rooting, pulling, cheering, or applauding is known as loyalty to the old home town.

Most of these loyal partisans do not know their heroes personally, but they always address them by their first name, especially in public at the ball yard, when one of the tribe happens to hit, biff, or crown the ball, pill, or apple for a safe hit or bingle. Such act is signal for wild noise and cheering. If a member of the opposing team performs such act, only mild noise or cheering is expected.

If the Cubs win this pennant, or bunting, for which they are pointing, there will be a world series against the best team of the American league, another organization of similar nature. The winners then become baseball champions of the world amidst civic rejoicing. Of course, baseball is not played all over the world, but no international protests against such territorial expansion ever have been received. If they are, they will be referred to Secretary of State Stimson, who will reply, and every one will be mad. No such untoward happening is anticipated.

BOYHOOD DREAMS.

I often dream of boyhood,
And ride a breakneck pace,
The green savannas flashing while
Warm winds caress my face.
I dream of hunting plover,
Wild sod beneath my feet;
Of driftwood fires on river banks,
Of tangled wind in wheat.

My boy will dream of cities,
Of speed in racing cars;
He'll fly the milky way and guide
His plane by beacon stars.
For dreams are solace ever
For sick or weary souls;
For lives that yearn to find old grooves—
Round pegs in square holes.

CHANGE OF LIFE IN THE MALE.

A CORRESPONDENT wants to know if men go through a change of life similar to that of women, and if so, at about what age, and how should they be handled during that period.

This question has been asked numberless times. Physicians, in turn, have gone to the physiologists with the inquiry. Probably the subject is not ready for solution. Maybe it can never be. There is more than one answer, and the person inquired of must know what is the question the inquirer has in mind before he can reply properly.

Working at the subject from the anatomical and physiological standpoints, there is reason to expect the male to have something of a change of life.

Until the child is about three months on the way toward birth it is impossible to tell what the sex is to be. The rudiments of both male and female sex organs are found. After that, those of one sex develop, while those of the other sex remain rudimentary. Until the end of life every individual carries within the body rudimentary sex organs of the kind that belong to a person of the opposite sex. In some instances there is an appreciable degree of development of these ordinarily rudimentary organs. The presence of these structures implies that every male has some characteristics of the female personality in his makeup, and vice versa. It also follows that every male passes through the rudiments of a change of life when the time comes. So much for the light which comes from anatomy and physiology.

Physicians know, as a matter of clinical observation, that the male, at about the proper age, passes through a stage in his progression from infancy to old age in which there are suggestions or traces of what the female passes through in the same age period. There are types of mental and personality disturbance that are termed involutional. These are especially apt to develop in the female at about that period. In the male there is a slight increase in the tendency toward this type of mental disorder. However, in the male, all these symptoms and changes are minor and easily overlooked. The picture is painted with very subdued colors.

What is to be done about it? Nothing special. Perhaps it is enough to know that it is an influence. The knowledge makes us more understanding and, sometimes, more patient. Life is an endless series of adjustments. The passage from one to another in childhood is rapid and the journey is quite apt to be jolty. Moving down the slope after the peak of life calls for its adjustments. Some make these easily, logically, and sanely. Others fail to do so. The adjustments that the male must make in this change of life period may be a shade more difficult than some others, but they are easy as compared with those of childhood. If a man, or his family, exaggerates the difficulties of the period they make matters worse.

HELPING A POOR EATER.

Mrs. L. R. writes: My little girl is 2 years and 9 months old and weighs around 35 pounds. She is a very poor eater. I cannot find one dish that she likes. She is not at all a sickly child, but I don't think she is as healthy as she should be, as she has a bad odor to her breath in the morning. She always wants sweets. She loves sweet milk and drinks nearly a quart a day. Do you think she has worms?

REPLY.

There is no reason for thinking she has worms. You are trying too hard. She will eat better if you will pay no attention to her eating. If there are other children put her at the table with them. Have wholesome food on the table. Now leave the grans to themselves. They will cure her of her poor eating habits. If no other children are available have her eat at table with the adults. Put her food before her and do not notice what she does with it. Her halitosis appears to be digestive. Would she drink buttermilk and eat clabber and cottage cheese in lieu of sweet milk?

ATHLETE'S FOOT.

G. B. writes: What is a cure for athlete's foot? I have had this trouble for the last three years. I bathe my feet twice daily and apply a liniment, but if I should miss a day they bother me.

REPLY.

Some cases are easily cured and even the bad ones can be kept in reasonably satisfactory condition. Liniments are not of service. There are many remedies available. The best of these are the sulphur ointments or other remedies that contain chemicals that kill the fungus. It is not enough to treat the sore areas between the toes. The fungus lives in and around the nails, in and around corns and calluses, thickened skin, and skin folds. The chemical should be applied to these as well as to the inflamed areas. In some cases the fungus is in the shoes. These should be treated inside with some sulphur compound, and then sunned inside, aired, and dried. Some cases will need the help of physicians or foot specialists.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. J. B. writes: 1. How long does it take to recover from an attack of whooping cough?

2. Is it contagious?

3. How long will it be necessary to keep my children away from one who is just recovering from an attack of whooping cough?

REPLY.

1. As a rule recovery is practically complete in five weeks. In some cases a chronic bronchitis follows. Other complications may develop.

2. It is. The contagiousness is greatest during the fever stage. This, roughly, is during the first two weeks. After that it gradually becomes less contagious.

3. Most laws and rules call for some kind of isolation or quarantine for five weeks. Follow the orders of your health department and see that your neighbor does also.

PROOF OF PARENTHOOD.

Mrs. E. F. A. writes: How can I be sure I am going to have a child? I am 20 years old.

REPLY.

The most reliable evidence is that furnished by the Aschheim-Zondek test. There are other signs.

PRIVATE DUMP.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—[Friend of the People.]—On 103d street is a place that is used as a dumping ground for refuse of all kinds, including scraps of lumber. There are a lot of poor people that have been in the habit of going there for wood, not only to supply themselves with fuel for the winter, but to cook their meals with the year around. Now a man who says he is the watchman forbids the gathering of this wood. Why can't these people be permitted to gather this wood? C. S. O.

Report is made that dump referred to is privately owned and this bureau has no jurisdiction over same.

JOSEPH J. BUTLER,
Superintendent of Streets.

LOANS HIS AUTO.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Six weeks ago I loaned my car to an acquaintance for a trip to another city, supposedly for one week. Two weeks ago I received a letter stating he had found a job there and intended to stay, but that he could sell the car for me there. I wrote to him to do so, but have not heard from him since. 1. What do you suggest be done to obtain either the car or the money? 2. Should I report the car stolen? 3. It has all the earmarks of that. I know where he can be reached, but unfortunately cannot afford the trip to recover my property. M. M.

1. We see no way to force matters other than by employing an attorney.
2. No.
3. We see nothing to show that he had a dishonest intent at the time he took the car.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DENTAL SERVICES.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I took my child to a dentist and asked what the charge would be to fill two teeth. He told me $6, which I paid before he began the work. I have a receipt for this. Now he sends me a bill for $3, which states it is for work on my husband. My husband never was in the dentist's office. The first bill had my child's name on it. Am I compelled to pay this? M. L.

Of course you are not obliged to pay for service on your husband's teeth if no such services were rendered.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DIVORCE.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Having more than sufficient ground, I would like to procure a divorce. 1. What methods of procedure will be required? 2. Whom shall I consult? 3. Upon whom, then, would the expense fall? M. B.

1 and 2. The first step is to employ an attorney.

3. The court would order the husband to pay.

LOAN.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Can I collect money due me for eight years? I have no note for it, but loaned it to a party who, upon asking him to pay up, replies that the matter is outlawed. I asked for no security at the time the loan was made and took no note. Please advise. H. P. K.

The limitation period is ten years from the maturity date on written agreements and five years on oral agreements. A new promise or part payment would extend the period.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 26, 1916.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Sensational developments brought to a crisis the negotiations between President Wilson and the unions on the one hand and the railroads on the other for the settlement of the wage controversy threatening to precipitate a general railroad strike. The President issued an ultimatum to the railroad chiefs. He announced that he would give the carriers until tomorrow noon to return a formal and definite answer to his plan for averting the strike. Following the receipt of the ultimatum the executives framed an answer. This proposes acceptance of the eight hour day in principle, but declares that questions of wages should be settled by arbitration, which the employes have declared they unalterably oppose. William G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Trainmen, pronounced the executives' proposition unacceptable.

PARIS.—Although the kaiser sent his second son, Prince Eitel Friedrich, and the crack First division of the Prussian guards to the Somme front to blunt the allied wedge, the Anglo-French are driving deeply into territory occupied by the Germans. Gen. Fayolle has hammered this salient further by clearing all the Germans from Maurepas and occupying the territory to the northeast and south. Prussian guardsmen captured at Maurepas asserted that Prince Eitel had entered the village but left hurriedly just before the French dropped a barrier of fire behind the town which trapped a number of his men.

LONDON.—The German war office admits the loss of Maurepas, but declares that attacks by the British and French on the whole front from Thiepval to the Somme broke down. The British war office reports repulse of a German attack on the British trenches west of Ginchy.

LONDON.—Eight persons were killed and thirty-six injured during a raid by five or six Zeppelins on English towns early today, it was officially announced. The German craft dropped 100 bombs in all. One of the Zeppelins reached the outskirts of London. Here is where the most damage was done, explosive and incendiary bombs being rained on the civilian population.

PEORIA, Ill.—Archbishop John Lancaster Spalding, noted prelate of the Roman Catholic church in Illinois, died at his residence here. He was 76 years old and had been ill for a number of years. Archbishop Spalding was born in Lebanon, Ky. He was consecrated bishop of the diocese of Peoria in 1877 and resigned because of ill health in 1908. In the following year he was created titular archbishop of Scyphopolis.

NEW YORK.—With the safe arrival of the Deutschland in Bremen, public interest now is centered on the Bremen, but conflicting reports leave the status of this second undersea liner in great doubt. One report, brought here by the captain of a British merchant vessel, says the Bremen was captured by the British in the Straits of Dover and 33 of the crew of 35 were taken prisoners. Other reports say the Bremen is expected to arrive in some American port at any hour.

CHICAGO.—Max Silver, wrecker of the two banks of Adolph Silver & Co., is believed to be near Chicago and almost within the clutches of detectives, who threw lookouts into the vicinity of Goshen, Ind., late last night. With him, it is suspected, is a woman.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

BUT DON'T GO NEAR THE WATER.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—While other papers are raving over our beautiful beaches, and ranting over the lack of accommodations for bathers, the editor of THE TRIBUNE with characteristic common sense points out the fundamental trouble with the beaches is that good swimmers are not allowed to swim.

Scores of people are maimed and killed by automobiles every day, but no one would dare suggest that we stop using them, yet this method of reasoning is used by those who have supervision over the city's beaches.

People do drown occasionally, but this problem, thanks to the law of self-preservation, has never been so serious as to warrant the restrictions now in effect at Oak street beach. However, the problem of drowning, like that of drinking, had to be solved; at least the officials thought it had to be, so they set about the job in typical American fashion. The problem was really simple. In order to prevent people from drowning while swimming, just turn the bathing beach into a wading beach and forbid any swimming at all.

The methods used to discourage swimming are, as mentioned by your reporter, very effective. Only the master minds of Lincoln park can figure out what connection there is between saving drowning people and running over competent swimmers with rowboats. The zeal displayed by these people who are always trying to save us [I am now referring to all classes of reformers and moral custodians] sometimes makes one wonder if they are not actually trying to destroy us.

I know that I speak for hundreds of swimmers when I say that the only accommodations needed at Oak street beach are there already. All we need is the lake and a chance to swim unmolested. God Almighty put the lake in Chicago's front yard, and the Lincoln park tyrants would do well to let the people use it without forever hearing that arrogant and disgusting yell, "Hey you!" FRANK SULLIVAN.

THE COSTS OF CRANE COLLEGE.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Your correspondent, Mary Norin, believes the school board's financial difficulties, especially the continuance of the Crane Junior college, would be corrected by the mere elimination of 5,000 political appointees who draw $50 per week for no work.

For her information, the peak load of the board's business employes was 4,900, which total included all clerks, engineers, janitors, attendants, etc., the majority of whom receive compensation nowhere near the $50 mark. The total of business employes as of July 31 was 1,900.

Misinformation contrary to this is distributed by teachers' organizations as a smoke screen to divert the public's attention from the real cause of the board's dilemma—namely: the high salaries paid to the teaching force. Inasmuch as Crane Junior college is foremost in Mary Norin's mind, it may interest her to know that the 1932 appropriation for teachers' salaries at that school alone is over $485,000. The lowest paid teacher there receives $220 per month, but the great majority receive $400 per month. This rate is for a twenty day month or a five day week. Computed on a per diem basis they receive $20 per day. And this is for a five hour day. It may also be of interest to add that school teachers' salaries amount to $180,000 a day. The tax situation and the school board's financial difficulties cannot be solved until the teachers' salaries are cut and cut radically.

TAX LIMITATION.

Litchfield, Ill., Aug. 16.—I was very much interested in the editorial appearing in today's issue of your paper concerning a limitation upon the tax levying bodies of the state. You voice my sentiments as a candidate for senator from this district, and I hope you will continue your efforts in that respect.

HARRY C. STUTTLE.

THE LINCOLN PARK GOLF CLUB.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—In connection with the Lincoln park golf course controversy, why does not THE TRIBUNE uncover and publish the real motive for the agitation against the so-called duffers?

For several years the Lincoln Park Golf club has attempted, with considerable success, due to the cooperation of park officials, to monopolize the old 9 hole course and to enjoy the privileges of a country club for $10 per year per member. It is now trying to get control of the new course.

Members of this self-styled club have been allowed to play matches, displacing nonmembers who have waited for hours for a chance to play, and to go through foursomes without their permission. Poor playing was not a factor but simply the alleged right of a club member.

Lincoln Park Golf club members should not be allowed special privileges on a golf course which belongs to the people. Now is the time to correct a bad situation which has existed for years. GERALD SIMPSON.

A VICTIM OF THE ALIMONY RACKET.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—THE TRIBUNE is to be highly commended for its bold stand against the alimony racket.

It has been my misfortune to appear before two judges in the Circuit court on a plea for modification of a decree granted ten years ago. At that time I willingly offered for the support of a child 23 per cent of my earnings, the amount being sufficient to clothe, dress and educate the child well. Several years later I lost my former position and suffered a reduction in salary of about 40 per cent. I tried to get a proportionate reduction in alimony, but the judge not only refused my plea but insulted me and told me to "shut up" or "I'll increase the amount if I feel like it."

This year I made another plea on account of a reduction in my present salary, which makes the payments 33 1-3 per cent of my income. The judge smiled at the woman and refused the petition. How long can judges continue to get away with such arbitrary rulings? How long can they continue to set aside justice for woman's smiles and political favor?

How can a man ever remarry, establish a home and lead a normal life if weak minded judges bleed him white? The court seldom interests itself in how the money is being spent for the support of a child. It is only concerned in exacting the pound of flesh from the man.

E PLURIBUS UNUM.

A FAVORITE AUTHOR.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—I wish to express my appreciation of James O'Donnell Bennett's excellent articles. Often I am impelled to buy a second issue of your paper for them. Last Sunday's contribution by him went to Rhode Island and to Richmond, Va. RACHEL F. CARR.

FROM ENGLEWOOD BUSINESS MEN.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Members of the Englewood Business Men's association, both collectively as a civic organization and individually as citizens of this community, wish to commend you very highly for publicly protesting against a decision recently rendered in the Hon. Judge Kelly's court when probation was granted to three holdup men who had committed a series of holdups, intimidating their victims with sawed off shotguns and pistols.

We also notice with much satisfaction that you are assisting in efforts to introduce measures at the next session of the state legislature advocating a change in the present criminal code which, according to public records, is obviously very much misinterpreted at the present time.

Your action constitutes a very commendable service to the public and should be highly appreciated by every law abiding citizen of Chicago.

Grand Duchess Pens a Second Book on Exile

New Work Lacks Power of Her First.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"A Princess in Exile," by Marie, Grand Duchess of Russia. [Viking.] Published today.

THE further memories of Marie, grand duchess of Russia, are off the presses today, reviewing her life from the time of her escape from Russia in July, 1918 [when the previous volume closed] to the autumn of 1929 when she returned to the United States to take a position with a dressmaking firm in New York and to see her first book published.

GRAND DUCHESS MARIE.

There is no question about the fact that "Education of a Princess," her first volume of memoirs, was a real contribution to historical autobiography. It was tense with terror, and love, and sentiment, and with the actual remaking of a human being all set down with such restraint as to give the book permanent literary value. Her two great loves were for her family and her country, and as she watched both of them disintegrate her own spiritual struggle glowed in the pages. The reader watched her being "educated," cruelly but actually in those pages.

"A Princess in Exile" has little of the tense factual quality of her first book, and none whatever of the emotional fineness of it. You do not see before your eyes, as you saw in the lines of the first book, character being formed, a human being coming to know herself.

In this book she tells how she came to write "Education of a Princess," to keep herself from unhappiness, to nourish her own soul. I have a feeling that "A Princess in Exile" was written from no such exigency, only from the assurance that more memories would undoubtedly appeal to a public which had found the first book so fiercely fine.

There are doubtless thousands who will rush to the bookshops to read the further adventures of the Grand Duchess, most of them because her first book was a great human document, but most of them will be disappointed—all except those who think that any volume about royalty is intriguing, and they may find value received in the mentions of the king and queen of Spain, the queen of Rumania, the Dowager Empress Maria of Russia, the Grand Duke Dmitri and his wealthy American wife, Prince Lennart of Sweden [as a growing boy], and mentions of the Ritz and visiting nobility.

Those who found the intensity and reality of "Education of a Princess" a terrible but a beautiful literary experience will not be satisfied with the author's casualness in this book. They will feel little intimacy either with the author or with the people with whom the author came in contact, and while they may be interested in how a grand duchess adjusted herself to an entirely new social order, they will miss the intimacy of the spirit which characterized her first volume.

There is no reason why "A Princess in Exile" could not have been as vital a human document as "Education of a Princess." The adjustments of an exiled group to cultures and psychologies wholly alien to them is, if not such spectacular, quite as legitimately real literary material as the destruction of a world; psychologically, perhaps even more tense material, for the factual events of the ending of the old world were in themselves enough to make any book vibrant. But it was not only the facts in the first book which made it unforgettable. It was the growth of character in it. And such a growth is not set down in "A Princess in Exile."

The author tells, among other things, the story of the birth of Kitmir, a famous label adorning embroidered garments which dazzled the world of well dressed women for a few years. Associated with Chanel, the Grand Duchess Marie organized an embroidery business which through bad business management she was forced to give up. In telling of that business she describes the methods of famous dressmaking houses in preparing and showing their models. [Her stepsister is the wife of Lucien Lelong, one of the foremost Paris couturiers.] She also describes fashionable life at Biarritz, including very discreet mention of the home life of the late king and queen of Spain.

The reader will be interested to find in "A Princess in Exile" that the first part of the first book was written as a serial for a Swedish newspaper. It was translated into Swedish from the French in which it was written. But when she came to finish the book for an American publication she wrote instinctively and passionately in Russian—the entire last part of the book, and it was translated from that language. "A Princess in Exile" she has written directly in English.

Here's Correct Way to Extract Tiny Blemishes

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A correspondent inquires the name of the implement used to extract blackheads. A comedone extractor is what is meant. For some reason the word implement sounds to me like a bludgeon of some sort, or something that is to be found hanging around the barn door.

A comedone extractor is but a small cylinder on the end of a handle and couldn't wield a blow hard enough to raise a welt. But it is good on its own job. When the comedone (the blackhead) is placed in the center of the cylinder and pressure is applied around the orifice of the duct, the plug is forced out.

If the skin is softened with a cream or oil, which cream or oil may be a cleansing lotion, or warm water is applied to the surface affected, there is not much difficulty in extracting the comedones. It is wise to extract only those that are removed easily, leaving the stubborn ones until a day or two later. You can, by too diligent application to removing the small black tipped plug from the face, make a sore looking surface, which is utterly unnecessary.

Get the face clean first, no matter what you use for extraction. After the cream or oil wash I urge a warm soap and water wash to get all the cream out of the way. The cream or oil is good, however, for softening the duct content. A rinse in warm water is advisable after soaping, and then you may take a bit of linen between your fingers and press lightly around the orifice of the duct.

Keep Your Word and Child Will Follow Your Example

BY CLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Did you ever think how much of the world's work and pleasure depend upon the value of a man's word and, of course, that means on a woman's, too?

Take simple social things. You invite three or four people for dinner at a certain hour. Barring accidents, having accepted, they feel it incumbent upon them to come and at the time set. If they didn't, if their word meant nothing and they suited their own convenience only confusion and loss of labor to hostess and servants would result.

Take business. Business is largely founded upon a man's word. What did some financier say? Wasn't it to the effect that there were 3 C's considered in making loans: Capital, character, and credit and that the greatest of these was character? And certainly in character is included the trustworthiness of a man's word.

And in our personal relations we find the same need—we must be able to depend on each other's word. What friendship, what confidences, what loyalties are possible without it?

I don't believe you need to worry about your children keeping their word, if you keep yours. They may need a hint of help a few times when they're little, but that's all.

But here's a caution. In trying to establish this principle don't exact promises from the young children or even allow them to make them. There's an age at which they are incapable of keeping a promise and it is not right to reproach them for not being able to do so. Don't bend over

HOW TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD

Mrs. M'Cormick Always Kindly to Reporters

Loved for Her Courtesy and Dignity.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IT doesn't seem possible that this society editor never again will write the words "Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick" without using "the late" ahead of them. Even though she had been so desperately ill the news of her death yesterday was a shock, and it is with a sense of personal loss that I write these few lines about this lady.

My view, I am sure, is shared by every society reporter who ever came in contact with her. She was always gracious and understanding with society reporters who sometimes appeared to pry into her private affairs while only doing their reportorial duty.

Mrs. McCormick never talked over the telephone to reporters, but her secretary, echoing the courtesy and dignity of her employer, always was willing to relay a question to Mrs. McCormick and to give a straightforward answer. And when Mrs. McCormick was approached, as she was at every social affair, opera performance or charity benefit at which she appeared in the years in which she was an outstanding leader, she always was ready to answer that tiresome question, "Who are your guests tonight?"

This may seem like a very little thing to any one who hasn't "done" society reporting or who isn't accustomed to being a hostess in an opera box, but it is significant of Mrs. McCormick's nature. She did not feel she had to be rude in order to prove that she didn't "want her name in the paper." I am sure she would have prefered to have her name mentioned in print much less often, but she took her position and its responsibilities seriously and she knew her social activities were going to be written about and so accepted the situation with good grace and dignity.

She always lent her name and her assistance to causes which she deemed worthy and when she volunteered to work for a cause, she worked. What the Civic Opera or the Chicago Grand Opera company that preceded it would have done without her, I do not know, for she was the inspiration of all the women who worked to make it a success.

And the failure of the Civic Opera company to continue next winter was a real grief to her. No one who heard her make the short impromptu talks she made last spring to her coworkers on the guarantee fund committee for the Civic Opera company could help knowing that she was sincere when she said that she thought it would be a civic calamity for Chicago to lose its opera.

At dinners Mrs. McCormick gave in her Lake Shore drive residence guests understood they were not to be fashionably late, for dinner was served at the hour your invitation signified it would be. There were no cocktails at the outset or liqueurs at the end to delay the hour of departure for the opera, for Mrs. McCormick always was a "dry," even before the eighteenth amendment came into existence.

Her guest lists were made up long in advance, and it was noticeable that more often than not her parties included friends, especially younger couples, who could not afford to go to the opera often. She was kind and generous, although those qualities were not always appreciated by those who knew her but slightly.

and others.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The first play of the new theatrical season arrived at the Grand Opera house last night, well in advance of any rivals, and was greeted with gusto by a large assembly of drama lovers who have been on a starvation diet for two empty months. The piece is "Cynara," generally rated as among the best of last winter's Broadway crop—an intimate chronicle of the love-life of a London gentleman.

It gives the eminent Philip Merivale a rôle of major dimensions, which he acts with quiet strength and rugged charm; and it also provides vivid activities for Sir Guy Standing, a polished veteran; Phoebe Foster, graceful leading woman; and Nancy Sheridan, a clever young English actress new in this region.

This quartet, with the others who participate in the well populated story, makes "Cynara" a play with a notable cast. Here you will find a group of the surviving aristocracy of the theater—people of artistic distinction and personal glamour. Thus the drama, somewhat impoverished in the economic struggle but still game, begins its new year with a brilliant and ingratiating gesture.

In the episodic pattern that the cinema has given to the contemporary drama, "Cynara" tells a story that is a commonplace of the divorce courts and yet has been somewhat neglected in playwriting. It is the story, treated from a sympathetic and tolerant point of view, of the faithful husband who falls from the grace of monogamy and, by an almost accidental lapse of morals, makes a bewildering mess of his social and professional life.

The play's theme is in effect: Why husbands go wrong. This subject is treated humanely and plausibly, with sufficient frankness and understanding, and also with a pleasant quality of British reserve.

Mr. Merivale appears as a London barrister who is happy in his marriage and who is untainted with the loose sex philosophy of the times. His wife goes tripping through France; he is left alone with a cynical old playboy as his companion; he meets an ardent, sentimental shopgirl, and nature does the rest—which includes a suicide, a coroner's inquest, exposure of the liaison, and ruin for the once virtuous, always well intentioned, barrister.

It is a good story brisk with incident. There are nine scenes, plus a prologue and epilogue, to "Cynara," and the action is rich with easy, realistic detail. The dialogue displays the graceful phrasing and sparkle of worldly epigram that usually characterize importations from the London stage. There are manifestations of the art of writing in this saga of seduction, male and female.

Sir Guy Standing, as the jovial worldling who leads the good husband into temptation, is the epigrammatist of the performance and gives relish to a rich collection of cynical utterances. He is a genial Mephistopheles to Mr. Merivale's bashful Faust, and as he speaks his epicurean observations, co-authors Harwood and Gore-Brown like editors of an anthology of pagan wit and wisdom. Here are a couple of specimens of their vein:

"Polygamy should be consecutive, not contemporary."

"Call no woman respectable until she is dead."

Miss Foster's study of the patrician wife is clean cut and winning. Miss Sheridan's depiction of the eager, amorous, unhappy shop girl is an unusually effective characterization.

Good Morning!

Yesterday, after a summer's siesta, United Artists theater stretched, yawned and reopened for business. The management hopes that its current attraction will scare the wits out of you—but not frighten you away.

"White Zombie" belongs to the cycle of horror films. Not as terrifying as "Frankenstein" and more blood-curdling than "Dracula," it sings of black magic in Haiti. It is not, as you may suppose, adapted from the stage play "Zombie," but was suggested by Seabrook's book, "The Magic Island."

It must be heck to be a "zombie," which is a dead man come alive! Just when there's every reason to believe that you've finished with the serious business of living and dying, along comes some son of a necromancer, sets your bodily mechanism ticking again and puts, what by all rights should be returning unto the dust from which it was created, a-slaving in the cane fields and sugar mills of Haiti.

True, your little white or black soul undoubtedly goes marching on—always supposing it doesn't pause in consternation and hover, flapping flabbergasted wings over the flesh that knows it not.

Besides working day in and day out at their agricultural pursuits, zombies are, it appears, available for any dark deeds Old Massa may wish to perpetuate. So, in this picture, you behold a small and hideous horde of them concerned in activities calculated to make your hair stand on end. It's because this calculation is always so apparent that "White Zombie" fails in its intention.

"Boo! Boo!" cried the Boogey Man,
"I bet I scared you then!
Now I'm going to make another face
And scare you over again!"

The pictured yarn interests itself in an American girl and her fiancé who visit and are married at the home of a Haiti planter. The last, infatuated with the maiden, summons Old Massa Murder to his aid. Murder whistles for his zombies. . . .!

Joseph Cawthorne as a sensible, brave, humorous and analytical missionary furnishes the one honest and convincing note. You sigh with relief when he appears. Bela Lugosi, looking like the devil, kills and resurrects Madge Bellamy in an up to date ten, twent' thirt' manner. Madge gives a waxen performance throughout. You will remember, perhaps, that no Madge Bellamy picture was complete without an undressing scene—the lady having that sort of figure? True to form [no pun intended] "White Zombie" shows her in bridal veil and teddy. Robert Frazer as the planter, John Harron as the bridegroom, and portrayers of the zombies handle their rôles with, I suppose, a laudable attempt to make them as spooky as possible.

If you don't laugh—"White Zombie" will probably give you a mild case of the willies. Leave the children at home.

Waller Family Wins Honors at Swim Meet

Young People Compete at Harbor Point Club.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MEMBERS of the William Waller Jr. family "did themselves proud" in the recent aquatic sports contests for young people at the Little Harbor club at Harbor Point, Miss Virginia Waller, the eldest daughter, winning first in the girls' class A swimming; Lucia, better known as "Judy," winning the girls' class D swimming contest, and Thatcher, always known as "Tad," being the victor in the class C swimming and the classes B and C diving.

Patsy Wilder was the winner in the class B contest for girls in swimming; Robert W. Burnet, J. Sidney Burnet's son, won the class A diving contest and the class A swimming; "Teddy" Russell, Mrs. Robert M. Curtis' son, was first in the class D diving, and Robert T. Wheeler, Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler's son, was the winner in the class B boys' swimming.

In addition to the swimming and diving contests there was a treasure hunt under water with ten silver spoons as the treasure. They were thrown into the pool and each contestant dove once and the trick was to try and pick up all ten spons in one dive. Our correspondent neglected to say who won the hunt and neither did she write who the winners were in the balloon relay race, but probably some of the Wallers were among the victors.

More Harbor Point News.

Personal bits of news from Harbor Point include the following:

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Stevenson motored up to Harbor Point last week to visit the George A. Ranneys. Mr. Stevenson returned to Chicago on Monday, but he will go back to the Point for Labor day, Mrs. Stevenson having remained with Mrs. Ranney.

Mrs. Elizabeth Shay Ricker and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Ricker, who have been at the Point for some time, are now at Roaring Brook to remain until after Labor day.

Mrs. Edward L. Hersey has returned to the Point from a round of visits in the east.

Mrs. James R. Offield and Miss Betty Offield are still in the east but they are expected back at Harbor Point shortly. Mr. Offield is spending his vacation at the Point, and he and Wrigley, his son, are reported to be having a beautiful time, fishing and sailing all day every day.

John Wilson Wins Trophy.

At Charlevoix, another Michigan resort where many smart Chicagoans summer, John P. Wilson was the winner of the John B. Lord trophy in the annual regatta for that trophy sailed Tuesday. Harold C. Smith of Lake Forest has joined his family at their cottage at the Chicago club at Charlevoix to spend the balance of the season there.

Our newsgatherer there writes that William B. McIlvaine is kept busy taking moving pictures of his seven grandchildren and then showing the films to the children, for if there is anything children like better than having movies taken of them it is looking at themselves on the screen.

When Miss Mary Miller becomes the bride of Charles N. Proctor of Boston on Tuesday, Sept. 13, she will be attended by her sister, Susan, and Mr. Proctor will be attended by Miss Miller's brother, William W. Miller. The service is to be read at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the Winnetka residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Southworth Miller, in the presence of the relatives and a few friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Proctor will leave immediately after the ceremony to motor to Boston, where they will reside. Miss Miller is there now, finding an apartment. Mr. Proctor's mother, Mrs. Charles A. Proctor of Hanover, N. H., is coming to Chicago for the wedding.

Shower for Janet Kirk.

Mrs. Frank A. Baker Jr. [Beatrice Ripley], is giving a luncheon and hosiery shower today for her prospective sister-in-law, Miss Janet Kirk, at the Winnetka residence of her mother, Mrs. Robert H. Ripley. Mrs. Baker is starting the round of prenuptial entertaining for Miss Kirk early because she is leaving next Wednesday to join Mr. Baker in Princeton, N. J., after having visited Mrs. Ripley since early summer. Mrs. Baker will return to Chicago later in September, however, as she is to be an attendant when Miss Kirk is married to Robert Hampton Ripley on Sept. 24.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin P. Smith, who spend at least half of every year at their beloved Florida estate, make up for their long absence by entertaining frequently during the summer in their Lake Forest house. They are giving a dinner party this evening for a dozen guests—one of a series of little dinners that they are giving this season.

Miss Elizabeth Bunting, daughter of the Henry S. Buntings of Lake Bluff, who is having a series of parties instead of one large debut, entertained a party of young people at the buffet supper and dance at the Onwentsia last night.

The French Consul and Mme. Rene Weiller entertained at dinner last night at the Edgewater Beach hotel for M. Pierre Lyautey, nephew of Marshal Lyautey.

Style Show at Knollwood.

All the newest styles for autumn will be displayed at the fashion show to be staged at the Knollwood club on Saturday night, Sept. 10, at the pool, which is one of Knollwood's most attractive features. Mrs. W. E. Macfarlane is chairman of the com-

FALL FOR FALL'S FASHIONS? TRY THESE PICKLES

Fan Mah Brow if They Aren't Fans.

BY JEAN GUTHRIE.

A fall fashion note in pickles which should turn all rooters for the crisply sour and spicily sweet to cheering is the pickle fan.

Fans, fagots, flowers—no end of tricky garnishes, all born from the pickle, are the housewife's newest scheme for adding a zestful note to salads and injecting taste teasing touches into the luncheon platter of cold meats or the supper cheeses.

Pickle fans can be made from sweet, sour or dill pickles, but the medium sized "cucs" make the most appealing fans. To fan out your pickles, cut each in lengthwise slices, almost to the base. Carefully spread the slices fan fashion and arrange around the cold meat or salad.

Making the Pickle Bloom.

Pickle flowers are something to put on or about jellied salad molds or pressed meat loaves. Sweet dill pickles are used this time—cut in medium thin slices and drained. Put these pickle lozenges at regular intervals about the dish to be garnished. In the center of each green slice place a square of scarlet pimento and top each square with a small fluted cone of stiff mayonnaise pressed through a pastry tube. Sprinkle with paprika and add sprigs of parsley for realistic stems.

Pickle fagots make colorful accompaniments for meat, cheese or fish salads which are being served on individual plates. Or they may be used to trim the service platter if the salad is to be borne to the table intact. The method is even easier than for fans and flowers. Simply cut lengthwise strips of dill, sweet or sour pickles and arrange in bundles with thin strips of pimento. Or as a hangover from your Camp Fire Girl days, build a wigwam or log cabin fire with pickle strips as the fagots.

Pickling a Fire.

For the former, cut two inch "fagots" and lean several, wigwam fashion, about a section of pimento which will gleam through the base and form —for the imaginative—a peppy little fire. The log cabin fire simply calls for pickle fagots stacked in a small square or triangle with interlacing ends. A dot of pimento in the center again hints of a fire.

With summer still turning lose the August sun now and again, we need a few palate cooling triumphs to spring when heat fagged appetites yearn for boosters. King of such hunger makers is the following appealing creation—doubly delicious because it combines two cooling summer favorites—pickles and frozen foods.

FROZEN CHICKEN DINNER.

1 can chicken à la king
½ cup finely chopped sweet pickles
½ cup cooked peas
1 teaspoon granulated gelatin
1 tablespoon cold water
½ cup heavy cream

Manipulate It This Way.

Blend the chicken à la king, the sweet pickles and the peas. Let the gelatin stand five minutes in cold water, dissolve over hot water and mix with the chicken mixture. Whip the cream until just stiff and fold into the other ingredients. Season with salt if necessary. Turn into a refrigerator tray and freeze from two to three hours or into an oiled mold covered with two thicknesses of oiled paper and freeze in ice and salt for two hours.

When the chicken is frozen, cut in bricks and arrange each serving in a cup of lettuce placed on a large service platter. Between the frozen chicken servings arrange deviled eggs and neat bundles of asparagus tips bound, fagot fashion, with strips of pimento. Garnish with small pickle fans.

Fresh Ham and Lamb Are Good Buys for Week-End

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers, the committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago states:

"Fresh ham represents an unusually economical meat buy for Chicago housewives over the week-end. Served as a roast or sliced and served as ham steak this cut of meat is delicious and attractive.

Church Women Canning Fruits and Vegetables to Feed Needy

Surplus vegetables and fruits from farms surrounding Chicago will find their way to the tables of the poor in Episcopal institutions in the diocese according to a program of canning adopted by the church.

The women of the church are urging farmers to donate their surplus crops, and will in turn arrange to bring them into the city if the farmers are unable to do this. In several church community centers in the parish women are holding canning bees, their goal being 25,000 cans [quart and pint mixed] of vegetables and fruits.

Pastor Directs Activity.

These will be used on the tables of the Episcopal institutions of the diocese, including Chase House, the Cathedral Shelter, the Woman's shelter, etc.

Directing the canning activities is the Rev. James G. Jones, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, of Lombard, who before he entered the ministry specialized in canning and worked in the research department of a large can company.

Instructing a group of women from the diocese at St. James Community house, 664 Rush street, recently, Mr. Jones explained why they used tin cans instead of glass jars for canning.

"The first reason is the certain seal of the can," he said. "The second is breakage. There is no breakage in cans, and they will be convenient for handling in large quantities. Another reason is that cans are simple to cool.

"These string beans are packed in cans, after which a teaspoon of salt is put on top. Boiling water is poured over them, and the tops are put on with the aid of a machine. They are hermetically sealed then They are placed in a pressure cooker, and the pint size can cooks 15 minutes at 250 degrees. The quart size should cook 20 minutes.

"They are then cooled immediately by plunging them in cold water. After this they are labeled. There will not be more than one-tenth of one per cent of spoilage in all we do this summer, I believe, and that will be due only to the fact someone does not know how to operate the pressure cooker properly."

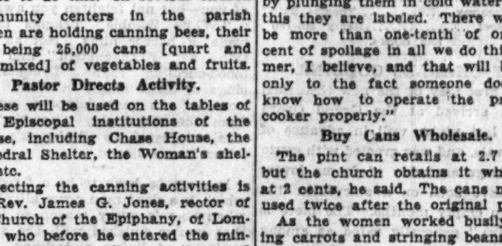
Buy Cans Wholesale.

The pint can retails at 2.7 cents, but the church obtains it wholesale at 2 cents, he said. The cans may be used twice after the original pack.

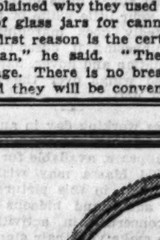
As the women worked busily peeling carrots and stringing beans, they reminisced about canning as it was done years ago.

Mrs. Anna K. Stuart, 4517 Magnolia avenue, 81 years old, who came to Chicago to live in 1872, told how meats were frozen but not canned in her home at Mineral Point, Wis. Preserves and fruits were canned until they stood row upon row in gleaming jars in the pantry, but vegetables were not canned for fear of spoilage in those days, she said.

49 YEARS
before the first auto



Pabst were making the worlds finest brew



Full 3 pounds in the big GREEN can

People saw the first American automobile go chugging down the street in 1893.

It's a little hard to think back that far. And yet, in 1844, 49 years before that date, Pabst of Milwaukee were making their world-famous brew.

That's why, today, their Puritan Malt is so good. There are three generations of malting experience behind it . . . it's age-tested!

Contains Three Vitamins, A, B and C.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Once more it is the season for all good lovers of the plain and substantial substances of the board to start a clamor for spareribs and the rib's first cousin, sauerkraut.

While the hue and cry is waxing heavier as the cabbage patch begins to yield its first meals, one might pause to add a sequel to the oldtime novel theme of the "poor boy makes good in big city."

Rises in Popularity.

For there were days in the dim past when sauerkraut seemed to go with the hefty appetites of farmers and of hungry workmen home for a supper that would "stick to the ribs of a man." We have watched the slow but certain rise in popularity of this dish until we have become convinced that the nutrition experts could no longer overlook its humble merits.

And sure enough, in recent months we have been besieged with stories emanating from the immaculate kitchens of the state colleges and food scientists. Eureka! Kraut has come into its own. It possesses so many of those vitamins about which we read so much and see so little first hand.

Contains Vitamin A, B and C.

Then, too, we are told, the dish of kraut becomes, in the words of these laboratory folk, "valuable primarily as a bulky, succulent vegetable for fall and winter use when the diet of most people consists too largely of the concentrated foods."

Cabbage, these nutritionists have come to learn, may now be placed on the most fastidious menu without a qualm. For it is a "valuable source of calcium, phosphorus and iron, as well as other mineral-constituents required for human nutrition." And add to all those attributes the fact that "the lactic acid which is formed in kraut is extremely beneficial in keeping intestinal tract free from disease producing germs. Kraut contains vitamins A. B. and C."

Now the Hero of the Hour.

All dressed up in these 1932 fashions, kraut is quite the hero of the hour. To be sure, one may fail to find the spareribs or pigs knuckles invitingly half hidden beneath the steaming pile of kraut in this modern setting. He may even be invited to secure his kraut in the form of a cocktail and find it delicious.

But the fact remains that thousands of humble followers who have persisted in the opinion that "there's no dish to equal a heaping serving of kraut and spareribs" will be cheered to learn that their hero of yesterday has become the public's dish of fashionable favor.

There may be those who will seek the secret of such success. For these it might be well to yield up some otherwise too soon forgotten suggestions on how this unique food is properly prepared.

How to Prepare It.

If one would have superior kraut, then, select fresh, crisp firm, fully matured cabbages. Peel off the outside leaves, using only the crisp parts and discarding the cores or hearts. Shred the heads into finely cut lengths.

For every five pounds of shredded cabbage, about ¼ cup of salt is needed, packing each in alternative layers in the jar or barrel at hand. And who cannot recall the kraut barrel mother always refused to let any one in the family abscond with?

After pressing down the pile of layers of salted shreds, cover with a double thickness of cheese cloth sterilized in strong salty water. Over this place a false head, board or plate, weighing down with a flatiron or its modern descendant. It must be heavy enough to press the brine up to submerge the topmost cabbage.

Differ on Fermenting Process.

Experts differ on the fermenting process, but we are informed that about 80 degrees F. is the best temperature. Skim off the scum which appears from time to time over the period of 3 to 10 days. Bubbling will persist until fermentation is complete, when the kraut is ready for the "ultimate consumer."

But in case your cabbage patch should fail you, or you failed to have your cabbage patch this season, we're told that kraut can be bought just around the corner, already processed for the table.

Rice One of Cheapest Foods, Basis for Economical Diet

When combined with other nutritious foods, such as milk, vegetables, dried fruits, or meats, rice becomes the basis for a truly economical diet. When properly cooked, a pound of rice which sells for 3 to 5 cents makes approximately ten generous servings of a cupful each.

Like all other grains, rice has a high percentage of starch, according to Miss Dorothea Muehl of Purdue university and is, therefore, primarily an energy food.

Broken Rice Cheapest.

"Broken rice is the cheapest form, but it is just as nutritious as the whole grain and can be used as a substitute in most recipes," Miss Muehl points out. Rice in the whole grain can be purchased in small packages, the brown rice having more food value because it is unpolished and has a greater mineral, protein, and vitamin content. The polished rice is most popular, however.

Boiling rice is the commonest method of preparation. It should be boiled gently in an excess of water [two quarts salted water to each cup of rice]. When tender, the rice is drained and cold water poured over it to remove the starch that is still clinging to the grains. In some sections of the country the minerals in the water cause the rice to have a greenish or grayish color. A pinch of cream of tartar in the water will prevent the discoloration.

At Breakfast or Supper.

Rice may be served for breakfast, in soup, with gravy and vegetables for dinner, or as a supper dessert. The nutritive value and attractiveness of rice is materially increased if milk, sugar, eggs, fruits, nuts, spices and flavoring are added. Cooked rice may be substituted for bread crumbs in making meat loaf or scalloped dishes; combined with meat and seasonings used as a stuffing for vegetables, and leftover rice may be used with less tender cuts of meats in making stews and soups. Suggested recipes for the use of rice follow:

RICE PILAU.

2 thin slices of salt pork, finely diced
¾ cup uncooked rice
3 cups hot water
2 medium sized onions, cut fine
2 cups tomato juice and pulp
4 tablespoons minced parsley
Salt
Pepper
Paprika

Fry the salt pork until slightly browned. Add the rice which has been washed and drained, and stir until the rice is a golden brown, adding the onions meantime. Add the hot water gradually, cover, and cook. When the rice is tender, add the remaining ingredients, place in a greased baking dish, and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven [350 degrees to 370 degrees F.]

RICE PATTIES.

Cook boiled rice until it is fairly soft, drain, but do not rinse. Spread it about an inch thick in a shallow pan, pressing it down well. Cut into rounds with a biscuit cutter. Place the rounds in a greased pan adding a bit of butter to each. Brown in a hot oven [400 to 415 degrees F.], or under a broiling flame. One cup of uncooked rice makes about twelve patties. Serve creamed meat or creamed vegetables over the rice patties.

BAKED CREAMY RICE PUDDING.

3 tablespoons uncooked rice
1 quart milk
1-3 cup sugar
½ teaspoon nutmeg or cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt

Wash the rice, add to the remaining ingredients, and stir the mixture. Pour into a baking dish, and bake 2½ to 3 hours in a slow oven. [285 to 295 degrees F.] Stir three or four times during the first hour. One-half cup of raisins may be added if desired. The creaminess and delicious flavor of this pudding result from long slow cooking.

FAMILIAR INSPECTION STAMP ON MEATS IS CALLED HARMLESS

Inquiries have been made concerning the practice of butchers in trimming the familiar purple federal inspection stamp from fresh meat at the time of sale. This is entirely unnecessary, specialists explain, as the fluid used in marking meat is made according to a government formula from harmless ingredients—as harmless as fruit juices.

Formerly labels were attached to the meat that had been federally inspected and passed, but this proved expensive and otherwise unsatisfactory. The purple stamp provides a safe, clear, and permanent mark of inspection for the benefit of the meat buyer. Its presence signifies that the meat came from an animal that passed a thorough inspection by trained men.

CABBAGE NOW ON THE MARKET AT LOW PRICES

Red Is Colorful Addition to Luncheon Menu.

BY MARY MEADE.

Cabbage—that thumping good, faithful perennial that gives distinctive flavor and crunchy texture to meals from January to June and back to January again, is simply doing itself proud in Chicagoland these weeks. Of course, almost any time of year you will find it solid and sweet flavored, but August is its heyday, with local markets piled with firm heavy heads at nominal prices.

Whereupon, feeling thrifty, we proceed to buy cabbages, which in turn demands that we conjure up crunchy new ways and means for serving them. And lest you have not yet stuck your inventive pace, here are a few cabbage thoughts for inspiration.

RED CABBAGE LUNCHEON DISH.

1 medium sized head red cabbage, shredded
1 onion, sliced
1 large sour apple, diced
¼ cup savory meat drippings
¼ cup vinegar
1½ tablespoons dark brown sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
1¼ cups mild meat stock
½ teaspoon mixed spices

Brown the sliced onion in the meat drippings and then add the cabbage, apple, and the stock. Let simmer until tender, then add the remaining ingredients. Simmer ten minutes longer and serve.

FILLED SOUR CREAM CABBAGE.

1 medium sized cabbage
1 cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons minced parsley
¾ cup peanuts, chopped
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of paprika
Sour cream dressing

Select a fresh, firm cabbage and cut off the top in one slice. Hollow out the inner section, leaving merely enough cabbage to form a firm shell. Chop the cabbage which has been removed and blend with the celery, nuts, parsley, and seasoning. Blend with sufficient sour cream dressing to moisten and pack back into the cabbage. Place a sprig of parsley on top and chill before serving. Serve in a large salad bowl.

SOUR CREAM DRESSING.

1 cup newly soured cream
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of cayenne
3 tablespoons vinegar

Whip the cream with a rotary egg beater until stiff, then slowly stir in the vinegar, beating after each addition. Add the seasonings and continue beating until thick.

OVEN BAKED CABBAGE.

Oven dinners seem to be what one serves to be smart and thrifty this season. This interesting method of serving cabbage keeps step with the general trend and has acquired quite a host of admirers since its debut.

1 large firm head of cabbage
2 tablespoons butter
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Dash nutmeg

Chop the cabbage in coarse pieces and boil gently in salted water until quite tender but not in the least mushy, about 20 to 25 minutes. Drain off the liquor and save. Press the cooked cabbage through a coarse sieve and turn the pulp into a baking dish. Season to taste, with salt and pepper, dot with butter and spangle with nutmeg. Place in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] and bake until well heated through and browned. The liquid will help out in some future tasty soup.

An interesting first cousin of our garden cabbage is the Chinese cabbage, Chinese celery cabbage, or pakchoi, which was imported by Chinese gardeners many years ago but which isn't yet fully appreciated by many American housewives. It grows in long slender bunches of leaves much like romaine. It is a most pleasing change from lettuce and may be used in many of the same ways. This cabbage is somewhat milder than our native cabbages and makes delicious cole slaw.

Savoy cabbage appears on our markets in large flat heads of kinky green leaves, and is available at many green grocers' this week.

CIDER MAKING TIME IS HERE DOWN ON FARM

Freezing Process Keeps It Sweet 7 Months.

Cider making time once was an event associated largely with threshing and silo filling on the farm, permitting the sophisticated and yet ignorant "city cousin" little insight into the making and the drinking, unless he or she happened to be visiting in the country at the right time.

But like other industries of sausage making, canning of fruits and vegetables and similar occupations that once were farm institutions, the making of cider has passed into industrial and city methods as well as those prevalent on the farm. One can purchase farm made cider by driving into the country, or a bottle or jug is available in a store.

Cider Mills Begin Flow.

The cider mills are beginning their annual flow of the tasty juice. Small presses which turn out much the same product are also being turned down on basketful after basketful of cider apples. Much of this will be absorbed fresh, while quantities will be given an opportunity to age. As nature takes its course, the cider first develops an uncertain alcoholic content, then gradually gives way to a vinegar condition.

From Minnesota comes a description of a new process of handling apple cider by freezing so solidly that the cider can be kept fresh and sweet for seven months or longer. Dr. R. B. Harvey, plant physiologist of Minnesota university, claims discovery of such a process.

"The grocery trade in larger cities already has prepared to handle frozen fresh fruits and this prepares the way for handling frozen cider," Dr. Harvey reports. "Preservatives or boiling or pasteurization alter the flavor, but freezing does not."

Zero Temperature Needed.

The apples are first cleaned, sorted, crushed, and pressed in the usual way. Suitable varieties are selected, so that a suitable taste and sugar content are obtained in the juice. The juice is placed in paper cartons, preferably, because freezing in glass or tin might break the container, as shown by the experiments conducted the last two years.

Household Hints

Curtain shelves containing canned fruits in glasses prevent the fruit from fading in the light.

Onion flavoring for a whole season may be supplied by the young shoots of three onions grown in flower pots in the kitchen.

FRIED CHICKEN SEASON 2 WEEKS AHEAD OF TIME

Birds Larger and Prices Lower than Usual.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Fried chicken at its most delectable stage will be with Chicagoans for the next few week ends and especially for Labor day if market reports on size and quality and retail prices are allowed to dictate a few choice menus.

The weather since spring has enabled the young chickens to take on growth that puts them two weeks ahead of the average season. The birds are larger and meatier in general, yet prices both wholesale and retail are 35 to 40 per cent below 1931.

Market reports indicate housewives are selecting fryers which weigh two and one-half to three and one-half pounds. The price ranges from 22 to 29 cents a pound for No. 1 meat. Better bargain in point of efficiency can be secured if slightly larger birds are purchased.

As a matter of market information, within two weeks or so, the larger birds will be the only size available, for those still coming to market will have had opportunity to increase their size and weight over fryers marketed earlier.

Forward In Growth.

"Chickens are forward in their growth this year as they also were last year," says Paul Mandeville, educational director of the institute of American poultry industries. "Cockerels weighing up to four and one-half pounds are already in the market."

Labor day is ideal for a picnic in the woods and to make it complete, fried chicken is suggested by the institute foods and nutrition department. The price for excellent quality fryers will make the wisest budget watchers take notice that they can serve fried chicken without making a regretable dent in the week's food budget, the institute suggests.

Chicken can be fried the day before the picnic, allowed to cool thoroughly and then put into the picnic hamper. Or the hot fried chicken can be put in buns, piece by piece, sandwich fashion, thus lending a tempting chicken flavor to the entire sandwich.

Out of Door Frying.

A three pound fryer is called sufficient for four persons. In cutting, twelve pieces may be carved before frying, allowing three servings or three sandwiches per person. Chicken fried out of doors is still another treat. The method is simple:

"Cut the chicken up at home or have the dealer do it for you. Wash the pieces and wrap them in wax paper. When the campfire has died down to a glowing coal of beds, heat a skillet, melt a piece of butter the size of an egg and then put in the chicken, which has been salted lightly.

"When the pieces are browned, cover the skillet tightly and let cook quite slowly for 20 to 30 minutes or until the meatier pieces are tender. Two tablespoonsful of flour added to the simmering skilletful at this point will insure tasty gravy if a trustworthy guard watches the chicken until the gravy is done."

PEACH WITHOUT FUZZ AND EARLY BEARING BERRIES ON DISPLAY

Proof that the fruit and vegetable worlds still have something new to offer in the food line is found in the exhibits of the sixth international congress of genetics at Geneva, N. Y. Seedless grapes and seedless cucumbers, fuzzless peaches and other products will be on display.

New varieties of raspberries, strawberries and gooseberries bore fruit earlier this year. In order to permit visitors a knowledge of the color, size, shape and texture of the new fruit, samples were frozen at the time of harvest and preserved for the congress.

HIS HEALTH IMPROVED 40%

After Use of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

If you are constipated, read this letter which Mr. Murray had attested by Notary Public:

"Two months ago I commenced using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to relieve constipation. I am in better health today than I have been in years, due to the use of your wonderful bran. My bowels move regularly, and my general health has improved 40%."—George A. Murray, 288 K St., South Boston, Mass.

Laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN brings two things needed to correct common constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently it clears the intestines of wastes.

How much better to use ALL-BRAN than to abuse your system with pills and drugs—often harmful.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation—in serious cases, with every meal. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal with milk or cream, or in cooking. At all grocers in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

GRAPE GROWERS TO BE HELPED BY LABORATORY

"Shatterproofing" grapes is one of the latest accomplishments of scientists. The process may save grape growers of the United States thousands of dollars annually.

Shippers lose large sums yearly from grapes which "shatter" or break from the stem, in transit. Dr. Charles Brooks, federal employé, has discovered in laboratory experiments that subjecting the grapes to carbon dioxide gas before they are placed in the refrigerator car prevents much of this shattering. He has applied for a public service patent which will make the method free for anyone to use.

Carlot shipments of grapes in the United States have averaged more than 69,000 for the last 10 years. General use of the new method may save the grape growers large sums of money every year.

Studios Seek Censorship for Fan Magazines

Editors Are Organizing in Self-Defense.

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 25.—Tallulah Bankhead has learned all about writers for movie fan magazines at last, but the learning process has given Hollywood its biggest turn since Ann Harding issued her announcement of divorce intentions.

A magazine story about Tallulah and another magazine story about Herbert Marshall, coming on top of preceding magazine stories about other female and male idols of the camera, have caused an effort to be made by producers and members of the Hays organization toward a system for putting the popular movie fan magazines under studio censorship.

The response of the fan magazines to these threats of concerted action by studios to withhold advertising from periodicals which do not accept censorship has been a drawing together of fan writers and fan magazine editors for the common defense.

The fan magazine editors and writers want to set up their own censorship instead of subscribing to any dictation or supervision by the studios as was suggested when Miss Bankhead tore her hair over the publication of the highly flavored remarks attributed to her.

When Tallulah first came to Hollywood she rented Bill Haines' elaborate Georgian house and made an engagement with several reporters for an interview. She did not know whether it was traditional to serve cocktails or tea to such folk, and was in such a flurry over meeting these strange newspaper people that she finally came in, somewhat wan and distraught, and admitted that she was scared to death.

She told her callers she had been planning to wear a slinky black sequin gown, pose in front of the rays from the fan light over the hall door, and try to be very grand. Then it had seemed like a good deal of bother, so she threw herself on the mercy of the press in a simple sports dress.

Everybody laughed and got quite chummy with the engaging Bankhead girl, and as the conversation went along one of the boys told her that she was not so far wrong on the idea of using the black sequin gown, but only for certain impressionable writers.

Tallulah and the reporters then spent the rest of the afternoon making long lists of Hollywood writers and dividing them up into two sections, those who would be amused by the black sequins and those who would be impressed. It was all great fun.

Then, when Tallulah got to feeling at home in Hollywood, interviews ceased to faze her at all. She said anything, simply to be amusing or to provoke a conversational argument, a really very old device in making conversation, which is widely used in Hollywood, with stars and writers each trying to "out-awful" each other, just for a laugh or to see what a comment will bring forth.

Any one of these interviews so conducted would set the public by the ears if it were printed as they say such things here; such interviews are really only for fun, like two little boys seeing who can spit farthest off a balcony.

Then the recent interview about the impulsive and trusting Miss Bankhead was printed, and has Tallulah cooled off on writers!

At that, maybe she would have been safer if she had stuck to the original black sequin and fan light idea and impressed their eyes, not their ears.

All the furor over the Bankhead and Marshall magazine article recalls the bombs that writers of a certain type are always trying to throw at Hollywood notables, for instance the stories a Los Angeles weekly published about Clara Bow at the time of her retirement, which have that weekly's publisher behind the bars right now.

Child Prefers One Divorced Parent to Other

Larger Spending Capacity of Father Appeals.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

One of the hardest penalties divorced mothers pay is seeing the children weaned away by their father's larger spending capacity. It's one of the future possibilities rarely thought of by women to whom the court may have given custody of the children.

We say "weaned away by a father's larger money capacity." There may be other features entering into the father-child attachment. It may not be all the power of money. But the woman victims of this later divorce cross always believe it is the pull of money.

The boy in this case is 11. His mother and father were divorced when he was 4. The father married again. The mother claims to have been generous with the father about letting him see his child oftener than the court subscribed. She has allowed the boy to spend his Saturdays and Sundays with his Dad, which was not in the court records.

Now the father is moving to a distant suburb. And here enters the tragedy for the mother of the boy. The father has a room for the boy. A playroom in the basement of the house is fitted out with all the tools a boy could want. He is promised a bicycle and a German police dog and trips with his Dad—everything a boy could want and which the father can afford and the mother cannot. And the boy is not unwilling to go with his father.

Another case presented is that of the mother of two girls, 16 and 18. The father married again after the divorce. His second wife died recently. The older daughter doesn't want to work since her father offers her a home and the use of his car and many other things. Mother claims to have worked and struggled to bring these girls up well. She sees only treason in the girl's choice of parent now. She needs the girl's help since her health is failing.

Who can say that it is only the pull of money, the promise of an easier life? The call of the blood is there for the male parent as well as the female.

It is, however, one of the developments that may occur though the female parent is granted custody of the child or children. It is one of the things that, thought of, might make divorce a less attractive release.

SYNOPSIS.

Peter Dunn of Scotland Yard is in pursuit of a band of thieves who some years before had robbed the Canadian Bank of Commerce in London. The robbers spent nine years in jail for the theft; but the loot was never found trace of. Peter's buddy, Inspector Sam Allerway, was dismissed in disgrace, accused of taking a bribe from the head thief, and killed himself. Peter, the only baronet in the service, kept right on working after he came into his title and fortune. It was his form of fun and he wanted to vindicate Allerway. The year after the robbers were released Peter, on a vacation, cruising on the Thames, recognizes a servant in a supposedly haunted house as one of the robbers. Peter stays in a nearby town and investigates. The house is owned by Mr. Hannay, who has one daughter, Patricia, and is one of two identical villas lying side by side. Hannay's has been improved, while the other is unoccupied and in a state of decay. Neither Pat nor her father believes the ghost stories, but the servants leave one by one.

INSTALLMENT V.

A GHOST WALKS.

"Is Dr. Herzoff living at the clubhouse?" asked Pat.

"I don't know where he's living—at some hotel in the neighborhood. A charming fellow with a tremendous sense of humor——"

"Which means that he laughs at your jokes and hasn't heard your ancient stories, daddy. Does he play tennis?"

Hannay thought he might.

After tea the next night Pat strolled out down to the lower garden. Beyond the trim box hedge ran a road which had not been a road at all until Mr. Hannay had made it. It was here she had seen the mysterious young man who had excited her interest. She wondered what he would say if, with the boldness of despair, she invited him to a game of singles. She was a little disappointed that she had not the opportunity of making this test.

That night there came a crisis in the affairs of Chesterford. Pat was in that pleasant stage between sleep and wakefulness when she heard a shrill outcry. She sat up in bed, listening. From somewhere near at hand she heard a "click-click-click," and, despite her philosophy, shivered.

The death watch! She had heard it before, but not quite so distinct. Again came the scream. She reached for her dressing gown and slipped out of bed. In another second she was in the corridor.

The maid's room was at the end of the passage. She tried the door; it was locked, but the incoherent babble of sound which came from within told her she had not made any mistake.

Mr. Hannay had heard the cry. Pat turned her head at the snap of his lock. He came out, a gaunt figure, more exasperated than frightened.

"What the devil's the matter?" he asked.

Pat did not answer. She was rattling the handle of the maid's door.

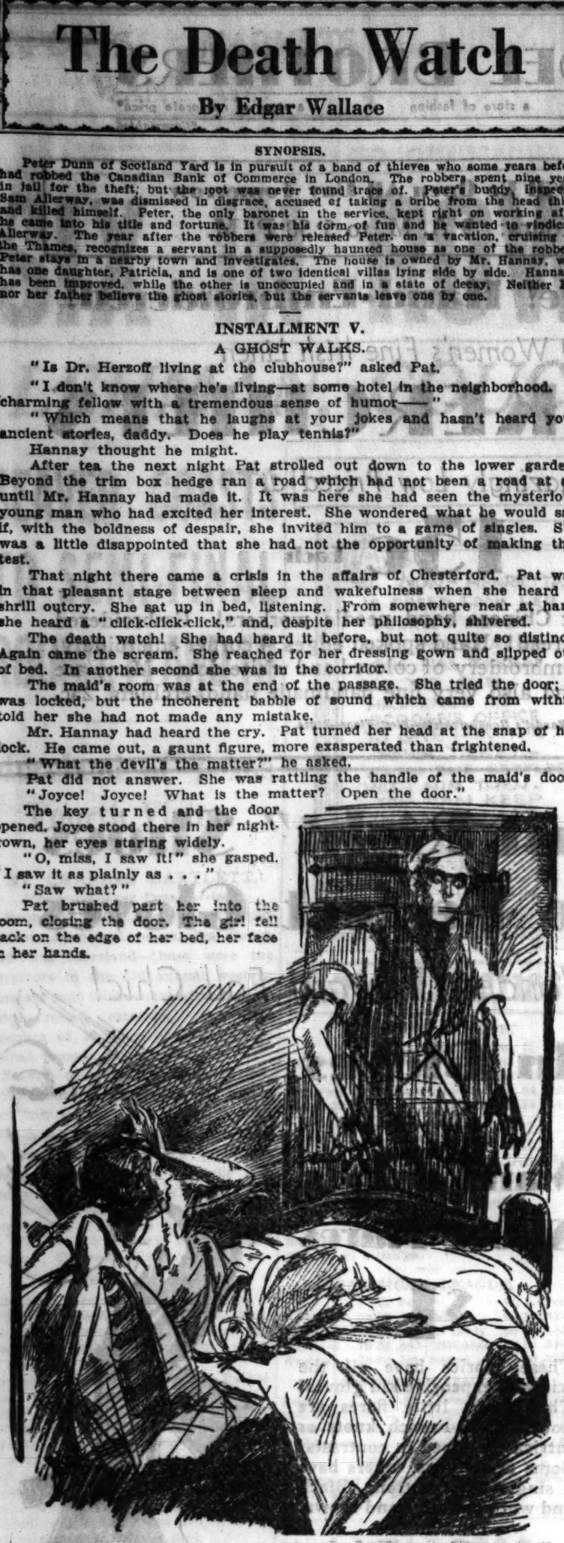
"Joyce! Joyce! What is the matter? Open the door."

The key turned and the door opened. Joyce stood there in her night-gown, her eyes staring widely.

"O, miss, I saw it!" she gasped. "I saw it as plainly as . . ."

"Saw what?"

Pat brushed past her into the room, closing the door. The girl fell back on the edge of her bed, her face in her hands.



There was blood on his hands—it seemed to be dripping.

"What did you see?" asked Pat again.

For a little time the maid did not speak.

"It seemed to pass through the door, miss," she said in a hollow tone, "and I locked the door before I came to bed. It walked slowly past me and sort of disappeared . . . it was almost as if it walked through the wall."

"It was a nightmare," said Pat, her heart quaking.

Joyce shook her head vigorously.

"O, no, miss, it wasn't. There was no nightmare about that. It happened just as the other girls said it happened. And I wasn't asleep; I was wide awake—as much awake as I am at this very minute."

Pat meditated for a second. She simply dared not ask any more questions: this type of terror grew on what it fed on. Then her natural curiosity overcame her discretion.

"What was it like?"

"A horrible looking man. He had a terrible face. Dressed in tramp's clothes . . . dirty looking . . . he was awful. There was blood on his hands; it seemed to be dripping as he walked!"

Pat looked at her helplessly, then went to the door and opened it.

"May my father come in?"

Hannay was standing outside.

"Joyce says she saw a ghost—a tramp or something with blood on his hands."

"Stuff and nonsense!" growled Mr. Hannay. "She must have been dreaming."

The maid looked up at him resentfully.

She got up suddenly from the bed, walked to the window and, drawing aside the thick curtains, peered out. Pat saw her draw back, an expression of horror on her face.

"Look!"

Hannay pushed her out of the way and, throwing open the casement window, thrust out his head. Then a chill ran down his spine, for he saw the man distinctly. He was tall, grotesque in the moonlight, a figure that moved and made strange and hideous noises as it walked.

"That's him," quavered Joyce. "Do you hear? That was what I heard . . . quite near, miss!"

There was perplexity on Hannay's face, anxiety on Pat's, twitching terror on the face of the maid. Pat supposed, with a quiet malice, that the girl found some enjoyment in her terror—was at least laying the foundation for horrific stories to be told to her friends.

"I was wide awake. He came so close to me I could have touched him."

She seemed loath to leave the subject.

"What did he look like?" asked Mr. Hannay.

"She's told you once," said Pat impatiently.

But Joyce was not to be denied her narrative.

"His face was horrible!" She shuddered. "Like a man who was dead."

"Come into the library," said Pat to her father.

She turned to the maid.

"You'd better wake up Peterson and get him to give you something hot to drink."

They left the girl sitting on the edge of the bed, covering her face with her hands. Mr. Hannay led the way, walking to his desk in the library. It was the one spot in the house where he could command any situation. And here was a situation which asked for command. Yet, as was his wont, he waited for a lead from his daughter. Mr. Hannay initiated nothing. He found the weak place in the suggestions of others, and by this process, which operated throughout his life, he had amassed a fortune.

"Father, we've got to do something."

Nobody knew this better than Mr. Hannay.

"Well, what do you expect me to do?" he asked.

There was an obvious solution, and she suggested it.

"Send for the police," she said.

Her father snorted.

"And make myself a laughing stock! Police—ghosts! I've never heard such nonsense! Don't you suppose that that idea has already been considered by me and rejected?"

"What are we going to do about it?" she asked squarely. "Daddy, I can't go on; this thing is getting on my nerves."

It was getting on Mr. Hannay's nerves also.

"It is all very stupid," he said.

There was a little pause as he thought, his head on his hands.

"That man I met at the golf club—Prof. Herzoff—he's a very well known scientist. Have you heard of him?"

Patricia shook her head.

"Neither have I," admitted Hannay naïvely. "It's very odd, we were talking about ghosts. I don't know what fool brought it up. He believes in them."

Pat stared at him.

"Is he grown up and believes in ghosts?"

"He's grown up and believes in ghosts," said Hannay firmly. "I'll bring him over tomorrow morning. He might give us a new angle to the situation."

It will be bad news to her friends to learn that Mrs. Alfred T. Martin has decided to give up her Chicago residence and move her furniture to Stonington, Conn., but they will be glad to hear that she plans to spend only the summers at Stonington and that she will be in Chicago for a part of every winter, according to her present plans. She will motor back to Chicago the middle of September with her daughter, Mrs. Lynn Gratiot of St. Louis, and Mary and Peter Gratiot, and be here for a week or ten days.

A recent letter from Mrs. Martin contains interesting bits of news about several Chicagoans including the fact that Mrs. George A. Thorne, who now lives in Brookline, Mass., has postponed coming to Chicago—she expected to motor here in September—and instead has left for a trip to England, Norway and Sweden.

Mrs. Martin has almost a continuous house party at her Stonington house and among the Chicagoans who have or will be with her this summer are Mrs. Adelaide S. Ames, Mrs. Henry H. Reuss, who is summering at her farm at New Canaan, Conn.; Mrs. Henry Kidder Gilbert who is at Skylark, her summer place at Peterboro, N. H.; Mrs. Henry C. Olcott, who is at her country place in Connecticut this season; Mrs. Marion Ream Vonsiatsky, and Mrs. Martin's sister, Mrs. Philip Hamill.

Mrs. Shaw to Land Today.

Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw and her young grandson, Shaw McCutcheon, will arrive in New York today from a summer in Germany. They will meet Shaw's little cousin, Alice Clay Judson, who's been at an eastern girls' camp, and bring her back with them to Lake Forest tomorrow.

Mrs. Shaw's sons-in-law and daughters, the John T. McCutcheons, and the Clay Judsons have been occupying Ragdale, her Lake Forest estate, this summer, and will remain in the country until October.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. McCarthy and their two small sons have returned to Evansville, Ind., after a visit with Mr. McCarthy's mother, Mrs. Daniel E. McCarthy, and his sister, Miss Gertrude McCarthy. The McCarthys are occupying Mrs. George D. McLaughlin's Lake Forest house this summer. Mrs. McLaughlin and her daughter, Miss Harriet McLaughlin, are expected to return next month from Europe.

Mrs. Austin H. Niblack and her children, Helen and Albert, and Mrs. Vaughan C. Spalding and her youngsters, Charles, William and Edward, are back from a three weeks' visit with Mrs. Niblack's and Mrs. Spalding's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy, at their Mackinac island estate. Mr. and Mrs. Niblack had considered going to Saratoga for the final week of racing, but have decided to remain in Lake Forest instead.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tietgens have returned to their Florida residence after a visit with Mrs. Tietgen's sister, Mrs. George Olney of Evanston.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Bridges of Deming place have returned from a month spent at Fish Creek, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Bliss Jr. of the Ambassador will depart tomorrow for their winter residence at Coronado, Cal. Their daughter, Peggy, will enter her senior year at the Bishop school at La Jolla, Cal., in the fall.

From Pittsfield comes the information that Mrs. Perry M. Shepard of Geneva, N. Y., formerly of Chicago, is arriving in Pittsfield next week for a visit with her mother, Mrs. Frederick T. West, at her summer place, Tor Court. Mrs. Jacob Baur, who arrived at home the other day from an eastern trip, spent ten days with Dr. and Mrs. Robert Metz at Fernbrook in Lenox after leaving Washington.

Mrs. Baur, by the way, expects her daughter, the former Rosemary Baur, and her husband, Bartie Bull, to arrive in Chicago about Sept. 1. Madam Cardelli is returning tomorrow from a visit in the Berkshires with Mrs. William Felton Barrett at Sky farm, North Egremont.

New Evening Gowns Really Deserve Name

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Evening gowns this year are really evening gowns, and what they will do for the fashionables who are lucky enough to wear them is something to shout about.

We are going to be picturesque, feminine, charming, and even glamorous with wicked, slinky black velvet creations that cling to the anatomy like a coating of gleaming black thick cream; with metallic brocades that wind sinuously around the silhouette like gold leaf covering flecked with vermilion, jade green, and bright blue; with frosty, icy blue, and dead white satins and plushlike crinkled velvets, and voluptuous, supple wools and bagheera cloth that will make us look like slender snow maidens.

If you are one of the 1932 insurgents who are heartily bored with vast retrenchment orgies, this is the year to prove your mettle. If you can't get something good, go without, for these new evening gowns are not cheap, either in design, fabric, or are they so-called bargains. There are, of course, sane, legitimate drops in prices of all clothes, but still you only get what you pay for, whether it is a house, a car, a garden, clothes, or a bargain!

These greatly glorified evening gowns are the most fascinating new things of the season. The first view will make you forget the last few torrid days of a weary summer. They cause you to plan sophisticated parties where you may wear them to startle your appreciative and frankly envious guest. They will make you long for the first crisp, cool days of autumn and the clear, sparkling romantic nights when the boulevard is filled with swanky motors full of smartly gowned women on their way to dine and dance.

You won't need any more than the first guess to be correct about black velvet. It fashions the most dramatic evening gowns of the year—soft, suave stuff that is almost black magic in the liquid way it falls gracefully and slenderly over the curves of the feminine silhouette.

Necklines rise to almost incredible heights this coming winter as black velvet streaks a straight line across your throat on the level of your shoulders. There are deep armholes and the sleeves, sometimes starting their career at the waist line, are narrow and fit tightly from a short distance below the elbow down to the wrist.

Buttons decorate and accent and spotlight nearly all the backlines. One black chiffon velvet dinner gown sweeps to the floor and presents an unadorned front elevation, but sparkles with tiny brilliant buttons in back.

Nearly every gown has a short, snug fitted matching jacket, and every jacket buttons, clips, or buckles very primly and high around your throat. These can be detached and the traditional evening gown with a deep decolletage is uncovered.

White creations are severely classic in design, intricate seaming and bias cut insets with unusual drapings being sufficient for a smooth, skillfully studied simplicity. One of the most distinctive models made of a very thick crinkled crêpe has a long, loose sleeved jacket that just reaches the normal waist line. The ascot tied collar of of this jacket provides the only color contrast on the entire gown. The tie ends are of a Chinese firecracker red brocade with yellow, green, and fire blue designs spattered over it. The gown has a medium low neckline in front and a deep V outline in the back.

Antoine Creates Bandeau of Curls for Straight Hair

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—M. Antoine's latest novelty in coiffures brings surcease to the troubles of the straight haired girl. He is making bandeaux of ringlets, that match the hair to the last invisible nuance of tone, and these are adjusted in the whisk of a minute by the simple device of pinning them on.

The hair that nature has attached to your head must be smoothly brushed back off the forehead and pinned in at the back of the neck. Then you're ready for the bandeau, which is pictured in the accompanying sketch. It forms a sort of crown like those worn by Russian princesses and narrows to a single line of ringlets at the back. Hairpins hold it on at the nape of the neck.

This original hair fashion was first created by Antoine for Brigette Helm to wear in the revival of "Atlantide." It made such a hit that society women came to the great coiffeur and asked him to design bandeaux for them according to their faces so that the great problem of getting the hair fixed for evening would be simplified. When the hair is long the bandeau is pinned under the knot at the back.

Men's Clothes Obey Ancient Button Laws

Old Customs Prevail in Modern Clothes.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

When one of the north shore's sophisticated young bachelors was a towheaded boy he liked more than anything else to play soldier with his father's collar buttons. Great armies, forts, and battlements took form on the nursery floor.

This is the reason his mother has a collection today that is, without a doubt, unique—a large wooden box filled with between 6,000 and 7,000 collar buttons.

What a help, incidentally, this matron might be to all of the men who find themselves so frequently in collar button distress! As a matter of fact did you ever stop to think how men are slaves to this detail of dress?

One authority on buttons has figured out that a total of 55,000,000 men in the United States must deal at least twice every twenty-four hours with a total of 1,100,000,000 buttons.

The story of the button is that of the "gob" and the "doughboy" of the present and kings and queens and warriors of the past. It takes its name from the French word "bouton," meaning bud, knob, a projection of any kind. It has been found in venerable Egypt, but as far as is known was never used for fastening, as Egyptian dress never required buttons, robes and gowns being held in place by means of ties and loops.

Not until the fifteenth century did some genius discover that by hanging a loop over a button or thrusting a button through an eyelet that materials could be held together. And this genius was European rather than eastern in his origin and south rather than north European. But even after his practical invention buttons continued for years almost entirely ornamental in this purpose.

At the court of Charles I. of England, for instance, they decorated the royal handkerchiefs. In 1685 Louis XIV. spent $600,000 for buttons, one batch of seventy-five diamond fasteners costing him $120,000.

There are all sorts of interesting traditions associated with buttons. Do you know, for example, that the fashion of applying them to men's coat sleeves is a survival of the decree of Frederick the Great that buttons should be sewn on the cuffs of his soldiers' uniforms to keep the men from wiping their faces on their sleeves?

That buttons at the knees of small boys' trousers are the result of the knee breeches fashion?

That buttons on the back of a man's cutaway or frock coat are a survival of the buttons used to fasten up coattails when men rode horseback?

That the five buttons on the front of a Chinese coat are to remind him of the five principal virtues of Confucius—humanity, justice, order, prudence, and rectitude?

Lake Captain Says Present Month Is Ideal for Travel

Chicagoans who have delayed their vacations until the present have picked the most pleasant time of the year for their annual outings, Capt. Edward E. Taylor, head of the Goodrich lines, asserted yesterday.

Normally the most pleasant weather of the year is between Aug. 15 and Sept. 15, Capt. Taylor said. Lake Michigan, he pointed out, has been smooth all summer, with no prolonged spells of bad weather, and even levels of temperature and atmospheric conditions have made the season an unusual one for the vacationist.

The largest patronage on the Goodrich lines' daylight cruises on the lake this summer has been to St. Joseph, Benton Harbor, South Haven, Saugatuck, Holland, Grand Haven, and Muskegon, he said.

Hot Weather Spurs Gifts to Free Ice Fund

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The hot weather yesterday reminded a lot of folks that ice is a pretty essential thing and that more tenement families ought to be receiving it. So they sent their gifts and when all were counted THE TRIBUNE Free Ice Fund had received $63.65.

Sultry days and nights in the homes of unemployed families, where babies wail and fret because sour milk does not agree with them, breathless rooms where no cross ventilation can coax the least suspicion of a breeze, children with no place to play inside, and not much more out in the street—those are the conditions tenement families must face.

That visit of the ice man means a lot to tenement mothers. It means the baby's milk may be kept fresh and that means the baby will have a better chance at health. A small block of ice keeps vegeables fresh, and meat from spoiling. In fact the whole family's chances at better health are multiplied by the arrival of that chunk of ice every day.

Nettie M. Adams realized all that, so she sent $50 to the ice fund. And what $50 can do in the way of ice!

The youngsters have been busy, too. A puppet show given by Ginger La Vine, Larry Harden, Bobby Wright, Joanne Bartling, and Tommy Wright brought the ice fund $1.35. Then a circus at 5909 North Kostner avenue earned $3 for the fund. Those in the troupe were Barbara Lang, Virginia Waage, Jack and Richard McNamara, Buddy and Evelyn Turner, Lois Cunningham, Charles Knoll, James and Margorie Carsten, and Shirley Jane Olsen.

Another children's gift was $1.30 raised by a circus given by Jack and Joan Moore and Lillian and Bob Reynolds, 2236 Lincoln Park West. Yesterday's contributions are acknowledged as follows:

$50—Nettie M. Adams.
$5—Betty.
$3—Circus, 5909 North Kostner avenue.
$2—Henry Luis.
$1.35—Puppet show.
$1.30—Circus, Lincoln Park West.
$1—Anonymous.

Total	$ 63.65
Previously acknowledged	2,053.64
Grand total	$2,116.69

Gifts to the Camp Algonquin fund are needed just as much as those to the ice fund. Both may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

Grant Park Concert Tonight Will Be Tribute to Sousa

The second part of the program of Victor Grabel's band concert in Grant park this evening will be a tribute to the most famous bandmaster of modern days, the late John Philip Sousa. The baton will be one autographed and presented by Mr. Sousa to Mr. Grabel, the program will contain his last march, "The Century of Progress," and one of his earliest, "The Last Days of Pompeii." Wagner's Prelude to "Lohengrin" will also be included because of Mr. Sousa's great admiration for Wagner as a composer.

All of the 2,200 seats priced at $2 for the performance of "Aida" at Soldiers' field Sunday night have been sold, and a new block has been opened on the field. The bulk of the seats in the arena were priced at $1.50, $1, and general admission at fifty cents.

Anna Leskaya, who will sing the name part Sunday night and Leonora in "Il Trovatore" Wednesday night, will arrive in Chicago today. Pasquale Amato, veteran baritone, the Amonasro and Count di Luna of the performances, will reach here tomorrow. Maurice Sciapio, the young Chicagoan bass who is a member of the Opera-Comique and is now in Chicago on a visit to his parents, has been engaged to sing the rôle of the king of Egypt in "Aida."

New York, Aug. 25.—Leonora Corona today agreed to sing in the premier performance of the Chicago Stadium grand opera to be given at the Chicago Stadium on Oct. 15.

The Marx Boys Give Children Lot of Laughs

'Horsefeathers' Antidote for the Blues.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

If you are finding yourself in need of an antidote for the blues, I'd suggest that you hie yourself to the nearest theater showing those crazy, inimitable Marx Brothers in "Horsefeathers." My hundred young guests and I gathered yesterday at the Publix-Balaban & Katz's McVickers theater for one of the most rollicking afternoons on record.

There's a laugh every ten seconds at least, but, of course, you won't be able to count them. They slide off the screen with such rapidity that most of them are lost in the constant maze of hilarity which fills the theater. They are incited by Groucho's wealth of puns, jokes, witticisms, and sometimes perfectly senseless remarks. You can't be serious minded and watch him as prexy of dear old Huxley. You'll grow hysterical at his inaugural address, and from then on you needn't expect to be anything else.

There's that round eyed, red bewigged Harpo, whose dog catching tactics are something absolutely new in that line. There's Chico, the bootlegger-iceman, who has never been funnier. There's a football game that falls nothing short of being a riot, and when you learn that Harpo and Chico have been annexed to the team you can appreciate just why it's such an uproarious game.

There's the business of getting Zeppo, a slightly backward student who has been in college twelve years, out of school. He's Groucho's son in the picture, and this president-father leaves nothing undone to secure for his boy the diploma that, somehow or other, has been pretty elusive. There's music that you'll be humming everafter, there are jokes that you'll try to remember, there are ludicrous scenes, crazy scenes, silly scenes. And there's so much fun in the whole thing that you can't help but have the time of your life.

At least, we did yesterday afternoon and one hundred boys and girls should be fairly good judges of what's funny and what isn't. That's why we suggest that you make it your business to see "Horsefeathers" at the earliest opportunity.

4 BOMBS HURLED AS ANTI-JAPAN BOYCOTT GROWS

Hankow Store Wrecked; Two Clerks Injured.

HANKOW, China, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The "blood and iron" society's anti-Japanese boycott took a violent turn today when four bombs were hurled into a Chinese store accused of handling Japanese goods.

The store was wrecked and two clerks injured.

The Chinese chamber of commerce, meanwhile, started exhorting merchants to cease handling Japanese goods as a means of stopping the outburst.

Tokio Stocks Boom.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Aug. 26.—[Friday.]—Stocks continued to spurt this morning, causing an unprecedented boom on the Tokio exchange. Silk prices for futures zoomed from 390 yen (about $90) for 100 pounds, standard grade, to more than 1,000 yen ($225). Tokio exchange shares, which are the market indicator, have risen 25 points in the last three days.

The silk filatures at Shinshu, one of the silk centers of northern Japan, have reopened and called in girl operatives who were dismissed during the depression. Observers feel that the boom is caused by stabilization of the uncertain political situation, falling of the yen exchange rate, which at 22 cents is near the lowest in history, and announcement that the government is to follow an inflation policy.

Scores of young Japanese Socialists were arrested yesterday after demonstrations near the meeting place of the diet. Thousands of farmers also filed petitions for relief. Otherwise, however, no sign of public dissatisfaction with the present cabinet headed by Premier Makato Saito has been evidenced.

Maps Relief Plans.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Aug. 26.—[Friday.]—Premier Saito, in his address to the diet, today described the relief measures planned by the government to meet distress in agricultural and other communities.

The principal features are provision at low interest of funds to release frozen real estate credits; arrangements to defer payments on debts owed by farmers; formation of local loan adjustment associations, and new public works and agricultural enterprises subsidized by the nation.

He announced also that the government would formulate plans for control of the price of rice and the output of milk. Educational grants will enable the rural authorities to pay the arrears of teachers' salaries, he said. Free meals will be provided for school children where necessary.

Finance Minister Korekiyo Takahashi announced that the state expenditure for relief would be $39,900,000, to be raised by public loans, and that the prefectures would spend in addition $19,836,000 to be advanced by the government at a low rate of interest.

NO STIMSON NOTE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Washington officials had no official comment to make today on the action of the Japanese government in announcing an intention to recognize the new Manchukuo government within the near future. Neither would the state department discuss the Japanese foreign minister's statement that the Kellogg pact and other world peace machinery offered no remedy for the "chaotic condition in China."

Officials indicated, however, that the United States will have nothing to say until after the new Manchurian government, set up by Japan, has been formally recognized by the Japanese government.

Notes Hitherto.

In the past each new development in Japan's invasion of Manchuria has been marked by issuance of a note or statement by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson. Recently his statements have emphasized his contention that the nations of the world should not recognize as legal any new territorial arrangements made in the Orient by Japan and China, which constitute, in his opinion, an infringement of the Kellogg pact or other international peace treaties.

BABY ABANDONED IN PARK

Trace Parents

Efforts were being made yesterday to trace the parents of a two weeks old baby girl, found deserted in Humboldt park Tuesday night.

A mark on the infant's back showed where adhesive tape had been taken off, and the West North avenue police to whom the finding of the baby was reported, are seeking the parents through an examination of hospital records.

The baby, clothed in a sweater and cap and wrapped in pink blankets, was found by Oscar Lakin, 16, of 1104 North Kedzie avenue, and Sarah Schwartz, 14, of 1434 North Talman avenue. The infant was taken to the Daughters of Zion Jewish Day Nursery and Orphans home, 1401 North California avenue.

CIVILIANS TAKE PART IN FRENCH WAR MANEUVERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RHEIMS, France, Aug. 25.—Virtually the entire civilian population of the five eastern departments of France—including most of the provinces of Lorraine, Champaigne and Ardennes, which were overrun during the world war—have been "mobilized" for the air maneuvers which started two days ago and reached their climax tonight.

As a grim reminder of what the next war will be like, the civilian population of the three big cities in the region were assigned roles and they took part in the maneuvers as much as the regular army men. Extinction of lights was made obligatory at a given signal.

To make sure that the orders were obeyed the power plant at Rheims was instructed to shut down and its 300 workers held themselves in readiness to act according to the orders of military officers. Railroad workers also were mobilized for the duration of the maneuvers.

CHICAGO CONVICT ESCAPES JOLIET.

Joseph Spool, 52 years old, walked away from the honor farm at Joliet penitentiary last evening and made his escape. He was sentenced to serve from one to five years for attempted burglary in Chicago in May, 1929.

LEHMAN, COUCH WIN IN AMATEUR GOLF; MEET TODAY

Moreland of Texas Fourth Victor.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 25.—Charley Seaver, Johnny Lehman, Ira Couch and Gus Moreland—those were the survivors in the 33d annual western amateur golf tournament after today's third round matches. Semi-final matches of 36 holes or less will be played tomorrow.

Seaver, the husky blond half back from Stanford university, who hits a golf ball as well as he totes a football, is no stranger to big time golf. He won a portion of the qualifying medal in the national amateur last year and is a member of the Walker cup team. Today he shot a morning medal card of 66, the foundation for an 11 and 10 victory over Arthur Bartlett, Ottumwa, Ia., veteran.

Moreland Beats Ashley.

Seaver meets Moreland, also a youngster, tomorrow. Gus, the present trans-Mississippi champion, advanced by defeating Richard Ashley of Kenosha, Wis., 5 and 4.

A representative from the Pacific coast and another from the south would have been sufficient for any tournament, but this meet has been such that the other semi-final match between Couch and Lehman offers even more action than the Moreland-Seaver debate. It will be a reenactment of the 1930 western amateur championship match, in which Lehman defeated Couch, 4 and 2.

Today Lehman, who is from Olympia Fields, Chicago, advanced to the semi-finals by beating Don Armstrong of Aurora, 5 and 4, with a stretch drive in the afternoon, after having been only one up at the end of the morning round. Couch defeated Johnny Banks, of La Grange, the junior champion of the Western association, 4 and 3. Couch is from the Chicago Golf club.

Seaver 10 Up in Morning.

Seaver's amazing 66 on the morning round put the husky boy from the coast 10 up on Bartlett at the end of the first 18. It was a perfect duplicate of Lehman's card Tuesday in the last half of the qualifying play, for Seaver was not over par once during the round and added five birdies to the assortment to take five strokes off par.

On the first hole Seaver outdrove Bartlett by more than 50 yards. He won the hole with a 4 after Bartlett's long putt rolled over the cup. A good niblick shot on the second green left him inches from the pin, and Bartlett conceded the hole. Charley went after his third consecutive birdie on the next hole, but didn't get it. He won the hole with a par 4 when Bartlett missed a 6 foot putt. Seaver topped his second shot to the 4th, but earned a half.

Cards 32 for First Nine.

They halved the 5th and 6th, and Seaver went 4 up with an 8 foot putt for a birdie on the 7th. He made his fourth birdie in eight holes by sinking a 15 footer on the next green and halved the 9th to be 5 up at the turn, with a medal score of 32, four under par.

Another one of the lengthy wood shots which had distinguished his first nine left Seaver about 12 feet short of the 10th green, and he went 6 up when Bartlett encountered a trap. The latter was stymied on the 11th and Charley was 7 up. Seaver missed out on another birdie when his six foot putt on the 12th hung on the edge of the cup, but won the hole and went 8 up when Bartlett missed an 8 foot putt. They divided the 13th in 4's and Charley went 10 up when Art took a 6 on the 14th.

Bartlett Wins 17th.

They halved the 15th in 4's, and then Seaver hung up his fifth and last birdie with a 12 foot putt on the 16th. Bartlett finally collected a birdie for a change on the 17th by dropping his second shot three feet from the pin. It was the first hole in the round that the Ottumwa veteran had been able to win. Seaver missed a 13 foot putt for a 65 on the home green, but won the hole and was 10 up when Bartlett's effort for a three foot putt failed.

The afternoon round was an eight hole romp for Seaver. He birdied the first and fifth, but was over par at the third, fourth and eighth, halving the last one with Bartlett.

Couch Takes Big Lead.

Couch was 6 up on Banks at the end of the morning round, and improved considerably in the afternoon, winning the first and third. He was still 6 up at the turn in the afternoon round, but did not finish as well, for Banks rallied to win two of the last five holes they played and halved the rest. On the 31st Johnny shot his ball over Ira's dead stymie, to win the hole with a birdie 4. His spurt was too tardy, however, for Ira won the next hole and the match by getting a five for a half.

Lehman, in his afternoon round against Armstrong, produced a first nine comparable to that which he

U. S. GOLF PROS LEAD FOREIGN BORN, 3½ TO 2½

American born professionals led foreign professionals, 3½ to 2½, at the end of the four ball matches at Oak Park Country club yesterday. The match, which is the first between teams of native professionals and golfers born in foreign lands, will be concluded today with 12 individual contests.

The American's advantage accrued through three victories against the foreigners' two. One match, in which Walter Hagen and Olin Dutra, the Americans, finished all even with Harry Cooper and Jose Jurado, ended in a tie. Hagen meets Cooper in the first individual match at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Eleven Shoot Par.

Eleven of the 24 participants in yesterday's play shot par or better. Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., had the best medal score, turning in a card of 35—34—69, three under par. Dudley was paired with Billy Burke against the foreign pair of Harry Hampton and George Smith, and, despite Dudley's score, lost the match, 1 up, having a best ball score of 68 against a 67 for Smith and Hampton.

Dudley was one of six to shoot sub par. The others were: Al Watrous, 34—36—70; Cooper, 36—34—70; Hampton, 36—34—70; Francis Gallett, 35—36—71, and Tom Creavy, 32—38—71.

The two Gallett brothers, Francis and Leonard, won the other foreign victory by defeating Joe Turnesa and Al Espinosa, 2 and 1. The Galletts had a best ball of 69, due principally to Francis' 71.

Shute, Creavy Win.

Denny Shute and Tom Creavy scored the first American victory by defeating Tommy Armour and Bob McDonald, 2 and 1. Leo Diegel and Johnny Farrell shot consistent golf to beat Jock Hutchison and Laurie Ayton, 2 and 1, for another American victory. Farrell had a 36—37—73, while Diegel was around in 38—37—75. Their best ball score was 71.

Horton Smith, captain of the home team, paired with Al Watrous to defeat Dave and Clarence Hackney, 1 up, for the other American victory. The match was determined on the 18th where the Hackneys took 5's while Watrous and Smith were down in 4's.

Yesterday's Results

RESULTS of yesterday's play between American professionals and a team of foreign born golfers at the Oak Park Country club were:

SHAMROCKS JOIN N. L.; WILL MOVE TO DETROIT RINK

Quit American League to Merge with Falcons.

The Chicago Shamrocks, champions of the American Hockey league, surrendered their franchise yesterday to accept membership in the National league. Announcement of the transfer was made by James D. Norris and Thomas J. Shaughnessy, Shamrock owners, who have assumed control of the Detroit Falcon franchise in the National league.

All except two of the Shamrock players, who defeated the Duluth Hornets in the playoff series last spring, will be taken to Detroit. The exceptions are Pudge MacKenzie and Donnie McFadyen, who are claimed by the Chicago Blackhawks. The Shamrocks dispute the Hawks' claim to these two stars, but have waived their objections to expedite closing of negotiations for the Detroit franchise.

Members of the Falcons, who are not owned by the Ottawa Senators, will be retained by the new management. Merging of the two teams is expected to make Detroit one of the strongest teams in the National league. The team will play under the name of the Detroit Shamrocks and will make its headquarters in the Olympia stadium in Detroit, the former home of the Falcons.

"Promising Prospects in Detroit."

Louis J. Giffels, general manager of the Olympia Stadium, was quoted in Detroit last night as saying that the Falcons' franchise would remain under the control of the Union Guardian Trust company, of Detroit, receiver for the Olympia, for another year. Giffels refused to say negotiations had been closed with Norris and Shaughnessy, despite the announcement in Chicago. He admitted, however, that prospects were "very promising" for adding most of the Shamrocks players to the Detroit roster.

Switching of the Shamrock franchise to the National league is the first step in perfecting a working agreement between the National and American leagues. Heretofore the National league considered the younger organization an outlaw league and refused to recognize it or its players.

Chicago's withdrawal from the American league leaves that circuit with six members, St. Louis, Omaha, Kansas City, Duluth, Minneapolis, and St. Paul. It will operate as a six club league next season, President William Grant intimated yesterday.

Shamrocks Two Years Old.

Norris and Shaughnessy organized the Shamrocks two years ago when attempts to obtain a second National league franchise for Chicago were blocked. The new team was welcomed into the American league and took up its headquarters at the Chicago Stadium.

Withdrawal of the Shamrocks leaves the Chicago Stadium without hockey this winter, unless the Blackhawks reconsider their decision to return to the Coliseum. The Blackhawks switched from the Coliseum to the Stadium midway in the 1929-1930 season and played there throughout last year.

TOURISTS SPEND $44,405,888 AT THE OLYMPIC GAMES

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Out-of-state visitors to the Olympic games from July 30 to Aug. 14 left behind them $44,405,888, according to figures compiled by the All-Year club, southern California's national tourist advertising organization.

A complete report shows that 384,400 tourists from the rest of the United States and from foreign countries visited here during the games. The average tourist expenditure in the ten southern counties of the state, based on data obtained from tourists by questionnaires and personal interviews, was $115.52.

The expenditures listed in the report did not include any made in northern California.

BEHIND THE SCENES AS CUBS PREPARE FOR BATTLE

The photographer finds the old victory spirit as well as the smell of liniment in the air when he visits Cubs' clubhouse yesterday. The boys are in a cheerful mood as they prepare to go out on the field against the Dodgers. Maybe they sensed that a 9 to 3 triumph was in the offing. Same Old Story: Sox Errors Give Game to Boston, 5 to 4

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 25.—The local chapter of the White Sox Alumni association made it extremely embarrassing for the Chicagoans today. Alumnus Benny Tate helped himself to a homer with one on base in the third inning and this alone proved enough to subdue the visitors, including Vic Frasier, in the second game of the series. The score was Boston, 5; White Sox, 4. But the White Sox have an opportunity to get even in the series final tomorrow.

It was the White Sox's own fault that Tate's wallop was the deciding contribution. These two runs and the one immediately preceding were legitimate enough, but that wasn't true of the other two. They were gifts. The usually reliable Jack Hayes erred in the second and a run resulted, although Luke Appling was partly to blame for this by missing a double play made possible by the error. Appling dropped a throw to account for the other run in the fifth inning. On top of this he could have halted the first of the three in the third if he had been a bit more accurate in making a throw to the plate.

Boston Gives Away Nothing.

The giving away of runs was confined exclusively to the big hearted Chicagoans. What runs they got were earned through hard work against the pitching of Gordon Dusty Rhodes, once of the Yankees. They started off gayly enough with a pair of runs, but Rhodes immediately settled into a winning mood and thereafter permitted hits to be bunched in only one inning. That was the sixth when for the second time during the afternoon Billy Sullivan showed his mates how to get going.

A blast of three hits by the first three batters of the day enabled Chicago to hop off with a two run lead. Funk started by singling past McManus at third. Hayes beat out a roller to short. Seeds singled into center, Funk scoring and Hayes halting at third. Jack hiked home while McManus was throwing out Sullivan. Appling and Selph couldn't help.

Support Wabbles.

Frasier could have dodged a Boston run in the second inning if his support hadn't been faulty in two instances. With one out Tate bounced to Hayes, who let the ball fall from his hand just as he was about to throw. Then he picked up Rhodes' roller and tossed to Appling for a force out of Tate at second. Appling had a cinch double play in front of him, but his peg to first pulled Sullivan off the bag. Olson then walked and McManus singled to left, Rhodes scoring.

Alexander's double over first started

CUBS' SUCCESSES HASTEN DOPING OF PENNANT RACE

The Cubs' decisive defeat of the second place Dodgers yesterday, combined with the double defeat of the Pirates at the hands of the Phillies, brought the pennant dopesters out in the open last night, though they had promised to stay under cover for a week or so longer.

The 9 to 3 thrashing the Chicagoans gave the panicky Dodgers put the Cubs 5½ games ahead of the second placers and, combined with the further double collapse of the Pirates, placed them seven games ahead of the team which less than a month ago was conceded the 1932 National league pennant by virtue of the fact that going into this month the Pirates were leading the league by 6 games with no one offering much opposition.

This morning the Cubs are confronted with the task of playing 34 more games—17 at home and 17 abroad. The Dodgers have 29 games left—13 at home and 11 abroad.

The standing this morning is:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Cubs	69	51	.575
Dodgers	66	50	.528

If they lose this afternoon, and Lon Warneke promises they will, the Dodgers will have a record of winning 11 games to every 10 losses. There is no reason to believe they will improve this ratio the rest of the way, but, assuming that they do a little better than their season ratio and win 16 while losing 13, then their season standing will be:

	W.	L.	Pct.

To beat this mark the Cubs would have to win 14 while losing 20.

Now figure it the other way around. The Cubs have won 18 more games than they have lost. In other words, they are 18 games better than a .500 ball club. They have won 9 out of 10 in their present home stand and 16 out of 21 since Charles Grimm took charge. It is not presumptuous to think they will win 17 out of their next 34. If they do just that their final standing will be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Cubs	86	68	.558

In this event all the Dodgers will have to do to win the pennant will be to win 21 games while losing 8.

If the Cubs maintain their season ratio of wins against losses the final Cub standing will be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Cubs	80	65	.578

In this event the Dodgers will have to win 24 games while losing 5 to take the pennant.

Even if the Dodgers win all of their remaining 29 games (and set a flock of world records) the Cubs can lose 7 games and still take the pennant.

INCREASE LEAD TO 5½ GAMES BY ROUTING CLARK

22,000 See Bush Win No. 15.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs' pennant plans yesterday took an absolutely brutal turn, causing them to be much more unkind than they had to be to defeat the awestricken Brooklyn Dodgers. The league leaders beat the second placers, 9 to 3, making all nine of their runs before the Dodgers made their second hit off Guy Bush. It was the sixth straight victory for the Cubs and made it nine out of ten for the current home stand.

The game was rich in statistical data, the most important item being that the triumph put the Cubs 5½ games ahead of the Dodgers, leaving the Cubs 17 games to play at home and the same number on foreign acreage. The Dodgers, who have won three fewer and lost eight more than the Cubs, have only 29 more games, including the final with the Cubs this afternoon, in which to take up that big gap.

22,000 Cheer Triumph.

The victory was No. 15 for Bush and his 12th complete game of the year. Guy was superb until after he and his mates had piled up that 9 to 0 advantage. Then he relaxed a little, but only to the extent of allowing the Dodgers a total of seven hits for the afternoon, the last of which was a home run by Cuccinello with two out in the ninth. The first hit off Guy was a scratch in the fourth. In the sixth the enemy made four singles. There was one single in the seventh and then that homer of Tony's.

The triumph, achieved before 22,000 of the faithful, was the 16th in the 21 games played under the management of Charles Grimm, but was not, as advertised, in celebration of Charley's 33d birthday. Charley corrected the record books, stating that he was born on Aug. 28, 1899. As a result of the correction the Cubs are fixing to celebrate the birthday again Sunday, against the Giants.

For the second successive day Billy Herman led the Cubs' offense, at least as to the number of hits. The young man again knocked three, including a double. He hit safely the first two times up, to run his string in the Brooklyn series to five in a row. Bill has batted .401 in the ten games of the home stand and .750 in the Dodgers series.

Mr. Cuyler Busts One.

The most telling whack of the game yesterday, however, was knocked by Kiki Cuyler, whose lone hit, a double, cleared the filled bases in the big fourth inning riot.

The Cubs again played as brilliantly afield as they did at bat, with Mark Koenig, the poor blind boy, continuing in the thick of things with eight assists and three putouts. His best play was a barehanded stop of Clancy's potential hit at the start of the third. Bush made a great stop on Cuccinello in the fifth, and on the next play English made a miraculous stop on third base to throw out Slade.

In the first two innings Bush let the Dodgers hit 'em and Koenig fielded 'em. Five of the first six men who faced Guy hit the ball to Mark, who got four on throws to Grimm and the other on a neat catch in left field.

Cubs Get Active Early.

In the same two innings the Cubs were much more active at bat than the enemy, but got no runs. Herman opened the offensive with a single to left, but was forced by English. Cuyler then tapped into a double play. The Cubs had the bases full with one out in the second. Stephenson led off with a double to right center and Demaree was hit by a pitched ball. The runners advanced while Clark was throwing out Grimm, after which Hartnett was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Koenig knocked a couple of hot grounders, foul by inches, then missed a third strike for the second out. Bush was thrown out by Cuccinello.

Herman launched the Cub program of ruthlessness when he opened the third inning with a double to left. Bill forthwith scored the first run of the game on English's double to right. Woody went to third while Cuyler was being thrown out and scored on Stephenson's single to center. Stevie went to second while Stripp was throwing out Demaree. Then Grimm singled off Cuccinello's glove, scoring Stephenson. Boss Charley sought to sneak to second on the throw in but was trapped, Cuccinello to Lopez to Slade to Clancy to Slade.

Now, Here's Big Fourth.

And now for the detail of that terrific fourth: Hartnett walked and Koenig beat out a bunt which rolled through that tough spot between the pitcher's box and first base. Bush bunted on the third strike and the thing turned out to be a duplicate of Koenig's hit, thus filling the bases. Herman grounded to Slade, who had an easy shot at Hartnett at the plate with a double play a possibility, but threw the ball away, Hartnett and Koenig scoring and Bush stopping at second.

Ed Pipgras, fresh up from Jersey City, relieved Clark. Ed walked English to fill the bases, then Cuyler doubled to left center, scoring Bush, Herman and English. Stephenson flied to D. Taylor and Cuyler went to third. Demaree singled to center, scoring Cuyler, and Quinn relieved Pipgras. Grimm flied to D. Taylor and Hart-

HYGRO IS BACK; FIRST RACE SINCE APRIL IS A ROMP

Beats Pairbypair Easily at Hawthorne.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Hygro, the flying horse of modern racing, made a dramatic comeback at Hawthorne yesterday when he won the Deerpath purse before 11,000 admirers.

The big chestnut son of Epinard beat Mrs. John Hertz's Pairbypair by two and a half lengths. He could have won by six. As a 2-year-old he frequently figured in thrilling displays of speed. He never ran faster than he did in the early part of yesterday's struggle, when he leaped into a lead of five lengths almost before the others were away from the post in a perfect start.

Hygro, which at times last year threatened to win the 2-year-old championship but didn't prove to be much of a router later on, was making his first start since last April.

Lost Opener to Equipoise.

His first start this year at Bowie on April 13 found him beaten a half length by Equipoise. Three days later at Havre De Grace he smothered a field of sprinters and won by six lengths.

Then it began to look as if Hygro would have something to say about this year's 3-year-old championship. The Derby, the Preakness and the Classic didn't seem to be too much of a job for him. Soon after rolling up his Maryland victory, however, he went amiss in training. One of his legs became bunged up and bruised and it was not until a few weeks ago that Trainer Dick Carmen, the young western horseman, was able to put him back in training. He has shown all his old time dash and speed since then.

Returns Only $2.78.

His training moves were so impressive lately that he became the talk of the Hawthorne turf colony. It wasn't any wonder that he went to the post as one of the shortest priced favorites of the season at less than 1 to 2, to pay $2.78 for each two dollars wagered on him.

Seldom has a horse won a race so easily and it was Hygro's lightning start that decided it within a couple of seconds after the barrier went up. Once in front, Jockey Landolt began looking back and trying to rate his flying mount. He couldn't make Hygro ease up much for they were at the quarter in :23 3-5 and at the half in :47 1-5. Hygro was five lengths in front now and finally he was content to shorten his strides. At the finish, still two and one-half lengths in front, he was pulled up and gave the impression that he could have carried his tremendous speed over a much longer route if it had been necessary.

Pairbypair was strictly the horse to beat. The trailers—Kibitzer, which finished third, Marmion, which was fourth, and Ladfield, which brought up the rear end of the parade—were so far behind some folks might have thought they were running in the next race. Pairbypair also had his backers and he was at only $2.32 to place. He paid exactly the same amount to show. Kibitzer was at $4.64 to show.

Swivel Delivers Again.

The Hawthorne program also brought another brilliant performance by the eastern 2 year old Swivel when she won the Lake Zurich purse, which engaged some of the fleetest juveniles here.

From the way she ran, her defeat in the Hawthorne Juvenile stakes didn't count. She encountered a lot of bad luck in that race. She met up with it again in the Lake Zurich but the field was smaller, so she worked her way out of it.

Isaiah, a Kentucky colt and a son of High Time, stepped out in the early stages as if he might make a show of his opponents. Stuvesant Peabody's Miss Melody finally challenged on the last turn and soon whipped him. Swivel had been far back and had to come around on the extreme outside and lose much ground as she drove toward the leaders.

It wasn't until the final strides that she poked her nose in front of Miss Melody. She was a stoutly backed favorite at just a point less than even money in the betting. She is a big, long striding juvenile and her stretch rush indicated that a little later on no distance will be too much for her.

War Declared on Stray Cats to Save Birds

BY BOB BECKER.

Who owns kitty? That question of the ownership of cats has been coming to the fore since scientists, state conservation officials, bird students and the new International Cat society began some time ago to drag the animals into the limelight as one of the outstanding Dr. Jekyl—and—Mr. Hydes among animals.

Under the law, no one owns a cat that strays from its home into the open fields. In every state the cat is legally classed as a predatory species and can be dealt with as such when endangering property or the common welfare. Moreover, according to the American Game association, courts have held that cat owners are not legally responsible for damage done by their feline pets.

Although millions of highly prized cats are a joy to their owners, they are anything but that to conservation officials.

During the summer one of the principal jobs of game wardens in many of the states, particularly in the heavily populated eastern states, is to control dogs and cats running at large in the fields and woods. Both can do a lot of damage among game birds when allowed to run wild. New York long has recognized this menace and the state annually wages a stiff campaign against them.

In states where dogs are licensed, an owner who lets his dogs run loose on other property is liable to a heavier penalty than for any other game law violation. Moreover, public sentiment is easily aroused against dogs which may sally forth and kill, for example, a neighbor's sheep.

On the other hand, cats are allowed to roam all over the countryside, with many of them obliged to get their living from kills of wild life, and as a rule little or nothing has been done about it.

However, since game departments and the new International Cat society have been campaigning against stray cats as one of the worst menaces to wild life, the picture has been changed. These groups have no quarrel with citizens who own pet tabbys and look after them. But they are sounding a call to arms to solve the problem of stray felines, the abandoned pets which roam the woods and fields.

GEHRIG AND RUTH RAP HOMERS TO BEAT INDIANS, 4-3

Babe Gets 36th in Sixth with One On.

New York, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Home runs by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig enabled the league leading New York Yankees to nose out the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 3, today. Babe dropped his thirty-sixth of the season into the bleachers in the sixth inning with Earle Combs on base. Oral Hildebrand was on the mound for the Indians.

The homer gave Babe second place in the major league race for circuit honors, displacing Chuck Klein of the Phillies. Babe is just ten behind the leading Jimmy Foxx.

Earl Averill also chimed in with a four base drive. It came in the eighth inning to tie the score and was his twenty-eighth of the year.

MILLER'S FOE

Tonight's Card

Barney Ross vs. Ray Miller [10].
Sammy Levine vs. Lou Vine [8].
Franklin Cheek vs. Roy Peters [8].
Harry Fierro vs. Pat Flowers [8].
Nick Sciaiaba vs. Jimmy Cheek [8].
Patsy Pollock vs. Dick McCauley [4].
Danny Neenan vs. Don Messina [4].
Dave Yarras vs. Billy Knowles [4].

The West Side Boxing club will offer its fourth show, comprising eight bouts, at Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, tonight with Barney Ross, west side lightweight, and Ray Miller, New York puncher, in the ten round windup.

Miller, who was considered a candidate for the lightweight title two years ago, is making his first start here in over a year. He whipped Danny Delmont at the Chicago Stadium in that bout. Ray has fought few times in Chicago, most of his bouts taking place in the east where he knocked out Jimmy McLarin, Tommy Grogan and Johnny Jadick, junior welterweight champion. Miller is an in and outer, but he hits hard enough with his left hand to command respect from any opponent.

Ross is receiving his hardest assignment since he lost a ten round encounter to Roger Bernard at the Chicago Stadium some months ago. Barney, who was 1925 Golden Gloves featherweight champion, has not dropped a decision since. He knocked out Henry Perlick and Dick Sisk in recent starts.

Tonight's match will determine whether Ross possesses the essentials of a topnotch boxer. Barney is a clever boxer, but during his final sparring sessions at Trafton's gymnasium, he indicated that he intends to slug with Miller. If he follows that plan his chances are curtailed as the New Yorker is stronger than Ross and hits much harder.

The five round semi-final brings together Sammy Levine, former Golden Gloves flyweight runnerup, and Lou Vine. Levine has lost only three matches in thirty starts since turning professional. He knocked out Franklin Cheek in his last start here.

All Amateurs to Be Quizzed by Commission

The Illinois Athletic commission announced yesterday it had obtained the cards of approximately 2,500 amateur boxers from Edwin Parkes, secretary of the registration committee of the Central A. A. U. The commission is sorting out the cards and notifying all boys suspected of receiving more than the actual expenses allowed them by the amateur union to report for hearings.

Amateurs within the city limits are allowed $2.50 for actual expenses and prizes worth no more than $35 for first place, $20 for second and $10 for third. The prizes must be inscribed wreaths, diplomas, banners, badges, medals, timepieces, mantel ornaments, articles of jewelry, silverware, and table or toilet service.

First Hearing Monday.

The first hearings probably will be conducted by the commission on Monday. Boxers found guilty of accepting compensation will be declared professionals and will be compelled to obtain professional licenses.

The commission has indicated that several amateurs have signed affidavits to the effect that boxers have received $5 to $25 for each bout from amateur promoters.

Nearly every amateur in Illinois is under suspicion. They will be given hearings in groups of 50 and each will be given a chance to deny charges of professionalism. The commission has investigated amateur boxing since Dec. 1, 1929.

Half May Lose Cards.

If 50 per cent of the 2,500 lose their amateur cards and take out professional licenses the state treasury will be enriched to the extent of $6,250 at $5 per boy. They will be required to pay a $1 fee for membership in the National Boxing association, making a total of $1,250 for the N. B. A. treasury.

Amateur promoters guilty of paying amateur boxers in lieu of trophies or prizes will forfeit their $100 cash bonds and licenses.

Thus, if they continue to promote, they will have to obtain professional licenses, for which there is no charge, and use the same boys under the full jurisdiction of the Illinois commission, but instead of holding eight bouts at three rounds each they can present seven professional matches at four rounds each and the show may not cost any more than now.

Lon Warneke Will Go After His 19th Victory Today

Lon Warneke will go after his 19th victory this afternoon before what is expected to be a capacity crowd. There are 20,000 ladies day tickets out and the cash customers ought to more than take up the remaining seats. Either Hollis Thurston or Dazzy Vance will pitch and in view of the way the Cubs are going it probably will be Vance.

Hack Wilson was a bust again yesterday. In the games at Wrigley Field this year he has made two scratch singles in 33 times at bat for a season mark of .060. After he had tapped into a double play with the bases full in the sixth inning yesterday he was benched and Johnny Frederick took his place in right field.

Guy Bush stopped Lefty O'Doul's hitting streak, which had extended through 21 games. O'Doul was thrown out by Koenig in the first inning, hit into a double play in the fourth inning, went down in a double play with Wilson after walking in the sixth and was out, Grimm to Bush, for the first out in the ninth inning.

Bush relaxed a little in the sixth and permitted the panic stricken Dodgers to get a little exercise for themselves. Clancy rang up the second hit off Bush, a single to left and stopped at second while Picinich was beating out a slow roller to Koenig. Frederick batted for Quinn and forced Picinich, Clancy stopping at third. D. Taylor singled to left, Clancy scoring and Frederick stopping at second. Then Stripp singled to center, scoring Frederick and putting D. Taylor on third. O'Doul walked, filling the bases. Then Wilson hit into a double play, Herman to Grimm. Wilson was benched and Frederick took his place in right.

Thomas took over the pitching job in the sixth and both sides were quite orderly the rest of the way, except that Cuccinnello knocked the ball over the left field wall with two out in the ninth.

Sox Lose to Boston, 5-4; Errors Do It

a rally that netted three runs for Boston in the third. A great play, Sullivan to Frasier, stopped Jolley, putting Alex on third. Oliver tapped to Appling and the ponderous Alex scored when Appling threw high to the plate. Frasier picked Oliver off first base, but had to commit a balk to do it, and Umpire Dinneen didn't let the rule infraction escape his attention. Warstler was pegged out, and Tate then boomed the first pitch into the right field seats, just inside the foul line. That made it 4 to 2.

Sullivan Starts Rally.

Sullivan made one of his batting contributions in the fourth and it meant a run. The embryo lawyer doubled into Jolley's territory. Appling walked and both moved up on Selph's sacrifice. Sullivan scored on Kress' infield out. This run fell back into the Red Sox's lap in the fifth. Alexander singled and was safe at second when Appling dropped Frasier's throw on Jolley's tap. Eventually Alex scored on Oliver's single to center.

The Chicago youths came up with three hits in a row in the sixth for their last run. Sullivan led off with a single over Olson and dashed to third on Appling's single to right. McManus made a diving stop of a drive close to the base by Selph, but couldn't make a throw, so Selph got credit for a single and Sullivan scored. Then three fellows were set down in order, the last being English, who batted for Frasier and bounced into a force out.

Blue did a good job of trying to cook up the tying run in the ninth, but his mates refused to collaborate. Batting for Grube, Blue doubled past first base.

Fothergill was summoned to bat for Faber and the first three pitches were wide, but Rhodes suddenly recovered his bearings and Round Robert was suppressed on a pop foul to Tate. Then Funk was tossed out by Olson and the show closed with Hayes going out the same way.

Sad Sam Jones Has Sore Shoulder, but May Pitch Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 25.—Sam Jones, who was slated to pitch for the White Sox today, came up with a sore shoulder after reaching the park, but he'll probably work tomorrow if the ailment vanishes. Otherwise it will be Milt Gaston. Bob Weiland may be the Boston starter.

The Red Sox will have to be awarded first prize for thinking up the best scheme to make a synthetic doubleheader. Next Wednesday's game with Cleveland will be played as part of a twin bill on Sunday, the cause for the change being the eclipse of the sun Wednesday afternoon.

WEST CENTRAL ASSOC. NAMES HOUSING GROUP

A committee on housing was formed by the West Central association yesterday at a meeting in Eitel's summer garden in the Northwestern terminal. The purpose of the committee is to keep the association in step with the movement for rehabilitation, slum clearance, and reemployment of men and money, according to Charles A. Snyder, secretary.

The committee will present its views on the final disposition of limited dividend housing corporation holdings to the Illinois housing commission, Mr. Snyder said. The proposed Illinois law provides for the sale, subject to the permanent housing commission's approval, of real property of the limited dividend corporations thirty years after construction. The committee feels that they should be permitted to sell at any time after the payment of government loans.

STRIVE TO SHIFT BLAME IN FATAL POLICE BEATING

Doctor, Suspect Tell of Third Degree.

Mineola, L. I., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—An attempt to shift the blame for the fatal third degree administered to Hyman Stark from the five Nassau county policemen on trial in Supreme court here to Assistant District Attorney Martin W. Littleton Jr. and Detective Joseph Hizenski, whose mother Stark is alleged to have attacked and robbed, was begun by the defense today.

The attempt was through cross-examination of Littleton and Dr. Otto Schultze, who performed the autopsy on Stark on July 15, the night of his death.

The defense sought to show that Littleton and not Deputy Police Chief Frank J. Tappen, one of the five on trial, was in charge of the case, and that the fatal blow might have been delivered by a hand and not by Tappen's foot.

Quotes Tappen on Torture.

Littleton repeated his story of how Tappen had said to him after the examination of Stark: "He's the toughest —— I ever saw. I had to put one foot on his stomach and the other on his throat and rock back and forth and it didn't even feaze him."

Besides Chief Tappen the men on trial are Detectives Charles Wesser, Harry Zander and Leslie W. Pearsall.

The beating that killed Stark was described in detail by Dr. Schultz.

Stark's head was beaten so badly that there were hemorrhages from the blood vessels of the brain, the witness related. His back was a mass of welts and his face was battered to a pulp.

Suspect Shown Beating.

Philip Cacala, one of three men arrested with Stark, told the jury he had been shown Stark, naked on the floor under a shower while a man belabored him with a rubber hose. Stark was screaming, "For God's sake, have mercy."

The detective said:—

"The same will happen to you if you don't come through."

Cacala said he could not identify the man who had beaten Stark, but said the detective who gave him a first-hand view of the third degree in practice was Pearsall.

EDITOR OF NEWSPAPER SUPPRESSED BY POLICE SEEKS AN INJUNCTION

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—A new appeal for an injunction to restrain police and Hennepin county authorities from interference with the Public Press, weekly newspaper, was filed today by the publisher, Arthur Kasherman. Two editions of the paper, which purports to expose vice in Minneapolis, have been confiscated this month by police.

Judge Levi M. Hall, to whom the appeal was made, will hear the case Friday morning. Kasherman will make the arguments before the court himself, but nearly a dozen attorneys are expected to appear in support of the editor.

A previous appeal for an injunction made after the first seizure of the paper this month was refused by Judge Paul W. Guilford on the contention that the Public Press was an obscene publication. This ruling was made despite the fact that postal authorities had admitted the paper to the mails.

In the second edition confiscated by police, Kasherman had attacked city officials for renting the municipal auditorium to a "walkathon" promoter, charging that the $400,000 building had been turned into a "saloon." Despite the seizure of his paper the charges, taken up by an afternoon daily, have brought about a ban on near-beer sales in the auditorium and a closer watch for bootleggers who had been reported serving their customers openly.

He will be charged with manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident.

These deaths and two others yesterday increased the automobile death toll in Cook county since Jan. 1 to 754.

Charles Hubatka Jr., 12 years old, 2640 South Cuyler avenue, Berwyn. Died at the Berwyn hospital. He was struck several hours earlier by a truck in front of his home. Edward Vizensky, 3837 Ogden avenue, the driver, was held for the inquest today.

New York, Aug. 25.—With a turnover of more than 4,000,000 shares today, gains and losses were divided among the stocks that were the objects of large trading.

American Can, American Telephone, Atchison, Auburn, United States Steel, Consolidated Gas, General Electric, Sears-Roebuck, the Standard Oil issues, New York Central, and the like, all finished showing net losses of a fraction to 2 points or more. A long list of secondary shares showed gains.

Strength in wheat and cotton was an influential factor in the forenoon dealings. Therein a long line of stocks was carried to new highs for the movement, some of them on gains of as much as 5, 6, or 7 points. After the turn of the day, however, a number of vague rumors, mainly suggesting speedy profit taking, were circulated.

Await Hoover Conference.

Offerings increased as the session turned into the last hour and toward the close early runups melted away rapidly. Some of the larger traders were reported to be concerned over the results of President Hoover's conference with the business men tomorrow.

Announcement of the cut in the quarterly dividend of International Harvester common at a time when it had been generally expected that the regular rate of 45 cents would be maintained was a depressing influence of some weight. Shares of the company dropped four points following the announcement replacing an early gain with a net loss of 2¼ points.

Transit Shares Affected.

Uncertainty over the New York traction situation counted against both Brooklyn-Manhattan and Interborough Rapid Transit shares, the first named taking a tumble of more than 2 points. In addition to doubts over the outcome of the unification project the Interborough is giving its shareholders some concern over the heavy maturities it is facing. Talk has been going the rounds for several days that the company might seek the protection of the courts in a friendly suit.

The rails were not as popular as they have been. The receivership action against the Frisco added to their troubles. Atchison gave up nearly 2 points of its recent gains.

Excursions Bring Visitors to See Exposition Grounds

Eight excursions over three railroad lines are expected to bring approximately 15,000 tourists to Chicago next Sunday for a preview of A Century of Progress — Chicago's 1933 World's Fair. The Chicago and Alton, Illinois Central, and Chicago and North Western are the roads operating excursions.

Here and There in Business

Benjamin Samuels, president of Chicago Yellow Cab, says the taxicab business has been slightly better since the first of August. Normally, the trend is the other way.

"There has been some improvement this month," says Mr. Samuels, "not enough to get excited about, but still encouraging. And it hasn't rained for thirty days."

Walter Parker, leading cotton economist of New Orleans, says in a letter to a Chicago firm:

"The public believes the federal farm board is dead and its power for harm gone. It is for this reason that speculation has taken hold of the commodity markets. Speculation is a bull. The farm board was a bear. Hence the active boom in commodities."

Speaking of bulls, the Chicago Board of Trade at 11 o'clock yesterday announced the transfer of a membership to a Baltimore house for $7,725, a rise of $725 since the last previous sale. The ink on that bulletin was scarcely dry before another was issued announcing the sale of another membership for $8,100. The next offer was $10,500.

Early this summer the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad air conditioned one of its through trains to the east, the George Washington. It did not air condition four other trains. The earnings of trains that were not air conditioned have continued to slip at about the same rate as earlier in the year. The air conditioned train has showed gains in revenue per mile each month, according to an official of the road.

The city of Boston has awarded to the First of Boston corporation an issue of $3,000,000 notes maturing on Oct. 7. This financing established a record low rate for the year of 1.87 per cent, plus a premium of $5.

Railroad executives aver that when the roads do start buying equipment they will buy a lot of it.

"We have been repairing bad order cars with parts taken from other bad order cars," says one railroad official. "If a car comes in needing a brake shoe we take it off another car that has a broken triple valve. This will work for a while but when we get to a place where we need parts we'll need a lot of them. That day may not be far off."

Trade Chiefs Tell Hoover Business Gains

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—[Special.]—Two dozen of the country's official and unofficial leaders in finance, business, and industry met here today and recommended the formation of a central national committee to act as a coördinating body in attacking the depression.

Those who met were the members of the executive committee of the business and industrial conference which will gather at the capital tomorrow at the President's call.

President Hoover is to head a list of eight speakers who will tell the more than 200 members of the conference their idea of the course to be taken by efforts to bring the depression to an end.

Reports Cheer Hoover.

At a later informal meeting at the White House tonight the business and industrial leaders cheered President Hoover with reports that business conditions throughout the country are improving. Some of the bankers told Mr. Hoover during a round table session in the Lincoln study that they believed the recent rise in commodity prices and in security values on the exchange were justified. They said confidence throughout the business world was on the upgrade with every one looking more hopefully toward the future than they had been at any time since the depression began.

In describing the current situation some of the President's guests called attention to the fact that many banks had been relieved from anxiety in recent weeks by the rise in security values. That rise had increased the value of their stock and bond assets by millions of dollars. They also pointed out that there were a great many more buyers in both security and commodity fields today than had been the case a few weeks ago.

Owen D. Young of New York was the only one of those who attended the day's conference who was not at the White House this evening. Mr. Young, it was understood, asked to be excused because of a previous engagement.

Prepare Tentative Program.

At today's preliminary meeting, where the program for the full conference was drawn up, were the heads of the committees recently created by the President in the twelve federal reserve districts, together with other prominent business men representing various branches of industry. As spokesmen for the administration were three cabinet members and the heads of the government's fiscal and economic agencies.

The meeting was held at the treasury department and was presided over by Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles banker and friend and adviser of President Hoover. Those in attendance were:

Secretaries Mills, Chapin, and Doak, Gov. Meyer of the federal reserve board, Gov. Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve bank; Atlee Pomerene, chairman R. F. C.; C. H. Miller, president R. F. C.; Franklin Fort, chairman federal home loan bank board; Carl Williams of the federal farm board; Owen D. Young of New York; L. B. Williams, Cleveland; G. H. Houston, Philadelphia; Sewell Avery, Chicago; A. W. Robertson, Pittsburgh; J. E. Reynolds, New York; C. P. Dennett, Boston; E. C. Graham, Washington; G. S. Harris, Atlanta; R. E. Maddox, Atlanta; J. W. Harris, St. Louis; G. D. Dayton, Minneapolis; J. F. Porter, Kansas City; Frank Kell, Dallas; K. R. Kingsbury, San Francisco; Walter Teagle, New York; Daniel Willard, Baltimore, and T. N. Perkins, Boston.

The announcement of the conferees' decision as to a central committee to act as an anti-depression clearing house was made following the break up of the all day meeting in a statement given out by Secretary Mills.

Secretary Mills' Statement.

"For some weeks past," Mr. Mills said, "informal meetings have been held, attended by members of the banking and industrial committees and government officials, at which the possibility of setting up a central committee of the banking and industrial committees was discussed, such a committee to act as a central point of contact in those matters regarding coöperation between various public and semi-public agencies and the several banking and industrial committees and to be of assistance to voluntary committees formed for the purpose of carrying out definite undertakings. Those attending these informal meetings had also considered some definite proposals looking to the stimulation of business activity and of employment.

"At the conclusion of the session it was the sense of those present that they would recommend to the conference that is to meet tomorrow the setting up of a central committee of the banking and industrial committee to meet for the purposes above described."

Will Speak Today.

In addition to the president the speakers at tomorrow's conference will be Gov. Meyer, Mr. Pomerene, C. H. Miller, president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation; Mr. Fort, Mr. Young, Secretary Chapin, and Secretary Mills.

Previously it had been arranged that the President's speech should be broadcast. The Republican national committee, however, today canceled the broadcasting arrangements.

In early statements President Hoover announced that the conference would be part of a nine point program calculated to cope with the depression. More recently he announced that the conference would deal specifically with two subjects—the effort to spread employment and a program for easing credit.

REYNOLDS OPTIMISTIC

George M. Reynolds, chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, leaving yesterday to attend the Washington conference today, declared confidence is a necessary element in business recovery.

"Lack of confidence," he said, "our chief remaining barrier to progress, is rapidly being replaced by more confidence in ourselves, our associates and our nation. Higher prices for farm and other commodities are making us feel much better."

AERIAL TRAFFIC, PERSONS, FREIGHT SHOWS INCREASE

Scheduled air lines operated in the United States continued to increase the volume of passengers and express carried, while the volume of air mail decreased slightly, during the first six months of this year, according to reports to the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce.

During the half year period 217,588 passengers were flown compared with 169,816 flown in the similar period last year; 441,192 pounds of express were flown this year, compared to 247,422 pounds in the first half of last year and 4,081,270 pounds of mail were flown in six months, compared to the 4,332,714 pounds flown the first half of last year.

Passenger miles, that is, one passenger flown one mile, a method of computing that is considered more exact than the total number of passengers flown, increased from 40,855,654 during the first half of last year to 54,534,748 in the first half of this year. Miles flown increased from 18,129,168 to 22,204,295. Mail payments increased slightly from $9,160,260.88 to $9,198,060.32.

RETAIL TRADE GAINS SHOWN IN ORDERS HERE

The first tangible improvement in trade that looks like a thing of permanence is now in progress, according to Frank S. Cunningham, president of Butler Bros., wholesale distributors of dry goods and general merchandise, mostly through stores in small towns throughout the country.

The company, besides operating seven wholesale houses, owns Scott Stores, Inc., a retail variety chain organization, selling goods ranging in price from 5 cents to $1, in towns not served by the wholesale stores.

Gen. Otto H. Falk, chairman of the board of Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company, stated that the feeling throughout the northwest is much better than it has been. Certain branches of his business, particularly the industrial tractor end, he declared, have already picked up quite materially.

Cities Service Co. Seeks to Gain Richfield Control

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 25.—Competition for the properties of the Richfield Oil Company of California, which has been in receivership since January, 1931, appeared today to be now only between the Consolidated Oil corporation and the Cities Service company. Consolidated Oil a few weeks ago made an offer to the various protective committees which was accepted tentatively in principle.

Copper Prices Advance Again in Export Market

New York, Aug. 25.—(AP)—A further advance in copper prices in the export market was reported today. European prices were said to be on the basis of 5.60 to 5.75 cents a pound.

'FRISCO' WILL FIGHT ST. LOUIS PETITION ASKING RECEIVER

New York, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Suit for a receivership filed yesterday in St. Louis by a bondholder of the St. Louis and San Francisco railway will be "vigorously opposed," said E. N. Brown, chairman of the road's board of directors, today.

"We have been advised by telephone from St. Louis," his statement said, "that a holder of $3,500 prior lien bonds has filed a petition in the federal court at St. Louis asking for the appointment of a receiver for the railway company.

"The action will be vigorously opposed. Counsel for the company states that there is no basis on which a bondholder can secure appointment of a receiver at the present time, and that they have no doubt that the application will be dismissed. There is no default existing under the prior lien mortgage or any other mortgage. No interest is due on the prior lien bonds until Jan. 1.

"If adequate deposits are received under the readjustment plan prior to Sept. 1, which the company believes will be the case, the company expects to be able to pay interest on the consolidated bonds due on that day and to be able thereafter to carry out the readjustment plan."

Two File the Suit.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 25.—(AP)—The suit for a receiver for the Frisco was filed today by Charles and Dora B. Gans, owners of $3,500 of 4 per cent, series A, prior lien mortgage bonds of that railroad.

To Head Bond Men

F. M. GORDON.

Frank M. Gordon, vice president of the First National bank, has been nominated by the board of governors of the Investment Bankers' Association of America as president of the association, subject to election at the organization's annual convention at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Oct. 22-26. An announcement to this effect was made yesterday at the association's offices here. Nomination is practically equivalent to election.

Another Chicagoan, E. C. Wampler, vice president of Lawrence Stern & Co., has been nominated as treasurer to succeed William T. Bacon of Bacon, Whipple & Co. Mr. Bacon is nominated as a member of the board of governors for a three year term. Nomination to office in the I. B. A. has always been equivalent to election.

Mr. Gordon began his career as a messenger for the First National bank and has been with that institution ever since. He is also treasurer of the University of Illinois, treasurer of the Lincoln park board, and president of the Investors' Protective bureau. Mr. Gordon is the third Chicago banker to head the I. B. A. since 1912.

CHICAGO STOCKS ADVANCE AGAIN ON ACTIVE TRADE

The volume of trading expanded to 100,000 shares and prices continued to improve on the Chicago exchange yesterday. Speculative interest shifted to one or two shares which have been overlooked recently.

Walgreen was the market leader with a turnover of 17,500 shares. Aggressive sponsorship sent the stock 3¾ points to 16, the best quotation it has reached so far this year. Grigsby-Grunow was active again and higher on the early trading, but reacted to close the day unchanged at 2¼.

Investment trust issues were in better demand, reflecting the appreciation of portfolio shares. Miscellaneous issues scoring improvement were Marshall Field, Electric Household, and McQuay Norris.

BANKERS SEEKING REFINANCING OF GOTHAM TRANSIT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 24.—Plans for meeting an approaching emergency in the financial affairs of the Interborough Rapid Transit company were discussed at a special meeting of the board of directors and the executive committee today. A program which involves the $31,000,000 note maturity on Sept. 1 is being worked out and will be announced soon, probably tomorrow.

Bankers believe the most likely method of avoiding default on the notes will be to ask for an extension of the maturity dates on this issue and on the $10,000,000 more of notes on which payment is due Oct. 1. The present rise in securities has aroused hope that the time is not far distant when the Interborough might once again be able to refund the issue under terms generally acceptable to security holders.

On the other hand, there were reports that petitions to place the company in receivership were being drafted, and some bankers said that default seemed inevitable. These bankers, however, were not in the counsels of the group working on the situation and were merely expressing personal opinions.

Western Pacific Reports 1932's First Monthly Profit

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 25.—(AP)—The Western Pacific Railroad company reported today it had made an operating profit in July of $28,719—the first monthly profit this year. Operations for the year to the end of July resulted in an operating deficit of $517,433.

It was in July a year ago that the railroad emerged from the red for a period of several months. Last year at the end of June the road's operations left a handicap of $562,615, which was more than wiped out before the end of the year, the final profit being $263,270.

Delay Straus Court Hearing Until Sept. 16 in New York

New York, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice John H. McCooey Jr., today adjourned until Sept. 16 hearing on the motion of the attorney general's office for the appointment of a receiver for S. W. Straus & Co., and an injunction to restrain that firm from the sale of securities, except under certain conditions. Counsel for the Straus company said they had not had sufficient time to prepare a defense, and they agreed to submit answering affidavits to Deputy Attorney General William F. Mahon by Sept. 8.

NEW ADVANCES IN COMMODITIES COME TO LIGHT

Wheat, Cotton, Hogs Make Good Gains.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Commodities again took the limelight from stocks and bonds yesterday. While the security averages were showing fractional losses, wheat, cotton, steel, dairy products, rubber, hogs and other commodities were making good gains.

From Pittsburgh came word of another 25 cents advance in heavy melting steel. Although there has been no great upturn in the rate of operations of steel plants, the industry is more convinced than ever that improvement will occur next month.

Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of U. S. Steel, was merely expressing the opinion of steel people generally when he said that buying could not long be postponed.

Cotton Surges Ahead.

Cotton prices surged forward for the second consecutive day, and despite heavy profit taking futures closed with gains of 55 to 70 cents per bale.

Wheat scored net gains of about 2 cents. Butter and eggs made sharp gains and rubber prices entered new high ground.

Meanwhile the weekly report of the federal reserve banks indicated that member banks throughout the nation are getting in better position to extend credit to business when the fall pickup that industry expects materializes.

Bank clearings dropped sharply during the week ended Wednesday, according to Bradstreets. Clearings from 47 cities totaled $3,852,108,000, a loss of 11.4 per cent from the previous week and a drop of 33.6 per cent from the corresponding week of 1931.

Outside New York clearings reached the lowest point of the year, with the exception of the week ended June 1. They totaled $1,410,780,000, or 9.8 per cent less than the week before.

An encouraging feature of the federal reserve bank report yesterday was the reduction of $22,000,000 in currency in circulation. Normally at this season there is a moderate gain.

Reserve Bank Credit Off.

Reserve bank credit outstanding dropped another $23,000,000 during the week ended Wednesday, but reserve balances of member banks increased $62,000,000, indicating that banks throughout the country were in better position than ever to extend credit to industry.

Despite continued heavy trading in security markets brokers loans increased only $11,000,000 during the week ended Wednesday. The total at the end of the week was $355,000,000, not far above the year's low. This compares with $1,349,000,000 a year ago.

The failure of brokers' loans to reflect the big increase in the volume of security transactions during the last month has been accepted pretty generally as proof that a lot of people are buying stocks and bonds with money withdrawn from hoarding.

Commercial banks continued to reduce the amount of their loans on securities in the week ended Wednesday. Member banks in Chicago reported $481,000,000 lent on securities, against $498,000,000 the preceding week. New York banks were lending $29,000,000 less on securities.

Gold Holdings Increase.

Gold holdings of the federal reserve banks continued to expand, reflecting additional buying of American securities by foreigners. Total gold reserves on Aug. 24 were $2,753,000,000, compared with $2,737,000,000 the week before.

In Chicago member banks reported no change in their total of time deposits. Net demand deposits declined $9,000,000. In New York time deposits increased $3,000,000 and demand deposits increased $72,000,000.

To date there has been no great expansion in the rate of industrial operations, but the trend of prices in security markets and in almost all commodities for weeks has been upward, indicating a very strong belief on the part of business men and traders that the bottom has been passed and that an increase in the rate of business activity is impending.

The reserve bank figures show that there is plenty of credit to be had wherever and whenever the business man can convince the banker that the operation for which he desires a loan is going to be profitable.

And rising prices increase the likelihood of profit. The vicious circle of deflation seems to be reversing.

Larger Orient Trade Seen in Rise of Silver

BY JOHN STEELE.

One of the questions most seriously discussed at the British imperial conference at Ottawa and which will be before the world economic conference, when it meets "some time after the American election," is the revaluation of silver.

An important school of economists, bankers, and business men in England, and Europe generally, believes that half of the world's troubles have been caused by the catastrophic fall in the value of silver in the last few years.

There is no serious demand for the remonetization of silver. Here and there a few cranks preach the old Bryan doctrine of 16 to 1, but no one takes them seriously. What the serious bankers of the world do want is a restoration of silver to its 1929 value, relative to gold.

Call New Laws Needless.

That, it is believed, can be done without legislative interference, or at any rate with a minimum of such intervention. If it is done the market for European and American manufactured goods of all kinds in India and China will be doubled immediately.

One of the leading advocates of a silver agreement among the producers and holders of the world is J. F. Darling, director of the Midland Bank of Great Britain. He visited Ottawa during the imperial conference to push his case. He had the support of Sir Henry Strakosch and Sir George Schuster, both great merchant bankers of London. They were at the conference as financial experts to the Indian delegation. Mr. Darling explains that it would be easier to raise the price of silver than of any other commodity, because it is in the hands of so few people.

Few Control World Supply.

Half a dozen men in the United States and Mexico control the world's supply and the Indian government holds the world's largest stock. A simple agreement by the producers on the one hand to limit output and by the Indian government not to dump its stock suddenly on the market would have the desired effect.

That effect, it is maintained, would mean an immediate increase of nearly 100 per cent in the purchasing power of the Indian native. When an Indian saves a few rupees he invests them by buying a silver bangle and hanging it on his wife's arm. When there is no more space on his wife for bangles he buys a little silver brick and buries it in the front garden. When he wants to buy anything he digs up the brick or commandeers a bracelet and turns it into rupees.

The same condition with slight modifications exists in China. The price of silver in 1929 was 50 cents an ounce. Today it is below 30 cents. That means there has been just that much drop in the value of the savings of the immense population of India and China.

The annual production of silver is about 250 million fine ounces. Of this Mexico produces about 110 million ounces, the United States about 60 million, and Canada about 25 million ounces.

Bulk Held in India.

The government of India holds about 300 million ounces, or more than the world's production for a year, and the threat of this huge stock hanging over the market, like the farm board's holdings of wheat, has been largely responsible for the fall in price. The Indian government became the owner of this stock as the result of the demonetization of silver in India a few years ago and the stock then left on its hands has been increased by the fact that many Indian peasants insist on paying their taxes in silver.

No one knows, of course, how much the savings of the Indians and Chinese actually amount to, but the generally accepted estimate is that there are in private hands in China about four billion ounces and in China about three billion. If silver could be brought back to 50 cents an ounce it would mean almost a billion and a half new dollars available for spending.

Few of the modern advocates of silver want it remonetized. It is too fluctuating in value and the supply is too widespread. Unlike gold, it is also a useful metal in the arts and industries, and is therefore exposed to other factors due to the fluctuations of the market in goods into which it enters and it is found not in a pure state but in combination with other metals, so that its price is often governed by the demand for these metals.

WHEAT DEFIES PROFIT TAKING; CLOSES HIGHER

Eastern Buying Big Feature of Day.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat market, heretofore dormant while stocks and cotton were staging sensational upturns suddenly came to life yesterday and wheat advanced more in an hour than it had declined in over a week. Aggressive buying by houses with eastern connections with a further upturn in cotton, brought about considerable change in sentiment. The December advanced 2⅝c over the finish of Wednesday before sellers could stop the upward movement.

A new factor has been injected into the worlds wheat situation by talk of inflation in the currency in this country. Liverpool cables said there was talk of a lower price for sterling, and inflation in England. The latter market, however, was not affected, although the word had considerable effect in some quarters here.

Profit taking, selling against bids and spreading operations with Winnipeg checked the bulge and the finish was on a reaction of around 1c from the best figures. Net gains for the day were 1⅜c with September, 52½@52¾c; December, 55⅞@56c, and May, 60⅝@60½c.

Trade Much Broader.

In addition to the inflation talk there were numerous rumors in circulation in the trade yesterday regarding probable developments. According to some reports announcement is to be made soon by the farm board that it would not sell any of its holdings to the domestic trade. The traders also had rumors that a large eastern pool had started operations in the wheat market. The buying by the east yesterday was sufficient to absorb the surplus in the pit, and drive the local shorts to cover, as well as force sellers of offers to protect themselves.

Heavy selling of December wheat here against purchases at Winnipeg again were in evidence. They were effective in checking the upturn in the local market, and partly offset the effect of persistent hedging in the Canadian market. The latter closed ⅞@1¼c higher with December at 57¾c. The latter has lost 3⅝c per bu relative to Chicago in less than a week and was 1¾c over the American market at the finish yesterday against 5½c over at one time on Aug. 18.

The Searle Grain Co. of Winnipeg in its preliminary estimate on the yield in the three Candian provinces indicated a wheat crop of 459,000,000 bu, against 284,000,000 bu harvested in 1931.

Export Demand Slow.

Foreign demand for North American cash wheat again was disappointing with sales of 300,000 to 400,000 bu Manitobas estimated as having been sold form both coasts but no mention was made of interest in hard winter. Official exports from the United States during the month of July were only 4,772,000 bu against 17,253,000 bu last year. No. 3 Manitoba which is usually figured as about equal in milling quality to No. 2 hard winter is selling at about equal to 45c per bu on par of exchange, or at a discount of around 7c under Chicago September. Liverpool closed ½c higher with December at 57c.

Strength in wheat caused an advance of around ¾c in corn futures at the exreme and the country took advantage of the upturn to sell around 350,000 bu cash grain to arrive. Hedging of the latter checked the bulge and brought about a reaction, but the finish was at net gains of ½@⅝c. September was 30⅝c at the last with December 32¼c, and May, 36½@36⅝c. Reports of damage to the crop in various parts of the belt due to dry and hot weather attracted little attention.

Active carrier bonds sold one to three points lower for such issues as Baltimore and Ohio 4½s, due 1933 and 1960; Chicago and North Western convertible 4¾s, Erie refunding 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s, New York Central debenture 4s, and issues of St. Louis and San Francisco.

Some Near Best Prices.

Marked resistance to the selling was noted in many rail bonds, chiefly the high grade issues, most of which are around their best levels of the year. Public utility bonds of good quality gave ground grudgingly.

Strength in commodity prices, including metals and rubber, aided such issues as American Metal 5½s and Goodrich 6s.

Australian bonds rose to new highs for the year, while gains of a point or more developed in Argentines, Brazilians, Chileans, Peruvians, Republic of Panama 5s, and others.

German Bonds Benefitted.

OUTLOOK BETTER; CUT DIVIDEND ON HARVESTER

Legge Says Worst of the Slump Is Over.

Alexander Legge, president of the International Harvester company, yesterday expressed the belief that the low point of the business depression has been reached.

Mr. Legge's comment was made in connection with the action of the directors in reducing the dividend rate on the common stock. A quarterly dividend of 30 cents a share was authorized payable Oct. 15 to shareholders of record Sept. 20. The action places the stock on a $1.20 annual dividend basis as compared with $1.80 formerly.

"The company's business," Mr. Legge said, "has been substantially less than was estimated when the dividend rate was fixed six months ago. Looking to the future, however, our company shares the general belief that the bottom of the depression has at last been reached."

Others Declare Dividends.

Two other major corporations yesterday authorized the payments of the regular dividends. Directors of Standard Brands, Inc., big food products company, declared the usual dividend of 30 cents a share thus maintaining the regular $1.20 annual rate. United Corporation, big utility holding company, announced the declaration of the regular dividend of 10 cents a share.

Forecasts Oil Dividends.

Cash dividend payments by the Standard Oil companies in the third quarter of 1932 will approximate $43,868,468, compared with $46,308,878 in the previous quarter and $51,263,683 in the third quarter of last year. These figures are furnished by the New York Stock exchange firm of Carl H. Pforzheimer & Co.

The General Railway Signal company also declared its regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock.

Dividend reductions were voted by two other companies. The Midvale company voted a dividend of 75 cents a share. This compares with $1 paid three months ago. The majority of the stock is held by the Baldwin Locomotive company. The Rubberoid company authorized the distribution of 25 cents a share which compares with 50 cents a share in the previous quarter.

Canada Cement Omits.

The American Superpower company yesterday declared a dividend of $3 on the first preferred stock, payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 1.

Bright Spots in Business

Speaking at St. John, N. B., President Charles B. Cochman of the American Institute of Accountants, said, "There is now a rebirth of confidence discernible in business circles in the United States that, we hope, prophesies a return to prosperity." He is a New Yorker.

Bradstreet's weekly food index last week remained close to the top of its recent advance at $1.75.

The American Gas association announced the launching of a $6,000,000 gas range merchandising campaign. R. W. Gallagher of Cleveland, president of the association, said: "This step not only shows courage and confidence, but it likewise should have a healthful and stimulating effect on the general industrial situation."

The American Writing Paper company reported orders for the first 20 days of August were 50 per cent higher than those in the same period of July.

Two hundred employes of the Oregon City, Ore., woolen mills, makers of men's clothing, idle since the plant was shut down early this year, have returned to their jobs.

The Universal Atlas Cement plant at Independence, Kas., will begin operations in all departments Sept. 1, furnishing employment to 110 men.

Heads of the McKenzie Milling company at Quincy, Mich., announced that production hours have been increased from eleven to eighteen per day. That, officials said, will double the pay roll.

Upward of $200,000 is being expended in development of textile mills in Alabama.

Heavy melting steel at Pittsburgh is up 25 cents a ton to $8.15, and principal scrap markets also have a strong tone, trade authorities say. There has been new advances at Detroit and in some of the lower priced grades at other centers.

Some of the large anthracite operators will issue price circulars within a day or two announcing an advance of most prepared sizes at the mines of 20 cents a ton and 10 cents a ton on pea, effective Sept. 1.

Furniture manufacturers in the 7th district reporting to the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago recorded marked improvement in bookings during July, the total of new orders for the month expanding approximately 53 per cent over the June aggregate. This is in line with the usual seasonal trend.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 1,500; hogs, 13,000; sheep, 13,000.

Cattle and hogs continued the rally that started in midweek on lower supplies. They recovered more of the recent losses. The first $10.00 steers of the season put in an appearance yesterday. A string of 44 prime Illinois cattle averaging 1,323 lbs sold to an eastern order buyer at that figure, the highest price paid for cattle since last January. Advances of 15@25c were general in the small contingent to sell above the $9.00 line.

These kinds are 30 to 35 per cent above the low spot a little more than two months ago.

$2.35 Per 100 Lbs Advance.

Yesterday's peak price was $2.35 above the low da ythis year and within 35c of the highest price paid for cattle during the period May to September, inclusive, last year.

The rank and file of beef steers yesterday sold at $7.00@9.00, plain kinds ranging down to $5.00 and occasional lots of thin, grassy steers were sold lower. All classes of cattle shared in yesterday's strength. Butcher stock ruled steady to a little higher. Canners and cutters were firm. Calves sold at strong to 25c higher prices. Buying of replacement stock by country buyers on the Chicago market has increased during the last few weeks and prices are strong. During the first 23 days of August, 5,911 stocker and feeder cattle and calves moved out of Chicago, this total comparing with 4,242 for the first 23 days of last month.

Hog Prices Advance, Too.

Hog receipts were light yesterday and prices forged ahead to the highest level since Tuesday of last week. Arrivals at 18,000 were smallest for Thursday in several weeks. Only three Thursday totals have been smaller since April. Prices gained 5 @15c, the top price moving up 10c to $4.90, while the general average showed 10c gain at $4.25. All interests were on the market with strong to higher prices and buying gained momentum when only 13,000 were posted for today's trade.

Armour, Swift and Wilson were aggressive, handling 45 per cent of the fresh receipts. The clearance for all grades of hogs was the best in recent weeks. Outside demand is light for this time of year, but shippers are buying a bigger share than they were last week. During the first four days of the week shippers bought 13 per cent of Chicago receipts against 10 per cent the first four days of last week.

Lamb Market Erratic.

Another increase in sheep receipts had an unsettling effect on the lamb market and prices went into a nose dive at the opening, but swung abruptly about in mid-session and finished as high as any time Wednesday. Receipts at 25,000 were largest for Thursday since Jan. 7, about 90 per cent of them coming from range territory. Eighty-four carloads of western lambs were on the market. The tops sold at $5.20@5.85, reaching the peak near the close, while natives to packers topped at $6.00 and about 400 to city butchers reached $6.35. More feeding lambs are available on the Chicago market.

Despite talk of lack of credit in the corn belt, the movement of stock back to country feed lots is increasing rapidly in face of advancing costs of replacement stock. During the first 23 days of this month 12,013 head were shipped back to the country from the Chicago market, this total comparing with 2,426 for the first 23 days of last month. Most of these feeding lambs cost $4.50@5.00.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 1,500 cattle, 13,000 hogs and 13,000 sheep, against 1,127 cattle, 13,749 hogs and 10,254 sheep the previous Friday, and 2,227 cattle, 11,285 hogs and 10,327 sheep a year ago.

BIG DAY IN COTTON; PRICE UP $1.25 BALE

Cotton markets yesterday were active and at times excited with an advance to new high level, the extreme being up $1.25 early in the day. The buying movements were lead by the trade and the selling was largely by shorts and traders. The close was at a reaction of 5 to 12 points from the top. There were net gains of futures in Chicago of 9 to 17 points, with other markets up 9 to 15 points. Spots advanced 15 points with New York 8.45c; New Orleans, 8.25c; Galveston-Houston, 8.15c. Liverpool was 40 to 41 points higher. An indication of the increase in the volume of trading was shown by the operations of one New York floor trader who handled 70,000 bales, mostly between 9.53c and 9.63c for December.

CALLS MEETING TO AIR CHARGES AGAINST TRUSTEE

Firebaugh Assails Action of New Committee.

Calling of a meeting to be attended by holders of bonds sold through the bond and mortgage company and by owners of properties securing these bonds discloses differences existing between officers of the company and certain equity owners and bondholders. The meeting is to be held at 7:30 p. m., Aug. 30, at the Chicago Real Estate board, 32 West Randolph street.

Isador Ferguson announces the organization of a committee "to protect owners of property originally financed by the Bond and Mortgage company."

"For its immediate program this group has undertaken the removal of Russell Firebaugh, president of the company, from his position as trustee under certain bond issues and to restrain him from interfering with the operation of properties represented until an impartial bondholders' committee is in a position to function for the protection of the security holders," according to a statement by Mr. Ferguson.

Members of Committee.

The committee is headed by A. S. R. Smith and includes Arthur C. Lueder, William J. Lesak, James J. Moran, Dr. Otto C. Pine and John Trafft. Charles T. Kramer is counsel. The offices are at 11 South La Salle street. The group is acting in cooperation with a bondholders' protective committee composed of Earle G. Krumrine, chairman, John R. Magill, D. Avery Kimbark, Mark Levy, and S. Charles Iverson.

"Various members of the property owners' committee are ready to pay interest and principal amortization on their mortgages, but refuse to make such payments to Russell Firebaugh, trustee, as a result of past experiences which, they assert, have destroyed their confidence in his management," Mr. Ferguson's statement continues. "Both this committee and the committee headed by Mr. Krumrine have requested the Bond and Mortgage company to supply lists of bondholders, but these pleas have been denied."

Reply by Firebaugh.

Mr. Firebaugh, replying to the charges of the committee, stated:

"We have defeated the group making these charges three times in court —once before Judge Lynch, once before Judge Feinberg, and once before Judge McGoorty. Their charges are not only untrue, but have been successfully refuted time after time in court. This trustee will not be dissuaded from the protection of the bondholders by irresponsible and unfounded charges.

"This group was organized by property owners as a trick to mislead the bondholders. It actually represents the owners of the properties. It does not represent the bondholders. It is antagonistic to the bondholders. The trustee has always been and will always be willing and anxious to work with the equity holders in any plan for the reorganization of the various properties that will be beneficial to the bondholders.

Has Cash to Pay.

Mr. Smith charges that Mr. Firebaugh delayed in canceling bonds under amortization and that he

Fair Rentals But No "Concession Tax."
Every thinking man and woman KNOWS that so-called rent "Concessions" are offered only after the rent has been sufficiently marked up to take care of such "Concessions."
We believe that this "Concession Tax" places a hardship on the great majority of renters, and therefore propose to do everything we can to eliminate it.
In its stead we aim to bring forth Fair Rental Values—without the "Concession Tax."
